

FALL GRAIN FAIR IN WALLOWA AREA

Crop Standing Up in Spite of Dryness—Spring Wheat Poor

WALLOWA, Ore., June 13 (Special)—Fall wheat crops over this section of the country have held up in good shape during the dry weather of the last five or six weeks. During this time only one light shower of rain has fell. Dry weather has begun to tell on some of the grain on light soil, but during the last day or two it has been quite cloudy and many expect to see rain shortly.

This spring has been one of the most difficult in many years for getting spring sown grain up. All through the farming sections in the hills where there has been hundreds of acres of spring seeding the stand in practically all fields is poor, due to insufficient moisture for even germination of the grain. Backward weather conditions made it impossible to do much early seeding, and by the time the ground could be put into shape for seeding, the moisture had left the top layers of the soil. Many farmers state they believe that should good rains come even yet, that much of the grain would come, making good stands. Some spring seeding has just been finished in parts of the valley sections, where the land has been cultivated for the last few weeks in order to kill as many of the weeds as possible before seeding.

One severe freeze has been experienced here this spring, and is said to have done considerable damage in parts of the county, killing down some early gardens, alfalfa, etc. On the higher parts of the county it has apparently done but little damage. Winter wheat crops which were well along at the time of the freeze do not show any signs yet of being damaged.

The extremely dry condition of the ground has made the plowing of many large tracts of summer fallow very slow.

RIPE CALIFORNIA FIGS

In combination with bran put flavor and zest into what many consider none too desirable a dish when attempted to eat bran alone.

In Fig Bran Flakes the real originators of Battle Creek health foods have prepared for every-day use a fruity, palatable flaked food that has a likable taste. It is a combination that unites the age-old laxative quality of the fig with the mechanical cleansing of suitably prepared bran.

Blended in just the right proportions they form a dish which breakfast appetites find pleasant and satisfying. And with that satisfaction comes the keen stimulus that the mind receives from a diet that breaks no law that Nature is determined to enforce.
