REPORTS SERUM ABATES DISEASE

Favorable Results Noted in Treatment of Paralysis Cases

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 15 (AP).—Favorable results in the treatment of infantile paralysis by a serum made from the blood of convalescent patients were reported to the American Medical association here by Dr. Lloyd Aycock of Boston.
In a group of 166 persons who received the serum within the first four days of illness the physician said there had been a low mortality rate, a low average of paralysis and a "strikingly small" occurrence of the severe grades of paralysis.
Only one child in the group died, and whereas 64 per cent subsequently developed the disease only 5.7 per cent had the severe type as compared with 46 in a group of untreated cases. The amount and severity of paralysis, Dr. Aycock said, varied with the interval between the onset of the disease and the time the serum was administered.
Dr. Aycock's work was done under the Harvard Infantile Paralysis commission's collaboration with Dr. Elliot H. Lathrop of the Vermont public health department.
Dr. Archer O'Reilly of St. Louis, chairman of the section on orthopedic surgery, urged establishment of convalescent hospitals for crippled adults, for whose care there are virtually no facilities. He pointed out that it cost about $235 to rehabilitate a crippled person and from $100 to $150 annually to maintain one unable to work. Fifty thousand cripples are being added to the list of invalids this year, Dr. O'Reilly asserted.
"A consideration of the figures quoted," he added, "will show that not only humanitarian motives but also economic principles justify the establishment of adequate hospitals, manned by expert staffs, devoted to the treatment of the adult cripple."

Dr. Willard C. Stoner of Cleveland, speaking before the section on practice of medicine, said that treatment for chronic rheumatism was largely unsatisfactory even in some of the best clinics. The widespread occurrence of the disease and the tendency to invalidism accompanying it make rheumatism an important economic problem, Dr. Stoner asserted.

PIRATES DEFEAT BEND, 11 TO 4, IN SPOTTY CONTEST

work himself out when Spud Helms to wind up a blue day, made a third error that let two men score. In the ninth a walk and a two-base hit permitted Trummer to score.

Support Spotty
Support in the field was good and bad. Two double plays helped to liveen things up a bit but Bend contributed a half a dozen errors during the hectic fray, which were responsible directly or indirectly for five of the Corsairs' counters. Poor throws seemed to be their specialty and Spud went 'em all one better.

After that fatal first inning things went along at a merry clip until the fifth. Marlow, first up, stroked a double and LaSalle singled, scoring the center fielder. Kennedy drew a base on balls and Helms laid down a bunt. Then Hoskins contributed a nice single over first base and LaSalle and Kennedy scored.

Again in the seventh the Pirates circled the bags. LaSalle walked, went to second on Trummer's error that gave Kennedy life at first, and subsequently gained third on a wild throw by Marlow. Helms singled, scoring LaSalle, and then Kennedy came home when Bigbee threw one away.

Bend Scores in Third
In the third inning Eubanks crashed out a three-base hit over Marlow's head and scored on Trummer's single along third base. Then in the eighth a poor throw to first with two down and three on base, let Hepting and Brentano come home.

The last counter was made by Bend in the ninth. Trummer walked, Rentrow hit one into Harrison's glove, Burdge filed out to Marlow and then Hepting slugged a first one for two bases, allowing Trummer plenty of time to touch the plate. Then to make it sure, Harrison whipped a third strike past Brentano.

Play Bears Sunday
A fair crowd witnessed the game, Tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock La Grande will play the Walla Walla Bears in a Blue Mountain league game at the high school field. If the Pirates win tomorrow, it will at least assure them of a tie for first place.

Play Enjoyed

The play at Eagles hall was thoroughly enjoyed by an audience that packed the hall and the Sacajawea dance hall was filled later in the evening.
Tonight a public program will be held at the Eagles hall when E. W. Bigelow will speak. The public is invited. There will also be a final dance tonight.

Praise Hospitality

Convention delegates and visitors were unanimous in their praise of La Grande hospitality. It is worthy of note that numerous comments, made from visitors on the absence of telegraph poles and wires on the main street, and the splendid street lighting system.
Priz Mayer, representing the Klamath Falls Eagles, this morning declared that his stay in La Grande had been a very enjoyable one and conveys his and fellow delegates appreciation of this city's hospitality. In the next breath, Mr. Mayer extended a cordial invitation to Eagle delegates to come to Klamath Falls next summer, where the 14th annual convention will be held.
Part of the jokes of last night's banquet had their inspiration from the Eagles golf tournament that took place Thursday evening on the La Grande course. W. S. Royal and Jesse Sapp were the winners, defeating Steve Willart and Edward Stewart, regardless of the fact that Mr. Stewart claims a strong descent from the land of the Scots.
