

WALLOWA PERSONALS

WALLOWA, Ore. (Special)—J. H. Haupt, of Evans, has been herding his band of ewes and lambs on portions of his land in the hill sections. There are still several hundred acres of farming land on his ranches which have not been sown, mercurial and here the large volunteer grain affords some excellent pasture for sheep.

H. B. Shindler and family and Mrs. Rita Roberts, of Yakima, Wash., have been in the county the last ten days visiting relatives. They left for Freewater the first of the week where they expect to visit for a few days with Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Hearing, parents of Mrs. Shindler and Mrs. Roberts, for a few days before going on home. They were accompanied home by Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hearing.

Miss Dorothy Bennett, of Lower Valley, visited several days last week with Mrs. L. W. Minor.

J. H. Fisher and family, of Hurricane creek, were Sunday visitors at the Bruce Fisher home at Leap.

Roy Gastin, who is working for Harmon Bros. of Leap, spent Sunday at home.

Mrs. Meek and sons were visitors in town the latter part of the week. Eugene Gastin returned home the first of the week from Butte-

HOOVER'S SISTER SHUNS SPOTLIGHT

In her quiet little cottage at Santa Monica, Cal., Mrs. Van Ness Leavitt, the former May Hoover, shuns the publicity and attention that the fame of her brother, Herbert, has thrust upon her. The picture below shows Herbert and May when they were about 16 years old and is taken from the family album.

prise, where he came recently with a band of sheep for L. C. Johnson. He spent about two months on Snake River during lambing season and also worked for the same man at Sled Springs during shearing.

Ann Harmon and Roy Gastin, of Leap, were visitors in town the latter part of the week. Mr. Harmon states he has just finished plowing a large tract of summerfallow, and that the ground is very dry.

Mrs. W. H. Hunter and daughter, of Lostine, were visitors in town last week.

Word was received here this week of the condition of C. F. Harmon, who is receiving medical aid in Portland. He is reported to have gained some recently, and underwent an operation for removal of his tonsils.

T. A. Hukie, of Whiskey Creek, was busy part of last week cutting his first crop of alfalfa. A few other small cuttings have been made in this community and the most of the first crops of hay are quite light. Prospects several weeks ago while the weather was warm, indicated a fairly heavy crop, however during the cool weather the growth has not been very good.

Giles Plass and wife were in town last week from their farm in the hills east of town.

The Rev. and Mrs. G. H. Fesse returned home recently from a short visit at Portland, Corvallis and other Western Oregon points. While away Mr. Fesse also attended the state grange convention held at Rainier, Ore., being a delegate from the local grange.

F. A. Downing, of Leap, was a business visitor in town the last of the week.

Doc Gastin has returned home from the Cusinus Bros. farm near Lostine. He has been engaged in seeding a crop of spring grain on some land he has leased.

Mrs. John Couch and children, of Leap, were recent visitors in town. Many persons in this community have found it necessary to plant portions of their gardens over again, due to the fact that some of the garden truck was killed down by the frost of last week.

Geo. G. Downing, who has been working with Ray Johnson's sheep on Snake river during the last several months, was a business visitor in town the last of the week.

George Cusinus and Irvin Gastin have been helping L. W. Minor plow his summerfallow during the last several days.

H. C. Hearing and wife, Mrs. John Roberts and Mrs. Meek were Sunday visitors at the L. W. Minor home.

A considerable number of the young people from the surrounding country attended the dance at the Dee Moore home on Diamond Prairie Saturday night. All reported a fine time.

THEA'S READY TO FLY HOME

NEA New York Bureau
Several Wall Street bankers, unnamed, are said to have contributed $50,000 in financing Thea Rasche's flight from New York to Berlin, which will start soon. Here is the daring German aviatrix in front of the Stinson-Detroit monoplane she will use. Inset are close-ups of Miss Rasche and Ulrich Koenemann, who will be her co-pilot and navigator.

Northampton Making Plans For Coolidge Welcome After March 4

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. (AP)—Now that it is certain the Calvin Coolidges will be moving out of the White House next March 4, their old neighbors here are looking forward to their return to the quiet life of this New England community.

It was nine years ago that they left the modest two-family home at 21 Massachusetts street—in 1919, when Mr. Coolidge became governor of Massachusetts.

During the years some of the neighbors of those days have moved away, and the young people they knew have grown so much that when Mrs. Coolidge shared a hymnbook with Charlotte Crooks at Easter services recently in the Edwards Congregational church, she did not recognize the young woman, although the Coolidge and Crook families shared the same pew for years.

Neighbors R. H. Hils, close friends of the Coolidges, still live but a few doors from 21 Massachusetts street, and Mr. and Mrs. George R. Spear, who once occupied the other half of the Coolidge house, reside close by in Elm street.

It will be easy enough for "Lawyer Coolidge," coming back to dwell in Northampton, to resume his custom of dropping casually into the Spears' front room of an evening, offering a brief but pleasant greeting, selecting a volume from the bookcase and spending a quiet hour reading before he bids the Spears goodnight, without having felt any uncomfortable obligation to keep up a conversation.

Until the republicans actually nominated another candidate, Northampton thought that Mr. Coolidge would be drafted for another term. And some still believe that the retiring president will either settle on the old family homestead at Plymouth, Vt., when he leaves office, or will go to some large city or to a college town to head a large corporation or an educational institution.

Looking Forward
But Mr. Coolidge has remarked to friends that he is looking forward to getting back to Northampton, and his associates of a decade ago will be waiting for the Coolidges with the only sort of welcome they would want. The old friends undoubtedly will give them a chance to enjoy complete privacy for a while, until they adjust themselves. Those who do not know the family will stand a little in awe of their position, and closer friends, understanding their preference for simplicity rather than ceremony will let the Coolidges choose their own manner of re-entry into Northampton life.

Ralph W. Hemenway's office on the second floor of the Masonic building still bears the firm name "Coolidge and Hemenway" on the door, and the president's former partner is entirely willing to take him back into the firm, the name of which was preserved at Mr. Coolidge's request, although the partnership was dissolved when he became president.

If Calvin Coolidge becomes a Northampton lawyer again, old friends would not be surprised to see him resume his old practice of walking the mile between his office and his home two or three times a day.

Will He Do Marketing?
Whether he would stop on the way home to do the family marketing, as he occasionally did in the past, seems more doubtful, but James Lucey, the shoemaker friend of Coolidge who treasures a letter

There is no secret reason for Lucky Strikes' superiority. Toasting, an exclusive process, completes nature's work in thoroughly maturing the finest tobacco. Because toasting drives off impurities, Luckies are universally admitted to be less irritating than any other cigarette.
