AT THE THEATERS

Lon Chaney Coming To Arcade Sunday

Lon Chaney—a paradox and a joy forever!

No one in the world can look so "hard boiled," menacing and utterly malevolent as this Lon Chaney, and no one can look so sympathetic in the very same role, as this self-same Lon. He is the enigma of the screen.

For instance, in his latest vehicle,
"The Big City," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's sensational romance of New York underworld life, playing at the Arcade theater Sunday, Chaney plays one of the most dangerous characters in the world, a New York gangster leader, and no character could be more dangerous for an actor. He has to carry the very embodiment of menace and cold-blooded peril—and still be as human as anyone else. No less than a Lon Chaney could play this complex role, and of it Chaney has made a new acting masterpiece.

He plays a gangster leader, using a cabaret as a cloak for his sinister activities, his "moll," operating a clearing house for stolen goods hidding this under the guise of a little costume shop. In this setting is introduced a little shopgirl, innocent of the true nature of the pair; to her they are good friends—and her belief in them precipitates a climax as amazing as it is heart-grIPPING.

It is a delicate romance told in a setting of night clubs and bright lights, holdups and police battles, woven into an amazing blend of thrills, surprises and romance.

Marceline Day is charming as the shopgirl, while James Murray as the young gangster who reforms through her influence to become her lover, is convincingly natural in his part. Betty Compton is an artistic success and also a treat to the eye as the bogus shopkeeper, and others adequately cast are Virginia Pearson as the night club hostess; Walter Perival, Mathew Beiz, Lew Short, John George and others. Tod Browning directed the picture skillfully from a scenario by Waldemar Young.

Fanchon and Marco Revue Here Wednesday

Youth, romance and whimsical comedy, fine direction and Lois Moran and Neil Hamilton in the featured roles all make Fox Films "Don't Marry," which opens Sunday at the Star theater, a bright, sparkling comedy-drama, suitable for the most discriminating fan.

Here is a picture that is good entertainment for the entire family, with Lois Moran in a dual role and Neil Hamilton as the man in the case. Claire McDowell and Henry Kolker also add to the picture.

The theme of the story concerns Priscilla Bowen (Lois Moran), an intriguing young flapper who falls in love with Henry Willoughby, an old-fashioned man. Undaunted, Priscilla decides to win him and poses as a shy and prudish old-fashioned girl, telling him it is her cousin who is the flapper.

The deception works, but Priscilla decides she cannot go through with the wedding until Henry knows the truth. She goes back to the modern clothes and Henry finds himself falling in love with whom he supposes is the cousin of his fiancée.
