Campfire Guardians Discuss Camp Week

A discussion of the approaching week of Campfire girl summer camps at Camp Phy, August 12-13 featured a busy session of the Campfire Guardians' last evening at the boy scout executive's office, which is to be the regular meeting place. Announcement of a new Campfire group in the city was a pleasurable part of the evening.

The resignation of Miss Myrtle Hoyt from the office of vice chairman of the association was accepted. Because of conflicting duties Miss Hoyt has been compelled to give up her campfire group. A successor guardian has not yet been secured. Mrs. George Hinkle was elected to the office of vice chairman.

MENUS

By Sister Mary
BREAKFAST—Cherries, cereal, cream, soft cooked eggs, crisp broiled bacon, oven toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Green pea soup, hot buttered rolls, cross and orange salad, baked cup custards, grape juice.

DINNER—Broiled porterhouse steak, French fried potatoes, creamed onions, lettuce, radish and green pepper salad, chilled watermelon, milk, coffee.

Always consider a custard dessert a definite part of a meal, never an accessory. And remember that the more lavish one can be in the use of eggs the more delicate and superior in flavor the custard will be. Also the more eggs the more nourishing the dessert. For this reason a custard is ideal to serve with a vegetable meal.

Green Pea Soup
One quart green peas, 2 cups milk, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon onion juice, 1 egg.

Wash peas thoroughly and shell. Put peas on to cook in cold water to cover and bring to the boiling point. Simmer for 15 minutes. Drain and use the water to cook the peas in. Cook peas until tender. Rub through a colander and add milk. Melt butter, stir in flour and onion juice and bring to the boiling point. Stir constantly. When mixture boils, remove from fire and stir in beaten egg. Serve at once.

HEALTH

INFERIORITY COMPLEX

By Alex C. Hershfield, M. D., Chicago

The term "inferiority complex" has come to be of such common use by those who do not understand its meaning that it is either a catch phrase, an insulting epithet, or a facetious application to those who disagree in an argument. In any event indiscriminate use of the term is dangerous in so far as it is damaging to the mental health of the unfortunate who has a feeling of inferiority. Pointing out the weakness often leads the sufferer to permanent despair.

The basis of the inferiority complex is nothing more than timidity and lack of self confidence to face a given situation that is more or less easily met by the normal average person. The result is an attempt to escape from the sufferer either to escape from unpleasant situations by evading them or to build up a self as a defense for inadequacy in meeting ordinary sufferings of life. Therefore, those suffering from inferiority complex are commonly bullies, boasters, or day dreamers in their wish to be conquerors, or else they pretend illness or weakness to elicit sympathy and consideration for their inadequacies. In any event we must treat these persons with the same consideration that we give any other illness, and help give them the courage they need to overcome their troubles.

This seems proper adjustment to a suitable environment, fitting the work and social conditions to the mental capabilities of the so-called "inferior" individual. It goes without saying that the physical condition of such a person needs careful medical scrutiny to find and eradicate body defects. Physical inadequacy is not infrequently the basis for a condition of inferiority complex.

JINX ON HIS TRIAL

MOUNT PLEASANT, Pa., July 10 (AP)—Ill luck today continued to pursue M. R. (Dinger) Daugherty, one-armed and legless aviator enroute from New Martinsville, W. Va., to New York, on the first leg of a trans-Atlantic hop. Attempting to take off from a field at Hecla, Daugherty's plane struck a fence and ripped off a wing. He was uninjured.

The Observer girl just called up and caught me with a big sweat up. Customers all around me and material going out. I would like to have time to tell you a little more about the 100% pure Monarch paint, but I just haven't the time to expere myself. It is hard to get my thoughts together since so many are hanging on my coat tail. I don't just mean my coat tail—the weather is too warm to wear a coat. One hundred rods of field fencing is leaving the yard, likewise 6 rolls of barb wire. We blew one of our big tires out yesterday. That is one reason why I am feeling kind of fainthearted today. Big tires cost big money. Almost as much for a little man.

Bridge Pointers

By Milton C. Work

For the sake of variety we will declare a recess for the series of bidding questions which have been appearing on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays and take up playing situations this week.

In today's hand, South is Declarer contract, one No Trump, score love-all (nothing-nothing). The hands of Dummy and Declarer are given. West leads the Queen of Clubs to the first trick and East plays the Trey. The question is how Declarer should play the play of his Closed (South) hand. Make up your mind after looking at the hands, before you read the explanation that follows.

The Correct Play

Declarer should play a small Club on trick 1; he should not win the trick. Usually there is no object in ducking the first trick when able to win it and still have the suit stopped; but in this case it is important that South should duck. He had four Clubs in his own hand and Dummy had three, a total of seven. Therefore East had one if West led from five, or two if West led from four. If South ducks the first trick and wins the second (West surely will lead a second Club), East will have no Clubs left after the second trick. When South wins the second Club trick, he will lead Diamonds and try the double finesse (i. e., lead the Nine and play small from Dummy unless West cover). If this finesse lose (putting East in the lead), East being without a Club, will be forced to lead up to either a Spade or a Heart, or Diamond up to Dummy's tenace.

Declarer must lose at least one on East every time he wins a trick

COMPETITION IN PEARLS
HOMERAY (AP)—Pearl merchants have expressed concern over the introduction of cultured pearls into world markets. Protective legislation has been sought in favor of the genuine pearls.

So today's hand shows why Declarer should plan his campaign before he rushes into what may seem to be the obvious play to the first trick.

CAIRO (AP)—Modern sports clothes are popular in Egypt, especially knitted sweaters, vests and coats. Fancy knitted vests replace coats during the winter when there is also a demand for knitted scarfs.

It is not enough to teach children restraint in the use of money; which lessons alone would tend to develop a generation of misers. The possession of money entails real responsibility. Children must learn that money represents effort, strength, and a portion of the life of the person who earned it. They must be taught that money should be used to obtain values at least equal to the effort of earning. They need also to realize that it should provide not only for personal and family necessities, but for the needs of others, and for civic development.
