When the American Olympic Team Was Chosen

No one need worry about the strength of the American Olympic track and field squad. Sensational performances in all events of the Olympic program during the final trials for the team held at Boston recently furnished enough assurance that the Americans will be the outstanding favorites at Amsterdam this summer.

Here are the first photographs of the final trials at Boston.

Frank Wykoff, the sensational sprinter from Glendale, Cal., who ran four qualifying heats in the 110-meter event in Olympic record time of 10 3-5 seconds, is shown in the upper left photograph. The sprinters in the photograph, reading left to right, are Russell (who finished third), Bracey (who finished fourth), Wykoff, McAllister (who finished second), and Quinn.

A unique finish of the finals of the 110-meter hurdles is shown below the sprint finish. Ross Nichols of Stanford, who failed to make the team even though he ran a qualifying heat in world's record time, was leading up to the last jump, where he tripped. He is shown here as he pitched to the ground. Anderson of Washington won this event.

The outstanding performance of the final trials was the leap of Ed Hamm of Georgia Tech, in the broad jump. He set a new world's record. His distance was 25 feet 11⅝ inches. Hamm is shown in the center, up in the air, every muscle strained as he made his record-breaking jump.

Lloyd Hahn, the Nebraska flyer, also established a new world's record in the 880-meter event. Hahn ran this distance in 1:52 2-5. He is shown at the top, right, at the finish of his run.

At the extreme right Sabin Carr, soaring over the top to qualify as one of the American pole vaulters to go to Amsterdam, is shown.

Whenever the Cardinals set themselves for a leap into a long lead and a merry laugh at their field, something always seems to happen. It remains a good bet that the eagerly-sought mathematical certainly will be reached in both Major circuits about mid-September, but this National league race has a way of hanging on.

Fresh from three beatings in Pittsburg, the runner-up Giants sailed into St. Louis and won the first game of four 6 to 4.

Cincinnati slid back into third place yesterday by losing to the Robins, 4 to 3.

The Cubs took another from the Braves, 4 to 2, and the Pirates nosed out the Phillies, 3 to 1, in a game which Donie Bush considered serious enough to warrant the use of two pitchers—Brame and Hill.

Yanks Break Even

The American league race continued at the even pace into which it settled some ten days ago when the Yankees decided to loiter along for a while until more strenuous efforts seemed to be necessary. The champions got another even break, losing the first to the Tigers, 4 to 2, as Ken Holloway and Elam Vangilder outpitched George Pipgras and Wilcy Moore, and winning the second, 6 to 5.

Waite Hoyt won his twelfth game of the season in the second engagement, but Herb Pennock had to rush to the box in the ninth to put down a Detroit uprising which all but tied the score.

The Athletics got only an even break against the White Sox, and failed to gain—while the Red Sox and the Indians won close games from the Browns and the Senators. Slim Harris turned in his best effort of the season to trim Dan Howley's crew, 4 to 2, while Reeves' third error enabled Hudlin to shade Hadley in a nip-and-tuck duel at Washington 2 to 1.

America's Best Men and Women Athletes En Route for Amsterdam

By Alan J. Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK (AP) — Another athletic argosy set forth July 11 with flags waving and spirits high aboard the S. S. President Roosevelt; in many respects the most formidable boatload of talent America has ever sent out in quest of Olympic honors.

It is also probably the best organized athletic expedition ever to leave Yankee shores, guided, as it is, by a soldier returning to Europe on peaceful mission — Major General Douglas MacArthur—and accompanied by such able figures in American athletics as Murray Hulbert, president of the Amateur Athletic Union; Gustavus T. Kirby, former head of the Olympic Committee; Frederick W. Rubien, secretary-treasurer of the outfit; and a staff of coaches headed by Lawson Robertson, chief of the track and field forces.

New Leadership

This year's Olympic campaign is under new leadership, for General MacArthur has taken over the presidency of the Olympic Committee in succession to the veteran Col. Robert M. Thompson, while Mr. Hulbert, head of the A. A. U. forces, has taken the place of the late William C. Prout. The latter died while in the midst of organizing the Olympic work.

The chartered voyage of the President Roosevelt has contrast as well as similarity with former Olympic argosies. Like the trip to Stockholm in 1912, the ship will also serve as living quarters for the main body of athletes while they are in Amsterdam for the international competition.

Nine-Day Trip

Unlike the voyage of 1906 to Athens, which took a stormy three weeks, the Roosevelt will dock at Amsterdam, it is expected, in nine days, to give the athletes time to shake off their sea-legs. The big competition starts July 29.

The athletes, cream of the crop in a dozen branches of sport and gathered from all over the country, have been provided with every facility for comfort and activity while sailing across. They are travelling first class; in fact they have been given the preference over all other members of the party, officials and others, in the allotment of accommodations. Formerly the athletes have had to take what they could get.

"Our policy this time has been to favor the athletes in every respect," Gen. MacArthur declared in pronouncing the committee's policy. "They are the ones who have the big jobs to do and we felt that they should have first consideration."

So it is a stylish as well as a hopeful outfit that sallies forth to meet the world's athletic best in everything from track, rowing, swimming, boxing and wrestling to weight-lifting, fencing, yachting, shooting and gymnastics.

The biggest problem, perhaps, is as good condition as possible on the way over so that they will not lose all the edge of their form in the final tryouts. It is here that Lawson Robertson and his corps of aides have their biggest job in hand but they expect to keep their charges active enough so that it will not take many days off the ship, to get them back in top form.

Tank For Swimmers

The swimmers will have their improvised tank, the boxers and the wrestlers their ring and mats, the fencers their strips and the gymnasts their ropes on which to exercise, but there isn't much hope for the runners who want a two or three mile workout. More harm than good has come from running around the decks and it is safe to say the coaches will take no unnecessary risks of injury or pulled muscles.

The trip over will furnish plenty of mental activity for the strategists and coaches, who will be able to map out their plans in the light of performances in the tryouts. This will be carefully done for the final American entries must be radioed to Amsterdam the day before the Roosevelt is scheduled to dock. There will be no opportunity for changes or revision after the boys disembark.

American Athletes Taking It Easy

ABOARD S. S. PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, July 12 (AP)—A great calm has settled over America's Olympic team. After the noise and excitement of sailing and, for many, the thrill of their first time on an ocean liner, the 268 athletes who hope to bring back to America a large part of the Olympic laurel wreaths have dropped peacefully into shipboard routine and have begun to obey the first order of their coaches and trainers—to rest.

Relaxation is the principal prescription for the first few days. Many of the track and field stars who competed in the final tryouts under the broiling sun at Cambridge are underweight as a result. On this list are all four men who will compete in the decathlon. An aggregate of 50 pounds was lost by the all-around performers in their gruelling two-day test.

Robertson plans to start exercise for most of his track squad tomorrow but the workouts will be stationary.

Morgan-Martin Go Again Postponed

NEW YORK, July 12 (AP)—A shower last night forced the fourth postponement of the battle for the junior lightweight championship between Tod Morgan, of Seattle, and Cannonball Eddie Martin, New York challenger. Weather permitting, the fight will be at Ebbetts field tomorrow night.

The ordinarily mild mannered bat of Ray French, Sacramento shortstop, went a-homing against the Seals with the result that the Solons won a 3 to 2 decision in 15 innings.

With Hughes pitching steady ball, the Missions evened the Portland series at one all by trimming the Beavers 9 to 5.

Oakland suddenly reverted to last year's championship form and swamped Los Angeles under 20 to 1 score. In the fourth inning the Oaks scored 13 runs on 11 hits.

Inability to hit in pinches cost Seattle a 5 to 2 defeat from Hollywood. The Indians got their men on the bags, but were unable to push them across the plate.

Heeney Working Under Glare of Powerful Lights

FAIR HAVEN, N. J., July 12 (AP)—If Tom Heeney fails in his attempt to lift Gene Tunney's heavyweight crown in their battle at the Yankee stadium July 26, it won't be because he is not used to ring conditions. Tom starts tonight to get used to the conditions he will encounter at the stadium by performing his daily boxing stunt at night under the glare of powerful lights. He does not have an outdoor ring, but the big barn in which "Honest Tom" has pitched his ring is the next best thing.

The Irishman from the antipodes got a taste of the kind of boxing the champion will offer him in his last daylight workout yesterday when he went one fast round with Armand Emanuel, the young California sensation.

TUNNEY WAINS ON MILK

SPECULATOR, N. Y., July 12 (AP) — Generous doses of milk have kept Gene Tunney from training down too fine for the defense of his title against Tom Heeney at the Yankee stadium July 26.

Although the champion still has two weeks of work, he is now just short of the peak of condition. He weights 197 pounds, and after a hard workout he is five pounds lighter, the exact weight he intends to carry when he faces Heeney.

Tunney restores the five pounds he loses in the ring every day by drinking three pints of milk after each session. He does not intend to let his poundage drop until the eve of the title bouts. He has already reached the point where he must reduce his roadwork. Yesterday he ran only four and one-half miles.

OLYMPIC HOPES

ED HAMM

One of the best Olympic prospects the south has this year is Ed Hamm, the Georgia Tech broad jumper, who has been credited with several leaps of 25 feet. At Boston Saturday he nearly equaled 26 feet. He came into prominence last year when he won this event at both the Penn Relays and the national intercollegiates. He has added distance to his leaps in meets this year, climaxing the season with a leap of 25 feet to again win broad jump honors at the national intercollegiates. The Georgian won a berth on the Olympic squad in the face of stern competition from DeHart Hubbard, Al Bates, Dyer and other excellent broad jumpers.

No. 1 . . . . out at first
No. 2 . . this one 'fanned'
No. 3 . . out on a pop fly
No. 4 (OLD GOLD) a home run hit!
