A big Irishman, who had evidently been drinking, arose in a street car and gave the bell attendant a sharp pull. The conductor exclaimed angrily, "Here, don't do that. You are ringing the bell at both ends of the car."

"That's all right. Bedad (hie), an' I want both ends of the car to stop!"

One-third of life is spent in bed and two-thirds of it is spent in bed.

VACATION HINTS—What to do when you take your vacation. (as suggested in the columns.)

Use the telephone. Keep in touch with the telephone.

Buy unbreakable dishes. Buy dishes that may be used but once, then discard.

Don't dress in khaki, it is too warm. Purchase a complete outfit for camping.

Travel light, don't take much equipment. Subscribe for the home town paper.

(Note: You can't go wrong by heeding the latter injunction, at any rate.)

EDITORIALS—The prize ring is no place for the slow-poke. The prohibition law has teeth in it, we are told. Yes, but they require too much gold filling.

The fashion editor says that extreme latitude is now allowed in skirts. How about the longitude? While there may be no saturation point in the automobile market, it has been seen in some drivers.

A handkerchief belonging to William Penn has been found. Undoubtedly the original pen wiper.

AT THE THEATERS

Gloria Swanson At Arcade in "Sadie Thompson"

Gloria Swanson, world-famous film star.

Raoul Walsh, director. W. Somerset Maugham, celebrated English novelist and playwright.

Lionel Barrymore, Blanche Friederici, Charles Lane, Will Stanton, Florence Midgley and James A. Marcus are in cast.

A story drenched with the lure of the tropics, filled with love interest, drama, sublime happiness and human suffering.

These are the high-lights of "Sadie Thompson." Gloria Swanson's second independent picture for United Artists, which is now showing at the Arcade theater.

Taking its title from the name of the heroine, "Sadie Thompson" was adapted from W. Somerset Maugham's widely read South Seas story, "Miss Thompson"—the story of an amazing conflict between an outcast of San Francisco's underworld and a reformer who seeks to remold her life more nearly in keeping with his own ideas.

It is a tale of simple desires and selfish ambitions, breath-taking in its emotional intensity and startling in its climax. Its characters are flesh-and-blood personalities whose joys and sorrows and weaknesses and ideals come within the understanding of everyday folk everywhere.

Miss Swanson plays "Sadie Thompson," the pathetic outcast who is plunged to the depths of misery through the influence of the despotic reformer, "Alfred Atkinson." During the production the producer-star repeatedly remarked that she had never played a character which held her interest so closely, nor one the spirit and "feeling" of which she could enter into with such complete abandon.

Raoul Walsh, the director of "What Price Glory" and "Loves of Carmen" was chosen to direct Miss Swanson's picture because it is the sort of screen material with which he is at his best.

Lionel Barrymore, who has to his credit a long list of outstanding stage and screen portrayals, was chosen to play the part of "Alfred Atkinson," the tyrannical reformer, who eventually finds himself torn between devotion to duty and human desire and surrenders to the latter.

Blanche Friederici, who was signed to play "Mrs. Atkinson," had long dreamed of the role because of a record run in the part on the speaking stage.

The eternal three, one of the ever present situations in life, has been given a novel treatment in "Homestruck," an FRO production starring Viola Dana which is now showing at the Star theater. This time it is a girl and two men; one shares her theatrical profession and dreams of the day when she will be a star, while the other man wants to take her far away from her old life to a house where she will settle down to domestic bliss.

However, the actress has a decided preference, both for the men and for her future occupation, and after she has made her choice, the "other man" is left to reconcile himself to his fate. The events from then on are a great surprise, and the refreshing angle introduced in the story is a tremendously human and understandable one. This excellent theme, so rich in characterization, has been given to a master director, Ralph Ince, to weave into a screen presentation. He has been given further splendid material by the cast which was chosen for it includes such well known players as Alan Brooks, Tom Gallery, Nigel Barrie, George Irving and Charles Howard, Peter Milne is the author of the story and Ewart Adamson wrote the continuity.

After 48 years on the ocean which he was reluctant to leave, Sir James was stricken with a fatal illness on his last voyage on the Aquitania prior to retirement, formally on August 2, his 61st birthday. He died soon after the liner docked here.

Passengers said today that on his last voyage the Captain showed signs of emotion and distress. Whether this was an emotional struggle between the prospect of rest and attachment to the long career on the sea, they were unable to say.

COMMODORE MAKES LAST OCEAN TRIP

SAUTHAMPTON, Eng., July 16 (AP)—Blue water fever or an ex-sailor's longing for the sea, never will be experienced by Sir James Charles, commodore of the Canadian fleet, who made 724 transatlantic voyages.

After 48 years on the ocean which he was reluctant to leave, Sir James was stricken with a fatal illness on his last voyage on the Aquitania prior to retirement, formally on August 2, his 61st birthday. He died soon after the liner docked here.
