Whether it's because of psychology, the law of averages, luck or what have you, the Chicago White Sox are playing winning ball under the management of Blackburne.

Since Blackburne took over the reins on July 5, the day after Ray Schalk resigned as manager, the Sox have turned in nine victories in 12 starts. Bulking heavily in this reversal of form has been the return to effectiveness of the pitching staff, which on paper at least rates at or near a parity with any in the American league.

For the second time in two playing days, the pale hose took over both ends of a double header with the Boston Red Sox, yesterday, 4 to 0, and 9 to 1.

Yanks Take Two

The New York Yankees demonstrated that they've recovered from their recent slump by taking their second consecutive double-header from the Cleveland Indians, 7 to 3 and 6 to 2.

Babe Ruth hit his 35th homer of the year in the third inning of the opener and now stands 22 games, 20 days and five home runs ahead of his 1927 schedule.

The Philadelphia Athletics dropped further back in the race when they gained no better than an even break in two games with the Detroit Tigers. Jack Quinn, veteran of Connie Mack's firing squad, registered his 12th victory of the season in the first struggle, 3 to 2. George Earnshaw had the second in his pocket until the eighth inning when the Tigers hammered him out of the box, the second game ending 11-6.

Gets 11th Win

Alvin Crowder hung up his 11th win against a single defeat as the St. Louis Browns romped off with a 4 to 2 decision over the Washington Senators.

Winning and losing streaks have become the fashion in the National league.

Behind steady pitching by Ray Kremer and with the aid of some heavy cannonading by George Grantham and Paul Waner, the pirates turned back the Braves 8 to 3.

The Cubs pounded four Phil pitchers into a 10 to 5 defeat at Chicago. Sheriff Blake shut out the cellar-occupants until the eighth when he eased up.

Cardinals Victorious

The St. Louis Cardinals, smarting under two straight setbacks by Brooklyn, nosed out the Dodgers in the third game of the series, 7 to 6.

The New York Giants made it three in a row over the Cincinnati Reds, two singles and a sacrifice in the tenth inning turning the trick, 3 to 2.

Feeble-Minded And Epileptics Are Decreasing

WASHINGTON, July 17 — The department of commerce makes the following announcement for the state of Oregon concerning results of the 1927 census of feeble-minded and epileptics in state institutions.

The state institution for feeble-minded had a total of 76 first admissions during the year 1927, as compared with 131 in 1926, and 167 in 1922.

These first admissions represent patients received during the year, who had not previously been under treatment in any institution for feeble-minded and epileptics. Such newly admitted patients afford the best available measure of the number of new cases which are brought under institutional care during the year.

The decrease in the number of first admissions in Oregon between 1922 and 1927 represents a still larger decrease, relative to the population of the state, as shown by the fact that the first admissions in 1927 numbered 8.5 per 100,000 of population, as compared with 14.9 per 100,000 for 1926, and 19.8 for 1922.

GENE THROUGH WITH MOST OF TRAINING WORK

SPECULATOR, N. Y., July 17 (AP)—After a 24-hour rest from all ring work, Gene Tunney decided to renew exchanging blows with his sparring partners today to fit himself for his world's heavyweight title bout against Tom Heeney on July 26.

After today, Gene will box but four times before he enters the Yankee Stadium ring nine days hence. Besides swapping punches with Harold Mays and Billy Vidabeck, the Bayonne, N. J., heavyweight, Gene mapped out a program which included a long stretch of road work and a strenuous session with the punching bag and heavy body sack.

Conclusive evidence that the champion has entered the last stages of his training came when a specimen of special meat, which will be cut into steaks and chops, arrived from a New York restaurant. All through his boxing career Tunney has wound up the campaigns for his major bouts by consuming great quantities of these high grade provisions. Heretofore, milk, fruit and vegetables have been the champion's favorite favorite viands, meat having only a small part in the Tunney meal. The champion is and always has been extremely careful of his eating but at certain times he believes that the consumption of meat creates an energy which he turns into speed and power, two of the qualifications he will need to turn back the powerful New Zealand blacksmith and thus retain his heavyweight crown.

LATZO LOSES TO TOMMY LOUGHRAN

Philadelphia Youngster Wins Five Out of 10 Rounds to Hold Title

By Edward J. Neil
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 17 (AP)—Pudgy Pete Latzo, brown skinned Slav who once mined for coal in these Pocono mountains, was just a good, game fighter today while Tommy Loughran, handsome Philadelphia youngster, still was the light heavyweight champion of the world.

For the second time in seven weeks, Latzo, pride of the miners he once labored beside, battered and slugged last night at the superb technique and boxing skill of the master of the 175-pounders—and for the second time received nothing but a bloody nose and the short end of the purse for his pains.

Loughran's Heart Wins

In the heart of the Anthracite section that knew him first as a breaker boy in the collieries, next as a full-fledged miner, then as a boxer and finally the welterweight champion of the world, Latzo struggled with every ounce of the strength in his rugged body, now grown to the full stature of a light heavyweight, to win a second title, but the master, Loughran, badly shaken though he was at times, with blood streaming from cuts in his right eye and cheek, always was able to muster the final ounce of class and stamina that marks the true champion.

Therein lay the story of Latzo's defeat and victory for the statuesque Loughran after one of the most bruising battle the rugged miners of this section, tough and iron-listed enough in their own private melees, ever have seen.

Just as Pete failed in the National league ball park of the Brooklyn Dodgers last May 30th to lift Loughran's crown through sheer gameness and rugged punching power, so did he last night stumble again through lack of that final measure of ring class and generalship when the title was well within his grasp.

Faced by a cutting left jab that lingered always in his features, stabbing him off balance, bringing his staunchest drives up short, Latzo battered through Loughran's guard in the third and fourth rounds to split Tommy's left eyebrow and stain the champion's face with a mask of red.

Pete almost smashed the champion to the floor in the fourth round.

But there his attack faltered. Casey, content to save his strength even when the going was hottest, Loughran steadily fought his own fight, piled up points, and had enough of a margin at the close of the tenth session to win the verdict despite Latzo's fierce rally that won the ninth and tenth rounds. The champion was the better in five rounds, Latzo in four and one was even.

The crowd that braved a late afternoon rain and the mists of the evening in the hope of seeing Latzo win the light heavyweight championship just as he toppled Mickey Walker from the welterweight throne in Scranton two years ago, booed the decision, but the band Loughran's friends brought from Philadelphia, blaring full strength, turned the uproar into a demonstration for the champion.

The match drew $60,000, Promoter Morgan Bird estimated. Loughran got $25,000, Latzo $7,500.

Olympic Track And Field Team Finally Upheld

By Alan J. Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

S. S. PRESIDENT ROOSSEVELT EN ROUTE TO AMSTERDAM, July 17 (AP) — The American Olympic track and field team, as selected after the final trials at Cambridge and Philadelphia, will be centered in the international games at Amsterdam without any additions or subtractions.

This was definitely determined when the Olympic committee rejected an appeal from the New York A. C. that Pat Elkins, all around athlete who first gained fame at the University of Nebraska be included on the American decathlon squad.

Elkins was forced out of the final trials in the decathlon when he pulled a tendon in his leg. Feeling that the Indian could not recover in time to compete at Amsterdam, the Olympic selection committee left him off the squad of four which will represent America in the ten-event test at Amsterdam. The team sailed without him but the New York A. C. entered a protest by radio declaring that Elkins had recovered and should be included on the team. Major General Douglas MacArthur, chairman of the Olympic committee, ordered Elkins to make a test of his fitness in several events. If a report on his performances was favorable MacArthur said, his appeal would be considered.

The Indian made the test Sunday before he sailed for Europe early yesterday. He ran the 100 meters in 12 4-5 seconds and broad jumped 18 feet 4 inches. In form, he has run the dash in a fraction over 11 seconds and he has broad jumped over 23 feet.

Taking these facts into consideration, the Olympic committee announced that the tests had conclusively demonstrated that Elkins had not recovered and would be of little value at Amsterdam.

HEENEY WILL RESUME RING WORK IN DAY

FAIRHAVEN, N. J., July 17 (AP)—Tom Heeney slid back into the serious grind of grinds today, after a day's layoff, returning to the practice of working out in the afternoon instead of the cool of the evening.

Boxing at night, Heeney found, disrupted his entire program, particularly his sleep, he did not get into bed until midnight or later with a result he did not get his required amount of sleep. He prefers working out at night, because the oppressive heat of mid-afternoon takes a lot out of him but he figures he needs to get into bed earlier.

"Night training did not get me into bed until nearly midnight," Heeney explained, "and I was so exhausted that it took me an hour or so to fall to sleep, I would like to keep on training in the evening, with a nice breeze blowing out there in the open field, but I can't sacrifice my rest."

Heeney starts his final week of training with no sign of mental or physical fatigue and with enough excess weight to withstand the rigors of the stretch drive. He weighs about 203 pounds at present and plans to bring his weight down gradually so he will enter the ring for his title match with Gene Tunney a week from Thursday weighing about 195 or 196 pounds.

Fidel La Barba To Try Regaining His Ring Crown

By V. G. SIDLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

LOS ANGELES, July 17 (AP)—Watching from a ringside seat pulled upon Fidel La Barba, the little curley-haired Los Angeles Italian who ruled the flyweight division from 1925 to 1927, and now he is back from retirement seeking title recognition as a bantam weight.

Out of the ring a little over a year, La Barba went to college for a time, was married and, 'tis said, spent a goodly share of the money he piled up in the two years he was king of the flyweights.

Two bouts—difficult ones they seem for comeback tests — will place La Barba, if he is successful in them, on the right road to the bantamweight throne.

Huerta Evans, scrappy Los Angeles youngster, will furnish the fistic hurdle for the 22-year-old first fistic hurdle for the 22-year-old ex-champion. It is scheduled for tonight in the Olympic auditorium, Los Angeles. If he is victorious La Barba will encounter here, the night of August 1, Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Ind., who until recently held the goodwill of the National Boxing association as kingpin of the 118-pounders.

It is the consensus that La Barba will find the bantamweight trail less difficult than the road he trudged as a 112 pounder. Then it was always a battle to keep down to flyweight poundage. Now, he is expected to make the needed weight with ease. His first two trials, however, will be above the bantamweight limit, the articles for the Evans fight stating he must make 123 pounds, and those for the Taylor scrap 122 pounds.

STORK ARRIVES

After yesterday's double victory over Boston, they were notified that each was the parent of a girl. Miss Hunnefield is but three hours older than Miss Blankenship.

HOLIDAY CROWDS ESCAPE DEATH IN TRAIN CRASH

A trainload of holiday pleasure seekers escaped death on July 4th when the crack Shoreline Limited of the Southern Pacific Co. crashed into a fruit train in the Bayshore yards at San Francisco. The Limited had just emerged from the Visitacion Valley tunnel when the freight train loomed up 200 yards ahead. The upper photo shows part of the wreckage. The arrow shows how the steel baggage coach of the Limited cut through one of the apricot cars in the freight train. Fruit is scattered over the freight yards. The first passenger coach, which had its front trucks sheared off, is shown at the right. Below is a general view of the wreckage. The Limited's engine is shown on its side at the right. Scores of persons were bruised and cut by flying glass when the trains collided. The Shoreline Limited had just left San Francisco on its daily run to Los Angeles.
