OFFICE CAT

A little fellow was learning from his aunt about Grant, Lee, and other famous leaders of the Civil war.

"Is that the same Grant we pray to in church?" he inquired innocently.

"No, I'm not," said the aunt, "for during service we always say, 'Grant, we beseech Thee, to hear us.'"

A wide-awake young man who had just arrived at the summer hotel sought out the proprietor and said: "I notice a sign up which reads: 'Guests will please exercise patients until the meals are served.'"

"Yes, sir," said the proprietor. "Well, if that pretty, but pale-looking girl over there is one of your patients, I will gladly take her for a walk along the beach."

"I lifted a 200-pound dumbbell yesterday."

"Zatso? What's her name?"

AT THE THEATERS

Thomas Meighan, filmstar's popular Irish star, is presented in the most logical and picturesque role of his screen career in "The Racket," thrilling underworld melodrama which is now playing at the Arcade theater. Meighan has drawn what is known in film circles as a "natural" in his role of Captain McQuig, hard-boiled metropolitan police captain.

Meighan, with his magnetic Irish personality, has a ready-made role in Captain McQuig, and the noted star has made the most of his opportunity. With one of the finest and most realistic underworld stories ever written, and supported by the greatest cast ever assembled for a Meighan picture, the popular actor is ascending heights of stardom unscathed in the past, with his latest characterization.

Meighan has injected the enthusiasm of his own personality into his part of officer investigation in "The Racket." "I am more enthusiastic over 'The Racket' than anything I have done in years," he declared when the picture was completed. "I consider it an ideal vehicle, and the part of Captain McQuig is the finest role I have had in years."

"The Racket" is a thrilling tale of gang warfare, political corruption and bootlegging. The story play written by Herbert Carmack, former newspaperman, played to packed Broadway houses for months. The story is based on first hand knowledge of crook-controlled conditions in a modern metropolitan center, and Carmack went to Hollywood to write the screen treatment of the stage presentation.

Meighan is fully police trained and at the command to kill will leap valiantly at the throat of the man indicated by his trainer. "So the dog command does not mean to feign an attack. Flash takes the order literally and, if allowed to, would mutilate the throat of the actor within a half minute.

Fairbanks plays the part of an officer who is brutal to the dogs of war and Flash was convinced the first time he appeared in a scene with him that the actor was really his enemy. To let him make friends with Fairbanks and understand that he was only acting would have spoiled the entire effect of the scene on the screen.

In some scenes made, Flash was given the order to kill and it took the combined strength of four husky men to hold the dog back when he leaped at Fairbanks' throat.

The dog stands more than three feet high and weighs more than a hundred pounds. Tests of his ability to battle human criminals have proved that Flash can reach a man 30 feet away and take a pistol from him before the man can get it from his pocket and fire.

Alberta Vaughn In "Sinews of Steel"

Fiery furnace, smoking chimneys, clanking forges—all the atmosphere of the big steel mills—set in this titanic background we have a slender girl—fighting desperately to save the business her father had shaved so hard to build up.

That's the atmosphere of "Sinews of Steel," now at the Colonial theater.

Alberta Vaughn is the girl, Gaston Glass is the boy who comes to her aid and Anders Randolph is the powerful, scheming head of the big steel combine which is slowly erasing his last competitor.

There's drama, comedy and some very good acting in this latest Gotham production directed by Frank O'Connor—see it by all means.

There is no business that appeals so much to the imagination as the steel business. The gigantic machinery, the inferno of the flaming furnaces and the general background are ideal for drama.

The producers of "Sinews of Steel" have taken advantage of this and present a modern drama of industry that is quite plausible and quite exciting.

Alberta Vaughn steps from the realms of comedy into drama and plays the role of a girl who tries to fight a big steel combine.

CALAIS (AP)—A seaplane base for passenger and freight service to England has been established here. Seven airplane lines will make use of the flying base, providing communication with the larger cities of England, France and North Africa. Dog Star Is Coming to Star Saturday

It takes nerve to act within a yard of an enormous police dog who has the order from his master to kill the actor.

That is what William Fairbanks did every day at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, when he played the role of a brutal German army officer in "Under the Black Flag," the initial starring vehicle for Flash, the new police dog star which is presented to the screen in a story of dog heroism at the scene during the World war. It comes to the Star theater Saturday.

Flash is fully police trained and at the command to kill will leap valiantly at the throat of the man indicated by his trainer. "So the dog command does not mean to feign an attack. Flash takes the order literally and, if allowed to, would mutilate the throat of the actor within a half minute.
