AT THE THEATERS

Reginald Denny Scores Again At The Star

In "That's My Daddy," which is now playing at the Star theater is offering the ultimate triumph of wholesome screen comedy.

The story was written by Reginald Denny who stars in this Universal farce, and who also wrote his previous success "Fast and Furious."

Fred Newmeyer, the man who directed Harold Lloyd for three years came directly from the Lloyd organization to direct Denny.

"That's My Daddy" is an unusual picture, being in many ways a departure from the farcial subjects in which Denny has made his name and fortune. For screaming situations the film is unsurpassed, there are spots where the comicalities become convulsive. But added to all this is a touch of child pathos injected by the remarkable acting of Jane La Verne, a baby prodigy recently discovered by Reginald Denny himself.

The cast of this picture is exceptional with Barbara Kent, Wampas Star of 1927, playing the feminine lead and Lillian Rich, well known leading woman, playing the second lead.

Others in the cast are Tom O'Brien, Jane La Verne, Mathilde Brundage, Wilson Benge, Armand Kaliz, Charles Coleman and Art Currier.

The story concerns the little girl befriended by Denny and is featured by a gorgeous wedding on board a palatial private yacht.

Louise Fazenda At Arcade Today

The Ballard twins, Jim and Horace, are quite as inseparable, metaphorically, if not physically, as the Siamese twins. Jimmy is sedate and a pillar of society, properly married to a butterfly girl, known as Grace, who relieves the tedium of married life by her association with young Meredith Roberts, a modern sheik.

Up-to-the-minute Horace, as like Jimmie as one pea in a pod is like another, is married to Carrie, strong minded feminist, a star on the public lecture platform. It is while Carrie is abroad on oratory bent, that Horace makes the acquaintance of Miss Lola, frizzed and giggling charmer. His entertainment takes the form of a joy-ride, which is rudely interrupted by the cops.

It is when he and Lola are locked up for five days that Horace calls up Jimmie, begging him to take his place and to hide from Carrie of the strong arm his absence. Jimmie becomes Horace. Unable to escape from her he is compelled to stay. Horace, returning from his supposed busines trip, goes to Jimmie's house and is taken in hand by Grace, who believes him to be the meek Jimmie.

Now the "best laid schemes of mice and men" are apt to go unexpectedly awry. They do go awry in the case of the unfortunate Bullard twins. The scrambled wives begin to scent trouble. They begin to look into things on their own and the chances of triumph for Lola, who is innocent of all knowledge of the turn of affairs, begin to diminish.

Clyde Cook, as the two brothers is unutterably ludicrous and Louise Fazenda has a chance to exert her antic genius as never before. "Domestic Troubles" is good for those who have domestic troubles of their own, and for those who have not—good in fact for any one with a sense of humor. It is one of the most uproariously funny pictures of the generation. Go to the Arcade and be convinced.

Divorce Spreading Rapidly in Germany

BERLIN, July 23 (AP)—Divorce in Germany has been rapidly increasing and the proponents of easy separation are getting ready to strike a decisive blow for a liberalization of the divorce laws.

Fifteen divorce courts in Berlin are swamped with applications and it is estimated that 30,000 marriages have been annulled during the past year in the capital alone.

A big public utilities company has been fighting public ownership ideas by issuing parodies of well-known songs. We are expecting to hear something like "Bye Bye Dividends," or "It Ain't Gonna Pay No More."

HEALTH

TREATING SNAKE BITES

By U. S. Public Health Service.

WASHINGTON (AP)—While recent experiments in the removal of snake venom by suction with a rubber bulb and inverted glass device have been successful, this treatment is not yet generally available. A snake bite is usually on the lower part of the limb and a band made of a handkerchief, necktie or similar article should be instantly applied and tightly twisted with a stick to shut off the circulation and to keep the poison from being carried into the system.

The wound should be incised with a knife and then sucked. The wound next should be cauterized. This is done by applying carbolic acid or nitric acid on the end of a small stick. When such chemicals cannot be obtained, cauterization may be performed by heating a nail, knife blade or other metallic object in fire and freely burning all parts of the wound.

After the wound has been cauterized so as to destroy as much of the poison as possible, the tourniquet may be loosened. When one minute elapses it should be tightened up again. After 20 minutes, if no alarming symptoms develop, it is again released, this time for two minutes and again tightened. Another 20 minutes is allowed to elapse and the tourniquet is left off for three minutes. This procedure is continued for several hours, gradually increasing the time the tourniquet is off, the purpose being to allow only small quantities of the poison to enter the system at one time.

If in spite of the local treatment, general symptoms develop, the patient must be given stimulants. It is commonly believed that large doses of whisky or alcohol in some form should be administered. This is a mistake, as large dose will do harm by adding another depressant to that which is already in the system. Instead of whisky it is better to give aromatic spirits of ammonia, one-half teaspoonful in water every hour and a half cupful of very strong coffee every two hours.

Time may be saved by boiling potatoes with the peel on and putting them through the ricer. The peels will remain in the ricer and all the potato can be forced through.
