UNQUENCHABLE JOY—Therefore the redemption of the Lord shall return, and come with singing into Zion, and everlastingly joy shall obtain gladness and joy, and sorrow and mourning shall flee away.—Isa. 35:10

Philadelphia boy 14 years old held by police for "attempting to incite riot." Haven't kids any rights any more?

Oregon's initiative plan of legislation is certainly getting the collective "raspberry" since the two Dunne bills have been repudiated and the river restriction bills have had a little publicity. Maybe the state will remedy the initiative now.

One thing that worries a wage earner, or anybody enjoying a living income, is why the man with a three-thousand dollar income or less is singled out as exempt from paying anything in the support of government, while the man who makes more must pay. Do you suppose someone will really submit an income tax some day that is 100 per cent fair, taxing the man with an income of ten dollars as well as the man with ten million?

Conversation about a new court house very frequently turns to the question of available sites. That's natural, but it is our opinion that the arguments for and against various possible sites should be left until the people of the county decide whether or not they want the new building. We imagine that is a matter best left to the discretion of the county court. We are willing to trust their business judgment when the necessity arises.

Our editorial last night on the court house situation, in which we argued that repairing the old building would be false economy was misinterpreted by at least one reader. As we had previously said editorially, we thoroughly agree with Judge Couch and the county commissioners in their decision to put a new roof on the old building to protect it from further deterioration from the weather. We also agree with them that no additional repairing should be done beyond the new roof, pending the decision of Union county voters on the question of a new court house at the November election. Yesterday's editorial dealt with the problem after the new roof had been put on, and expressed ourselves as opposed to completely repairing the old structure for continued and permanent use as a court house.

PAST AND FUTURE

While one great expedition is starting for the Antarctic in quest of useful information regarding that unknown region, another is returning from Mongolia laden with rich finds. It is hard to say which may prove to be of more interest and value to civilized man—the Byrd expedition, or that headed by Roy Chapman Andrews. The Antarctic quest seems more practical. But the merely instructive and theoretical quest has its value, too, and often turns out to be of practical use.

The study of prehistoric relics contained in those 80 packing cases full of fossils may give mankind an entirely new view of its origin and development. It may change the written history of the race. It may show unexpected relationships of the various human races, and of man to animal creation. It looks now as if Mongolia were really the "cradle of the race", and human origin seems to be carried back to an incredibly remote era.

Whatever affects man's knowledge of himself affects his destiny. Here, in two famous quests for knowledge, man looks both ways—into the remote past, when what is now a barren desert was filled with youthful life, and into the remote future, when the life of the earth, growing more aged, may utilize regions that are now frozen wastes.

Past and future both meet in the present, which is the really important thing. Action is only possible in what Carlyle called "the eternal Now." Knowing the past, and looking ahead, thinking man charts a course into the future. Most of us, however, get more thrill out of the adventure than out of the information.

PEACHES CENTER OF ATTENTION

Healthy Condition Noted in Apple Division on Portland Market

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 29. (AP)—Peaches held the center of the stage on the local wholesale fruit and vegetable markets here today with prices on many varieties easy and movement fairly heavy. Prices today ranged from 55c to 75c per box for Elberta and Muts for canning purposes, while large, selected table peaches brought about 15c per box more. J. H. Hayes topped the market in the table varieties around $1.64.15 per box. There was healthy condition in the apple division today with receipts nominal and supplies rather light for this season of the year. Demand was fairly good and prices advanced around $1.25 to $1.40 for desirable sizes of Humboldt, pocket stock, Dackel, Greenstein went well at $2.25, while cooking apples and pears and Citrus offerings sold from $1 to $1.25 per box. Crops of apples in orchards adjacent to Portland are not as large as usual. It is reported many orchards having practically nothing to market. Pears were in liberal supply and sold at $1.50 per box packed and as low as $1 loose. Onion prices were firm but a shade easier than last week, denoting the commencement of the season for Oregon yellow danvers. Walla Walla yellow globes were in light supply, but sold manly at $1.75 per box. What Oregon onions there were available brought about the same price. Local dry pack lettuce sold at $1.25 to $1.50 per crate. Catalogue receipts were light and the price firm at 2c per pound. Both top grades of butter advanced 1/2c more to 30c yesterday while other grades remained steady. Country dressed meats were steady and demand good but poultry prices showed an easier tone. Prices were not seriously disturbed.

California Leads in Pilot Licenses

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29. (AP)—Directory issued by the department of commerce today shows 2,675 airplane pilots to have been licensed by the department to July 31 in 47 states, District of Columbia and the possessions. California, with 1,027, led the list and New Mexico was the only state not represented. The directory does not include army and navy pilots as such but only those army and navy men who have been granted licenses under the department classification as transport pilot, limited commercial pilot, industrial pilot, or private pilot. Neither does the list include the 2,000 or more pilots operating at present under letters of authority by the department pending an opportunity to take the department's test for a pilot license.

Albanians Want Zogu Made King

TIRANA, Albania, Aug. 29. (AP)—Five thousand Albanians, parading the streets of the capital, tonight shouted "We want a King—Zogu!" The procession demanded that the Italian legation revoke its refusal to recognize Zogu as King of Albania. Foreign Minister Alois Vitti has assured the diplomatic corps that the monarch will prove a factor of stability and peace. Reports that the diplomatic corps would leave Tirana when President Achmet Zogu is proclaimed King were denied by Ministry of Justice H. Benet. He declared the change to a monarchy is to be effected with due respect to the constitution. The proclamation making Zogu king is expected to be published Saturday. Members of the diplomatic corps have been invited to attend parliament on that day.
