

FRUIT VEGETABLE MARKET UPSET

Supplies Far Exceed Demand—Egg Prices Higher in Portland

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 12.—(A.P.)—Local wholesale fruit and vegetable markets were demoralized today as far as prices were concerned, stocks of nearly all kinds of seasonal produce were far in excess of demand, which was light as a result of unfavorable weather.

Apples were in generous supply but demand was fair and best Gravenstein brought as high as $2.25 per box. Other grades of eating apples sold downward to $1.25 per box.

A few pines were still coming in and sold mostly at $4.90 to per pound. The peak of the season is now past, dealers report, and supplies hereafter will be limited to occasional late pickings.

Considerable local lettuce of excellent quality was on the market today and brought from $1.25 to $1.50 per dozen crate, dry field pack.

Tomatoes were quite scarce and somewhat higher at $0.85 to $1.00 per box. Green tomatoes for pickling purposes were in rather liberal supply at $4.00 to $4.50 per hundred.

Onion and potato prices showed no changes today but both markets were dull and trading nominal.

Yakima and Walla Walla Yellow Globe onions sold at $2.50 per hundredweight while Oregon Yellow Danvers of good quality brought about 25c per sack net.

Eggs Higher.—Standard extra eggs were a cent higher at 41c today reflecting the strong tone which prevailed throughout the list. Other grades were not notably higher.

In the butter division, all classes were steady and firm except cube grades which were quoted 1 1/2c lower at 45 1/2c per pound.
