EDUCATORS' JOINT MEET ENDS TODAY

Perhaps one of the greatest joys of reading is the joy of expansion. Miss Best said, "Books catch us out of our own little run and take us up where we can get a bird's eye view. Every book we read should give us a wider horizon, a broader sympathy and a deeper comprehension."

The community sing was led by Eldridge Buffman. Miss Vivia Golley accompanied at the piano. Miss Barbara that accompanied Sally Siegert and Jane Stange in their dance.

Joe Kirkwood Will Play Here On Next Sunday

Joe Kirkwood, internationally known trick shot artist and tournament player, who will play here Sunday afternoon in a foursome at the La Grande country club, has his ups and downs—even as Bobby Jones. For example, on Sept. 23, at Shinnecock Hills, N. Y., Kirkwood missed a 16-foot putt or he would have beat Tommy Armour, of Washington, occasional open champion, in the 72-hole invitation professional golf tournament. As it was Kirkwood, who makes his home in Atlanta, Ga., placed second to Armour with a score of 203 for the 72 holes. Bobby Cruikshank was third with 204.

Jack Renner, La Grande pro, will be paired with Kirkwood Sunday in the 18-hole tournament, facing the two professionals from Baker and Pendleton.

school teacher. One of the sketches ends with "It's a great life if you don't weaken."

William E. Davis, Whitman college professor and E. A. Sayre, Union county superintendent of schools, were introduced to the assembly and responded with a few words.

Sally Siegert and Jane Stange, La Grande girls, gave several popular feature dancing numbers during the program and afterwards when the teachers held an informal dance in the ballroom.

The ladies at the banquet were decorated with favors in keeping with the teaching motif. Crepe paper speckled school maxima and frankish faces, wearing a book in one hand and a black board pointer in the other, were the favors to which were attached miniature blackboards upon which were written "Dear Teacher."

The banquet was concluded with the singing of a group of institute songs.
