Bridge Pointers

Deal N in the series of 50 bridge questions is submitted today.

South is the declarer playing a No Trump contract; the adversaries have not in the first trick.

QUESTION No. 20. What Clubs should be played from Dummy and Closed Hand in the first trick?

QUESTION No. 21. What suit should declarer lead to trick 2, and in which hand should the trick be won?

QUESTION No. 22. How should declarer play trick 2?

Answer Blank

The Answers

20. Dummy should play the Trey of Clubs, and Closed Hand the Ace. Because of the danger of the Spade suit, South should win with the Ace of Clubs, making the adverse King good when he could take with the Queen and retain the Ace. The adversaries will make at least five Spade tricks if they start that suit. Declarer cannot make more tricks by running his high-card tricks; two Clubs, four Hearts and two Diamonds would leave him one short of his goal. If he showed West that he held control of the adverse Clubs and started to establish Dummy's Diamonds, West would be apt to shift to the Spade suit when he won a Diamond. South can make same if he can run Dummy's Diamonds before the adversaries take five tricks; consequently should play the Ace of Clubs on the first trick in an attempt to deceive West, and induce him to place the Queen of Clubs in the East hand and continue that suit when he next obtains the lead.

21. South should lead the Five of Hearts and North should play the Queen to get the lead.

22. North should lead the Four of Diamonds and, unless East play the Queen or Jack of Diamonds, South should play the Ten of Diamonds. The Diamond trick that must be lost is surrendered immediately with the idea of placing West in the lead and with the hope that West will continue Clubs.
