The return of three injured men to the Washington lineup, four days of hard scrimmaging and a revised squad have put the northwesterners in admittedly the best trim that they have been this season. The shifty invaders were in fighting mood after their coach's frisks over the water soaked field.

Schissler Protests

When their mentor, Paul Schissler, saw that the field had been heavily watered he went up in the air. "It looks bad, that's all," he shouted as he stomped through the slush. "It is a disaster, this field. Aid be threatened to keep his team off the gridiron unless it was in reasonable shape by game time. The probable starting lineup was:

IDAHO'S VANDALS FAR FROM THROUGH, BELIEF

Despite the disastrous defeat they suffered at the hands of Stanford at San Francisco recently, the University of Idaho football team is going to raise plenty of doubts in the minds of its supporters' minds, opinion some of the experts. During the greater part of the first half, when Woodruff's power righty, Edie Anderson, was in the game, Stanford was held scoreless, and looked long three times from within five yards of a goal. The team has been held around Freshman and Highway center left, an end who punts some and passes better, by Coach Charles DeWitt's upper right. If the fullback escapes further injury, Idaho may yet be heard from, despite its wretched loss at Berkeley. Lower back is Hutchinson, another Vandal backfield star.
