THE GARDEN

WINTER CARE OF SUMMER DULIAS

Bodies of gladioli and tubers of dahlias ought to be dug and put in storage as soon as the frost blackens the foliage of the dahlias. If left in the ground to remain in the ground for further freezing. The gladioli gives no trouble in the storage to meet out. They may be stored in a dry, frost-proof place. Dahlias, however, are a different proposition.

When they are dug the stalks should be cut off close to the cluster of roots and they should be placed upside down in the sun to permit the sap to drain from the bottom stalks. Do not allow them to stand upside down over night as a frost will injure them. Take them under cover as soon as the stems are dried.

Many experts store the roots upside down in order to be certain that no sap of moisture remains in the stems to rot out. They may be stored in a dry, frost-proof place. Dahlias, however, are a different proposition.

Sunday School Teacher—Who can tell me the name of the first man and first woman?

Little Boy—Adam and Eve.

Love is the state of mind in which a man can pay the bills without a frown.

"Which one, dear?"

"The one with its face scratched and the hair off its head."

"That must be the lion."

"This is a self-made man, that's what I am—a self-made man," he said.

Not with the "reckless" crew.

Father: "Well, do you think you can make my daughter really happy?"

Sister: "Say you should have seen her last night."
