

SENATE TO HAVE SOME CHANGES

Election Will Send New Faces Into Upper House for Next Congress

By James L. West (Chief, Associated Press Staff) WASHINGTON (AP)—Which way the political pendulum swings in November there will be a number of changes in the senate of the next congress, the seventy-first.

One party or the other is destined to lose its floor leader, as both Charles Curtis, republican and Joseph T. Robinson, democrat, are candidates for the vice presidency. No one must pass from active participation in legislative events on the floor to the more or less inarticulate role of presiding officer.

Well Qualified Each is well qualified by a knowledge of the rules and experience in the chair for the job he seeks, but the mantle of silence probably would fit more snugly upon the shoulders of the plibeguate, Kansas than it would upon those of the fiery Arkansian, who dearly loves a scrap and who has demonstrated in many a rough and tumble debate that he can take care of himself in any scrum.

Two familiar figures—James A. Reed, Missouri and George P. McLean of Connecticut—will be resigning, voluntary exits from the chamber where they have served so long.

Reed Makes Bid

Reed, feared in debate because of his withering sarcasm, and resolute prosecutor of many a senate investigation, elected to make his bid for the democratic presidential nomination. Having lost that, he will retire to his Kansas City home next March 4 to look after an extensive law practice which has made increasing demands upon his time in late years.

McLean, quiet, unobtrusive, seldom heard in debate, but nevertheless a power in the councils of the republicans, declined to become a candidate to succeed himself because of ill health. For the same reason at the opening session of the present congress he gave up the chairmanship of the powerful banking committee.

BOTH STARS, BUT YEARS APART

The last time Mrs. Fannie D. Hall McCollin, right, appeared on the stage, a young girl named Gladstone Foster made her debut in the same play. The other day Miss Foster, who now is the star in a Broadway production, called at the Actors' Fund Home in Englewood, N. J., and found Mrs. McCollin. Here you see them sharing reminiscences and a box of candy.

Two avowed dry—Charles M. Hay, democrat of St. Louis and Roscoe C. Patterson, republican of Springfield—are seeking the seat of the silver-haired veteran Missouri legislator who has been one of the most implacable foes of the Volstead act in the entire congress.

Frederick C. Walcott, republican, Norfolk, and Augustine Lonergan, democrat of Hartford are the candidates for the seat which McLean's retirement to private life after the coming session will make vacant.

Besides the Missouri and Connecticut seats, 22 others are to be filled in the November elections in which will be decided whether the Farmer-Labor party is to retain its sole representative in the senate, Henrik Shipstead of Minnesota. He is opposed by Arthur E. Nelson, republican in Lincoln, Neb., and G. P. Cashman, democrat.

Three Specials

Three special elections are to be held—one in Idaho to name a senator to fill out the unexpired term of the late Frank E. Gooding, one in Illinois to fill the seat made vacant by the refusal of the senate to seat Frank Smith, who was defeated in the republican primaries last spring, and the third in Ohio to fill the place once held by Frank B. Willis, who died suddenly while campaigning for the republican presidential nomination.

John Thomas, republican, and Chase Clark, democrat, are the opponents in Idaho; Otto F. Glenn, republican, and A. J. Cernak, democrat, are running in Illinois, while the opposing candidates in Ohio are Theodore E. Burton, republican member of the house, who would return to the senate, and Graham P. Hunt, democrat, who was nominated over Cyrus Lecher, whom Governor Doherty appointed to succeed Willis pending an election.

Of the 29 other senate seats to be filled in November, 18 are held by democrats and 11 by republicans, and since only five of the democrats are from southern states the republicans expect to make some gains. Even if they capture all the seats they claim, however, they would fall short of a working majority with the republican independents still holding the balance of power.

Five Seek Office

All five of the democratic senators from eastern states are up for reelection, and the republicans are making concerted drives to unseat them. David J. Walsh is running for the full term in Massachusetts; Peter G. Gerry is offering for reelection in Rhode Island; Royal S. Copeland again is a candidate in New York; Edward I. Edwards seeks to succeed himself in New Jersey, and Thomas E. Bayard again is a candidate from Delaware.

Six democrats in far western states also find their seats in contest—Henry F. Ashurst, in Arizona, who is opposed by former Senator Ralph H. Cameron; William H. King, in Utah; C. C. Dill, in the normally republican state of Washington; John B. Kendrick, veteran from Wyoming; Key Pittman, another veteran from Nevada; and Burton K. Wheeler of Montana.

Two democrats from border states, M. M. Neely of West Virginia and William Cabell Bruce of Maryland, also seek reelection against strong opposition. Those who would return from the south are Claude A. Swanson of Virginia, Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee, Hubert D. Stephens of Mississippi and Park Trammell of Florida. The 11th southern seat in contest is held by Texas, where Rep. Tom Connally, who defeated Senator Earle B. Mayfield for the democratic nomination, is opposed by T. M. Kennedy, republican.

On the republican side four of the republican independents are in the field—La Follette, of Wisconsin, Francis of North Dakota, Howell of Nebraska and Johnson of California. The regulars who would return are Foss of Ohio, Vandenberg of Michigan, Greene of Vermont, Hale of Maine, Reed of Pennsylvania, Robinson of Indiana and Cutting of New Mexico.

MONUMENT MADE USEFUL

FAIRVIEW, Ky. (AP)—Jefferson Davis monument, said by residents here to be the tallest in the United States except Washington monument, soon will be a combination of sentiment and utility. The tall marker above the birthplace of the Confederate president will be surmounted with a beacon light for aviators.

A MIDGET BANK

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Founded in a 14 by 24-foot one-room frame building on the outskirts of Lincoln, the Normal State Bank is the smallest bank in Nebraska in size, but not in finances. It serves 200 customers and has a capital stock of $12,000.

EASTERN OREGON BACKS DR. HALL

University President Is Home from Trip, Says Needs Understood

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Nov. 1 (Special).—La Grande residents, and the rest of the people of Eastern Oregon are awake to the needs of the University of Oregon, and will support the program of expansion necessary to care for increased enrollment, Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall, president, declared upon his arrival here, after a week spent in La Grande, Pendleton, Baker, Ontario, and other cities in that region.

Dr. Hall addressed the Idaho Teachers association last Friday and Saturday at Boise, Idaho, and he stopped in Eastern Oregon while en route. Several of the cities called meetings of alumni, parents of students and others interested, at which Dr. Hall and Burt Brown Barker, university vice president, were invited to tell of the needs of the institution.

"People in Eastern Oregon realize that we must give the same educational opportunities to our boys and girls that the states of Washington and California do," said Dr. Hall. "To do this we must have a new library and other facilities. I feel sure now that the

Half Million Dollars of Forest

Receipts Available for Road Work

PORTLAND, Nov. 1—More than half a million dollars of national forest receipts will be available during the present fiscal year for road and trail building in the national forest regions of the country according to a statement just issued by the local office of the forest service. This is 10 per cent of the money received from the sale of national forest products and use of national forest lands during the past fiscal year.

It is pointed out that these roads and trails make the national forest more accessible and help materially in administration and protection work.

Improved road and trail facilities will in turn bring increased forest receipts, says the forest service, so that the use of this 10 per cent fund tends to continuous development of the national forests and more intensive administration for protective use.

Total receipts from timber sales, grazing fees and other national forest activities during the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1928, amounted to $5,495,588.14. Of this amount, over one-fifth, or 11,738,659.07, was produced by the 22 national forests of Oregon and Washington. By act of congress of Aug.

19, 1912, 10 per cent of the receipts is given to the forest service for road and trail construction each year. For the last fiscal year this amounted to $77,715.11 for Oregon and $10,413.84 for Washington. This fund is in addition to the money appropriated by congress for forest roads and trails for the current year, also in addition to the 25 per cent of forest receipts which is returned each year to the counties for roads and schools.

only the 10 per cent fund but other road money appropriated by congress, a total of 372 miles of roads and 2,394 miles of trails were constructed within or adjacent to the national forests of Oregon and Washington during the last fiscal year. Including last year's work there has been completed in the national forests of these two states a total of 2,428 miles of roads and 7,338 miles of trails. To date, $5,154,623 has been expended on road and trail construction in the 22 national forests of Oregon and Washington.
