WOULD REVAMP IMMIGRATION LAW

Secretary of Labor Makes
Annual Report; Favors
More Restriction

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (AP)—Extensive revamping of the immigration laws with the purpose of further restricting the flow of aliens into the United States is recommended by Secretary Davis of the labor department in his annual report.

Dealing with other phases of the department's activity, the document estimates that more than 1,400,000 workers, men, women and children, have been placed in jobs during the year by the government employment service, while the agents of conciliation, directed by Hugh L. Kewin, have intervened in 474 industrial disputes during the year, seeking to terminate disputes that disturbed payrolls on which 359,000 workers are counted.

Other Work Reviewed

Work of the bureau engaged in special service for women and children, for the supervision of naturalization of aliens and the statistical study of wages, prices, and industrial economies are likewise reviewed and the secretary's final word expresses great satisfaction with existing industrial conditions, and optimism for even further betterment in the future.

The chief effect of the immigration legislation Secretary Davis approved would be to cut the immigration from Mexico, now running at 80,000 per year, to slightly above 7,000, while leaving undisturbed the movement from other countries of the western hemisphere. However, it would also compromise the dispute between the "quota" and "national origins" methods of determining admissibility to the United States, and would relieve some of the handicaps now imposed on aliens who are admitted.

Recommends Compromise
He recommended a compromise between the quota and national origins methods of determining admissible numbers and endorsed the proposals to fix a quota limit to immigration from North and South American countries, which now have no quota.

"Following the slowing down of immigration from Europe, there was a large increase in the number of Mexicans entering the country," the secretary continued. "They took and are continuing to take the places formerly filled by south and east Europeans. Under existing law they can continue to come in increasing numbers, as they undoubtedly will do in increasing numbers, thus defeating one of the main purposes for which quota laws were enacted, namely, to prevent further over-crowding of our labor market."

"I want to say emphatically that I entertain no prejudice against the people of any country, but being absolutely convinced that the barriers that have been erected to prevent the coming of unlimited European labor have proven to be highly beneficial, it is impossible to avoid the conviction that the industrial situation ought to be guarded against the difficulties and dangers which will almost certainly follow the unlimited immigration of workers from another source."

To prevent the separation of families, the measure indorses suggestions that heads of families be not allowed to enter the United States until permitted under the quota, wife also available for the wife and children, but proposes to let the members of now separated families be reunited under less onerous delay.

Secretary Davis also questions the operation of the law favoring immigration of agricultural labor, as having failed to attain effectiveness, and suggested alterations.

Recent court decisions by which aliens resident in Canada have obtained permission to cross the border into the United States were most regretted in the report.
