Mrs. Freshwood: "The recipe in that book is no good."
Mr. Freshwood: "Why not, dear?"
Mrs. Freshwood: "Well, I prepared a pound cake exactly by the recipe and when I took it out of the oven and weighed it, it was ten ounces over!"

A certain actress, though married and long past her first youth, makes up so wonderfully that she looks no more than about 18. A short while ago a youthful admirer sought out her manager and asked for an introduction.

"I'm sure she's as charming and sweet off the stage as she is on," he said.

"She's all that," agreed the manager, cordially—so cordially that a fearful suspicion flashed into the youth's mind.

"I say, you—you're not her husband, are you?" he faltered.

"No, oh, no!" said the manager. "I'm her son!"

For a relative or a friend, it's not necessary to buy a complete set, but a few pieces selected from one of Melville's many attractive patterns will delight any woman.

AT THE THEATERS

Conrad Nagel And Renee Adoree In "Michigan Kid"

Universal has brought Rex Beach's novel, "The Michigan Kid" to the screen of the Star theater in a pretentious special which is at once gorgeous in scenic beauty and gripping in dramatic power.

The photoplay is a massive production with two of the screen's most popular stars enacting the tremendous emotional roles. Conrad Nagel and Renee Adoree.

Nagel has never appeared to better advantage than as the famous Michigan Kid, notorious, honest gambler in Alaska during the mighty gold rush of 1888. This characterization is one of sweeping verve—the Kid being the type that is a Hell-cat gone mad when he has just cause for his wrath, but who otherwise is gentle and loving toward his friends, and much addicted to charity in the right place.

Miss Adoree gives a sincere portrayal of the girl from the states who comes to Alaska for the purpose of marrying a boyhood sweetheart who has become a rotter.

Lloyd Whitlock is splendid as the weakling who in the mad rush for wealth is driven to theft and cheating. By his naturalness he raises his role from the ranks of an ordinary heavy.

Adolph Milar and Fred Emmett are fine characters while the three children who play the leading characters in their youth are delightful. They are Maurice Murphy, Virginia Grey and Dick Palm.

"Floating College" Is Gay Comedy—Sally O'Neil and William Collier Jr. are the stars of "The Floating College," Tiffany-Studio picture which will be the feature today at the Arcade theater.

The story describes the campaigns of two sisters to annex the affections of the handsome young swimming teacher at their country club. The younger sister uses the direct method system popular nowadays with the younger generation, but the elder sister complains to their father that Pat is making a fool of herself over the young man, suggesting she be sent off on the floating college cruise, intending to leave the field free for herself.

To her dismay she discovers the young man is a member of the floating college faculty, so she is forced to fly after the ship and join in the cruise in order, so her father fondly believes, to see that her little sister behaves herself. Meanwhile the young man, at first quite unconscious of either of them
