DEATH AND BIRTH—A good name is better than precious substance; and the day of death than the day of one's birth.—Ecc. 7:1.

Failures think Easy street is full of road hogs.

It's queer how some people resent having winter weather in winter.

Let all the naval powers build all the cruisers they want, if they'll use 'em for good-will tours.

American women are said to be two inches taller than they were a generation ago. Sure it isn't just those French heels?

A survey made by directors of the Milwaukee Vocational school dealt with the reading interests of 7,000 boys and girls between the ages of 14 and 18 years who are gainfully employed and who attend the school.

An unusual lawsuit has been brought by a single woman of middle age in New York, against her brother. She supported him and took care of him from the age of 10 until he was able to earn his own living.

ORPHANAGE RECORDS When Will Rogers went abroad a few years ago he created many laughs by telling what difficulties he had in convincing the United States government that he had ever been born.

A prominent architect of Boston, 41 years old, was adopted as a child from an orphanage. When he was 21 years old the adoption was made legal.

Now he wants to go abroad, but the state department has refused him a passport because he cannot furnish documentary evidence of his birth.

There are two obvious wrongs here. In the first place, the state department ought to be able to apply common sense in such a case and recognize the man as a citizen.
