Goitre Not A Disease
Milwaukee Doctor, Mikes, M.D., Remarkable Discovery

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—It has been brought to light by scientific research that goitre is not a disease and is not to be treated as such. Dr. A. A. Rook, Dept. 3-28, Box 727, Milwaukee, Wis., a prominent goitre specialist for over 24 years, has perfected a different method of treatment for his patients that has proved remarkably successful. This same method is now being used for a home treatment of goitre cases all over the country with astonishing results. The Doctor states that goitre is a condition which grows worse with neglect and recommends immediate attention no matter how small the growth may appear. He strongly opposes needless operations. Dr. Rook is the author of a book that tells in a simple way about treating goitre at home. He has published this book at his own expense and will send a copy free to anyone interested. Write him today.—Adv.

Yes, I told her of my love, and she said now please don't sing it. This finger on my little hand. Please, sweetheart, won't you ring it?

IDIOTICALS
Each party has one big problem. And that is to get more votes than the other.

A contented man is one who enjoys the scenery along a detour. An American film producer says that the children he employs often suggest ideas to him. Well, that explains a good deal.

The full dinner pail was a popular slogan in McKinley's campaign. A better one today might be "A full gas tank."

A good many people talk by opening and closing the mouth rapidly, while the bellows in the throat pumps out the gas in the brain.

An Eastern warden who is making a conscientious effort to find work for every prisoner in keeping with his talents, is having some trouble placing an extraordinary man.

A scientist predicts the discovery of intra-atomic energy that will permit one to hop to the moon. This will be the first break the postman has had in a long time.

"When the eyes are closed, the hearing senses more acutely," says a medical authority. We have seen people trying this out in church.

Visitor: "Have you an up-to-date police force?"
Citizen: "You bet, why, the officers have caddies to carry their clubs."

Stranger: "So you are the postman, storekeeper, justice of the peace, and constable of this town?"
Native: "Yassie! You might say I'm the Mussolini of Brimshville."

HEROES ARE MADE—NOT BORN.

AT THE THEATERS

Tom Mix Western Coming To Star Friday

"Painted Post," the screen adaptation of Harry Sinclair Drago's thrilling story in which Tom Mix is "starred" and which will be shown at the Star theater Friday is one of the finest stories in which the Western star has appeared.

Drago's story takes its name from the town of Painted Post, a sleepy little hamlet perched on the edge of the Sierra Madre mountain range. To all appearances the town is taking a Rip Van Winkle sleep. However, the mask of respectability is rudely torn aside when Mix, as sheriff, uncovers a plot seething with hate, greed and duplicity.

Circumstances throw Mix into the center of this mass and the manner in which he restores law and order is sufficiently interesting to furnish all the thrills one could ask.

The cast includes Natalie King, Al St. John and Fred Gamble. Gene Fordie directed.

John Gilbert At Arcade in "Masks of the Devil"

"The Masks of the Devil," John Gilbert's new starring picture, which is now playing at the Arcade theater, contains in one of its opening scenes the realization of the dream of every feminine motion picture fan.

Incidentally, it also marks the greatest thrill in the life of Eva Gubel, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's newest screen find, who plays the leading feminine role.

When Miss von Berne arrived in New York City from Vienna one of the questions asked her was: "What is the greatest thrill that Hollywood could give you?"

"To play a love scene with John Gilbert," replied the little Viennese, and thereupon gave an answer identical with that which several million American girls would probably make.

Miss von Berne had her wish gratified less than two weeks later when twenty-four hours after she arrived in Hollywood she was cast in the Gilbert picture. Incidentally, she had never met Gilbert until the moment when, before the camera, she walked through swinging doors and was introduced to him for the scene in the picture by Ralph Forbes, who played the role of her fiancé.

Victor Searstrom directed "The Masks of the Devil," while the cast includes Theodore Roberts, Alvin Rubens, Polly Ann Young and Frank Heiber. Francis Marion adapted the scenario from the novel by Jakob Wassermann.

Julio's calm statement that he let the gun runner go because he had fallen in love with the traitor's sister had stupefied the entire assemblage which had gathered in the great hall of the President's palace to cheer the popular youth, reported the captor of the revolutionary leader.

After the failure of the police and secret service men to apprehend this Garcia, the chief executive, had summoned the dared Julio, still technically in disgrace for an atrocious exploit which had cost him his commission in the army, and commanded him to bring in the traitor dead or alive or else spend the next 20 years in jail for a safe haul which had resulted seriously for all concerned.

And now, from President down to his least important aide, the gathering stands abashed at Julio's calm statement, except for Inez, the gun runner's sister, who had come to town for mercy for her brother and now runs across to Julio's side, murmuring her gratitude to her sweetheart.

But what happens next can best be appreciated by seeing "The Gun Runner," Tiffany-Stahl's exciting picture suggested by Arthur Stringer.
