Calves wintered in the range areas should be fed liberally after being weaned, since they make better use of their feed then than when older. Get the best quality of feed available and give the youngest calves the best hay. Calves which are stunted never recover entirely from the effects of poor feeding.

Alfalfa hay should be hauled and loaded in fair weather. Each year much alfalfa arrives at the markets in poor condition, due to its becoming wet from rain or snow while being handled for shipment.

In peach orchards where the curculio has been particularly destructive the burning over of woodland and similar cover within 200 or 300 yards of the orchard—where it will not injure young forest growth—is a valuable control, supplementing spraying and dusting in the orchard itself.

THOSE WE LOVE

They say the world is round and yet
I often think it square.
So many little hurts we get
From foraers here and there;
But there's one truth in life I've found
While journeying East and West,
The only folks we really wound
Are those we love the best.
We flatter those we scarcely know,
We please the fleeting guest,
And deal full many a thoughtless blow
To those we love the best.

"Did you hear about the flapper being hurt in the explosion last night."

"No, how come?"

"A smile lit up her face and the powder went off."

In Montana a railway bridge had been destroyed by fire and it was necessary to replace it. The bridge engineer and his staff were ordered to hasten to the place. Two days later came the superintendent of the division.

Alighting from his private car, he encountered an old master bridge-builder.

"Bill," said the superintendent—and the words quivered with energy—"I want this job rushed. Every hour's delay costs the company money. Have you go the engineer's plans for the new bridge?"

"I don't know," said the bridge-builder, "whether the engineer has the picture drawed yet or not, but the bridge is up and the trains is passing over it."

PHLOSOPHEE

Women who "never had a thing to wear" are now wearing it.

The man who hangs himself dies of his own free will and a cord.

Do not take life too seriously. You will never get out of it alive.

When you have a fight with your conscience and get licked—you win.

Progress: Garters used to be a necessity—now they're an attraction.

Men no longer hide behind a woman's skirt. And neither do the women.

Fairy Tale: The defendant was pretty as a picture, so the jury voted to hang her.

AT THE THEATERS

"Scarlet Seas" Opens Today At The Star

"Scarlet Seas," the new First National Picture starring Richard Barthelmess which opens today at the Star theater, marked the destruction of the popular star's airplane jinx.

Six years ago Barthelmess was on location near Washington, D. C., and took a flight in an airplane from Hampton Roads. When the plane landed, the pilot fell limp across his wheel—dead! It was pronounced a case of heart failure.

This experience left an indelible imprint on Barthelmess' memory and he would never again fly. But when the First National "Scarlet Seas" company went to the Isthmus on Catalina Island, the star decided that production must not be held up—the age-old tradition of "the play must go on" prevailed.

"Scarlet Seas" is a thrilling tale of the open sea, teeming with the vivid color of the South Seas, trading in smuggled goods, rough-and-tumble fights and an unusual Barthelmess characterization.

Betty Compson plays the feminine lead with Loretta Young, featured ingenue. Others in the cast include Knute Erickson, Jack Curtis, Larry Weston, Fred O'Beck, Bill Wilson and others.

Part of Grey Picture Is Done In Technicolor

Scenes for the Paramount production of Zane Grey's story, "The Water Hole," which the Arcade theater is now featuring were actually filmed in Arizona, the locale of the story. Jack Holt plays the leading role in this drama of society life in the cities and primitive life in the desert.

The story, "The Water Hole," first appeared in Colliers' weekly where it had a wide reading and Zane Grey expanded it into a novel. The tale is unusual for Zane Grey, because its Western scenes are only incidental to the main theme of the story.

Paramount has made this story into one of the big specials of the year, measuring it with the former successful Zane Grey production "Wanderer of the Wasteland." The filming was done partly in technicolor and beautiful vistas of the gorgeous Arizona desert region are included in the film.

"Frog" Crook Gang in Picture At Colonial

New York City terrorized! The police baffled. And all because one thief, entrusted twenty years ago with a million dollars' worth of loot, has gathered around him a large band of criminals and tramps that he has branded with the mark of a frog—exactly like the tattoo on his arm, which is the only way he can be identified by the man who promised to come back some day for his share of the booty.

"Mark of the Frog," the ten chapter Patheserial commencing a ten weeks' run today at the colonial theater with the showing of the first chapter, entitled, "The Gas Attack," uncovers the mystery of the "Frogs." It learns the identity of the master criminal whose face is unknown even to his most trusted henchmen. Donald Reed and Margaret Morris are starred in the leading roles, and others in the cast are Frank Lackteen, Ed Roseman, Helen Greene, Tony Hughes and Gus De Well. Edgar Wallace's story, "The Fellowship of the Frog" supplied the plot, which was directed by Arch B Heath.

Oiled-paper wrappers used on apples packed for shipment or storage have been found largely to prevent the development of scald, one of the most serious storage and market diseases of apples.

VICTIM OF COURT'S MISTAKE

Helen McLaughlin, 10, of New York City, lost her leg seven years ago because of the negligence of a truck driver. Now, because of a blunder on the part of Supreme Court Justice James C. Cropsey, she has been deprived of an award of $15,000 damages. The jurist allowed the verdict against the wrong defendant, and the appellate division of the supreme court was obliged to set aside the decision.

The dairy bull should be kept in a thrifty but fat condition throughout the winter. See that he gets plenty of exercise daily. A good daily ration consists of from 4 to 10 pounds of a grain mixture such as the dairy cows are receiving, 10 to 15 pounds of corn silage and 10 to 20 pounds of good legume hay, the amounts depending on his size and condition.

Lambing time is the critical period of the year in the range sheep business. Areas where early green feed will be available, and where there is protection from storms, should be used. When lambing takes place on range that has been grazed all winter the forage usually is short and many losses of ewes and lambs occur.

"My papa bought a bowl of goldfish today for a dollar."

"Huh, if that's all he paid for 'em I'll bet they're plated."
