Snow plows have been kept busy in Eastern Oregon but all roads are reported to be open.

MORE GRIEF LOOMING FOR 'MOON' SQUAD

(Continued from Page 1) "white mule" to look like "red hiker" he is a rectifier and, not having paid the rectifiers' tax of $50 is due for a penalty of $500. Then the home brewer contributes his little five cents worth too. A brewer was supposed to pay at least a $50 tax and if the brewer failed to pay it he is liable for $500. As the home brewer is plainly running a brewery on a small scale he comes under these provisions. Looking Up Records Mr. Hazeltine is going back five years on the records and looking up the property holdings of the violators. How profitable the illicit liquor business is, is shown by the fact that Mr. Hazeltine finds that but about ten percent of the violators have anything left after they have paid their fines, served their sentences and paid their attorney. These penalties are recovered by civil suit in the federal courts, and therefore, can be compromised, as several months ago Mr. and Mrs. Carter did return to Enterprise where they are now making their home. Mrs. White will visit them and also her two sisters in Joseph, Mrs. Stone and Mrs. N. B. Smith. Mrs. White will be remembered in the Joseph country as Miss DeMoise Carter, who was a student in the eighth grade at Joseph ten years ago. Gamblers to Meet—The Gamblers' Art club will meet Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. R. Hunter at 1738 First street. At La Grande office—W. S. Weir, of Milton, has left La Grande, following a short visit. While here, he was at the La Grande hotel. fines under the criminal statutes could not be. As a result the violators as a rule settle as their court record shows them in the face and they have no defense. He recommends highly the activities of Sheriff Breshers so long as he had a jail to put the violators in and is confident that activities will be resumed as soon as the jail destroyed by fire, is again ready for guests. Likes Oregon Laws—Mr. Hazeltine thinks the Oregon laws on liquor the best in the United States, and is especially strong for the provision mandating state agents who can be utilized by the sheriff for undercover work as the average officer is too well known in his county to be able to buy evidence essential to conviction. He thinks that this provision should release the federal agents from work of this character as they have their hands full working up large conspiracy cases, abatement of joints and diversion of alcohol and they are being withdrawn from ordinary bootlegging cases. He says that there are a number of counties in this state where prohibition is as well enforced as are the laws against gambling and prostitution and only two counties where the sheriff are out of sympathy with the law and are inactive. He has visited every county in Washington and has but three more counties to visit in Oregon. Mr. Hazeltine and his son, own the South Bend (Wash.) Journal which the latter runs. It was the first paper in that state to refuse liquor ads 35 years ago. In this city he found an old friend in the person of Geo. H. Currey, who was a fellow delegate to the Methodist General conference held in Baltimore, Md. He was also for 16 years a member of the state university of Washington and a former president of the Washington State Press association and one of the founders of the school of journalism of the state university. He was for several years divisional chief of general prohibition agents serving in Idaho, the Pacific Northwest, Pennsylvania and Florida.

(Continued from Page 1) unreported motorists was reported in Salt Lake and Ogden today. Ten persons were injured in traffic accidents. Five inches of snow fell in Salt Lake and 14 inches of snow in Ogden. Several motorists were reported snowbound between Salt Lake and Provo and forced to abandon their automobiles. Trains were running late and almost in the Inermountain region was delayed. Weather bureau officials said the storm centered in this region and only light snowfall was reported in Idaho and Southern Utah.

SNOW IN PORTLAND

Portland, Ore., Jan. 19 (AP)—Portland awoke today to find a snow blanket two inches thick on its doorstep. The snow swept into the city last night before a furious northwest wind. Today, however, the air was calm and a warm sun did its best to reduce the accumulation of ice and snow. Street cars and buses were operating on schedule today after a night of heavy work with snow plows and brushes. The storm was heralded in Portland by a violent hail storm, followed by rain. The storm appeared to be general throughout the state.

HAZARD IN KLAMATH

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., Jan. 19 (AP)—A snow storm approaching a blizzard in intensity, swept into the Klamath country today. Driven into the basin by a northwest wind, the snow was piling up in deep drifts. No immediate relief from the storm was in sight this morning.

CORVALLIS, Ore., Jan. 19 (AP)

Lanna Bryant, charged with first degree murder in connection with the fatal stabbing of Lewis (Big) Dickerson, Oregon State college football star, will not go on trial next Monday, the date set by the court. When the trial will be held is a matter of conjecture. The latest turn of events in the case was the sentencing yesterday of the family of Mae Troxell, principal witness in the case, when her brother was taken ill with amebiasis.
