South America Subject of Talk (Continued from Page 1) large proportions and immense influence is most gripping. Mrs. Hazeltine possesses a most remarkable gift as a speaker, has a winning personality and it is the consensus of those who heard her last evening that hers was one of the most inspiring addresses given in this city in a long time.
Western Washington has been her home, where her husband was for many years, and now her son, Ezra Hazeltine is editor of the South Bend Journal. She has been very active in civic, club and fraternal work. She has held high offices in the Washington State Federation of Women's club, she is an enthusiastic daughter of the American Revolution, a worker in the Order of the Eastern Star and an ardent supporter of the Order of the Rainbow for Girls and all other work among girls of high school age. Her first interest, however, lies in her church and her services as a speaker are in constant demand.
Mrs. Hazeltine paid a very glowing tribute last evening, while speaking informally after the church service, to Dr. Ida Belle Lewis, who is to spend next weekend in La Grande and who has consented to speak at the morning conference in Kansas City last May.
" I heard Dr. Lewis at general conference in Kansas City last May," said Mrs. Hazeltine, "shortly after her return to America. She is a powerful speaker, her message from China is a burning one, and people of La Grande will miss a very unusual opportunity, if they fail to hear her."
Several interesting programs were held at other churches yesterday, with attendance excellent, considering the weather conditions.

King Winter Continues to Grip Oregon (Continued from Page 1) him and he will make an effort to feed them, he stated in a communication to The Observer today.
The Columbia Highway Open is open with traffic moving in both directions as far east as Twin Falls, according to word received here. Those bound for Eastern Washington points today had to go by way of Pendleton and Walla Walla as ferry trips are impossible due to ice.

Western Oregon Stormy (Continued from Page 1) PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 28 (AP)—A storm showed out of the north last night and today Northwestern Oregon found itself in the grip of a snowstorm which in several sections approached a blizzard in intensity. Slowly advancing southward, the storm was expected to reach the upper Willamette valley points during the day.
While Grants Pass reported sunshine and mild weather after a brief flurry of snow today, points to the north were turning anxious eyes toward overhanging clouds.
At Eugene flurries of large snowflakes continued to fall today, although melted as they fell. Surrounding hills had taken on a blanket of white. The thermometer dropped to 32 degrees in Eugene last night.
Damp snow fell in Salem, although little remained on the ground. A minimum temperature of 29 was reported.
Roseburg experienced light snow flurries, with the hills covered but with the snow melting in the city. Yesterday's minimum there was 34 degrees.
Grants Pass reported a threat of snow this morning in the Rogue valley, but that later the clouds gave way to sunshine and mild weather. The mountains surrounding the valley received a light fall of snow.
Three Inches in Portland Three inches of snow, driven in from the northeast on the wings of a swirling storm, covered Portland's streets today, and hour by hour the depth of the blanket was increasing.
The weather bureau here saw no immediate prospects of a halt in the storm's progress.
At 7 a. m. the thermometer stood at 16 degrees above zero, the coldest mark for the preceding 24-hour period.

Middlewest Chilled CHICAGO, Jan. 28 (AP)—The same chilling information that the valley has been reading, off and on for the past month, was offered again by the government bureau today—"Cold wave."
Ice that has covered most of the middlewest since the Christmas holidays remained a serious hazard to traffic. Three persons were killed and six seriously injured in Chicago yesterday in falls.

Below in Nebraska In Nebraska the thermometer got down to 13 below zero in the northwest corner, but was on the warm side of the cipher in other parts of the state. Superior was the coldest spot in Wisconsin, with minus 29. Throughout the Dakotas and Minnesota sub-zero readings.
Colombus, Ia., appealed to the state for relief, being virtually snowbound. A bob-sled required all day to make a nine-mile journey through the drifts to Peteraburg and return.

Rocky Region Cold Severe DENVER, Colo., Jan. 28 (AP)—With Montana shivering in bitter cold last night, another severe cold wave is forecast for the Rocky Mountain region today.
An average of four inches of snow fell over Montana yesterday with sub-zero temperatures reported throughout most of the state.
Northern Montana was the coldest part of the state last night and the coldest place recorded was at Choteau with a temperature of 42 degrees below zero.
A snowstorm blanketed the northern part of Colorado Sunday with a fall ranging from a foot to two and one-half feet in some sections.

Legislature Opens Third Week Today (Continued from Page 1) telephone situation, and is viewed as companion legislation to the bill which the committee will present to give to cities the authority to establish their own rates and regulate telephone practices. Members of the special investigating committee assert that the telephone lobby, which has been on the ground since the first day of the session, have undermined the proposal for municipal control of rates and practices and they question whether their plan will be sanctioned by the legislators unless it is limited to cities of 100,000 population and over. They assert, however, that the Dunne memorial will be adopted by substantial majorities in both houses.
Wednesday afternoon will see a third hearing of major importance under way. At that time members of the Oregon Land Settlement commission, organized in 1919, will appear before a sub-committee of the ways and means committee to show where some $30,000 in state funds have gone in the establishment of model farms at Independence, Roseburg and in the Ochoco irrigation district, and to explain whether there is any good reason why the state should continue to appropriate money for what has proven to be a losing venture. Members of the Ways and Means committee are informed that the Land Settlement commission has expended all the appropriated funds and have incurred an indebtedness against the state running up to $15,000.

Auto License Action This week is also expected to bring forth the first of a series of public hearings upon the automobile license fee regulation bill as drafted by a special committee headed by Senator Kibbie. The chief objection heard to the bill as drafted is that it makes no concession to old cars in the schedules of fees.

Hoover and Smith May Have Visit (Continued from Page 1) was in favor of a navy second to none and that he had expressed a desire that the cruiser bill be passed by congress with the limit, drew a denial on both counts today from Mr. Hoover's office.
As to the cruiser bill it was stated that the president-elect had made no statement because of his announced policy of refraining from interfering with pending legislation in any manner.
When he stopped through the French doors of his executive organized the president-elect was impressed by the splendor of the office which had been set up for him by Joseph H. Adams, whose home is adjacent to the J. C. Penney estate, where Mr. Hoover is living during his Florida stay.

Mr. Hoover had as his first call on Horace A. Mann Washington attorney, who directed the republican campaign in the south last fall.
Courtesy Call Explaining that his call was simply one of courtesy as he had not seen Mr. Hoover since the election, Mr. Mann in reply to questions took cognizance of various published reports that he would be chief patronage dispenser for the south and that he also might be political secretary or adviser to the new president.
"There is no job that Mr. Hoover has that I would have and Mr. Hoover well knows that," Mr. Mann said. "I do not aspire to be dispenser of patronage for the south or any other place; that would be left to the organizations.
"My interest is solely in building up a militia organization in the south from the beginning we were able to make during the last camaign. I will be as helpful in that work as I can be."

Mr. Mann said he was in Florida on a vacation and denied emphatically that he had given out any statement for publication that he would see between twenty thousand and thirty thousand.
" When I came down here I had no way of knowing how many people I would see," he added.
