

The Lady of the House? --or the Drudge-Woman?

The slave of wash-day and drudgery - - or the mistress of her home? Rushed from early morning until late at night with washing, cleaning, scrubbing - - or happily busy with the duties of home-making? You know the different types - - and too often the difference is only the difference between doing things the old way, with antiquated washing machine and scrub-board, and the modern, efficient way, with a new Thor - - quick, clean easy. The difference between the work of a drudge-woman - - and the Lady of the House!

Washday Has No Terrors When You Use The New, Faster

THOR

ELECTRIC WASHER

If your methods of living require the use of modern transportation, you wouldn't think of driving a horse or buggy or an automobile of fifteen years ago.

Yet the electric washing machine has been developed the last few years as rapidly in comparison as the automobile and other means of transportation.

The first washing machines merely adopted to mechanical use the old method of scrubbing clothes—hard on them and not hard enough on the dirt.

The new Thor is a revelation—washes by powerful water action sent through every soiled fabric with perfect cleansing results yet without wear. No rubbing afterward when you use the new Thor. Wash-day drudgery vanishes.

Mrs. O'Connell Is Hostess To Club At Sacajawea Inn

Mrs. J. F. O'Connell entertained members of the Monday Bridge club yesterday at a delightful luncheon at the Sacajawea Inn. Covers were placed for 12 at the table which was pretty with a basket of red carnations for a centerpiece.

Mrs. W. H. Safford was awarded first prize for high score.

Mrs. J. L. Brandt was hostess to the Wakulla Bridge club yesterday afternoon. Three tables of bridge were at play with first prize for high score going to Mrs. J. J. Brownfield and second to Mrs. Chester Koyle.

A two-course luncheon was served by the hostess following the cards.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Brandt and Mr. and Mrs. James O'Neal entertained members of the Wakulla Bridge club and their husbands Saturday night at the Brandt home.

Mrs. George Clark was winner of high score prize for women and Mr. Clark received first for men. Congratulations went to Mrs. Bert Huk and to Jack Oliver.

Valentine place cards were at the individual places for a two-course luncheon served at the table.

February 9 is the date set for the next meeting of the club at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jobn Brownfield with Mr. and Mrs. Chester Koyle assistant host and hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Neil Morrison, of La Grande, entertained Friday evening with a pinocle party at their home. Three tables were at play during the evening with first prize for high score going to Mrs. Madeline Meyer for women and to J. G. Knight for men.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Julian Stalcup, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Moll, Jed Allen, Madeline Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. Knight, Mr. and Mrs. George Tiss and the host and hostess.

At the last meeting of the chapter the members voted that a floral march be held at each meeting, the proceeds to go into a flower fund.

The meeting of the Mother's Self Culture club held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ray Murphy was well attended and those present enjoyed an interesting talk given by Miss Susie Deal, of Central school, on the subject of "Manners and Morals in the School."

A group of friends surprised Mrs. Ray Patton at her home last night on North First street with a party. Twenty-four couples attended the party.

The evening was spent dancing. Sandwiches, cake and coffee were served for refreshments late in the evening.

It is no particular news that Gilda Gray, after shaking herself for years, finally shook her husband.

Library Chats

By Mabel E. Doyt, Librarian

A loud snore broke the stillness of the library. The startled staff members called a hurried consultation. What should be done with the t. p. (tired patron) who had fallen asleep in his rocking chair and was disturbing the masses? Should one have an errand in his vicinity and cough loudly in the hopes of awakening him or would a well-aimed paper be more effective? The question was still under discussion when our t. p. woke himself on his loudest snore and resumed his reading. There may be some books in the library which are dull reading but we can positively guarantee that no one will fall asleep over these new books.

Why Be a Mud Turtle

Stewart Edward White "I should certainly hate to be a mud turtle. He lives encased in a hard shell into which he withdraws at the slightest hint of opposition. He is wholly unresponsive; when anything unfamiliar is presented to him he refuses to argue or even to examine; he just retreats. He is by nature of his shell incapable of looking upward. He is snug and content in the slime of a muddy-log muddy water life. Why be mud turtle?" With this unusual foreword Mr. White has written a most delightful book of essays. There is not a dry chapter in the whole book.

The Humors of the Moon

Mary Praeger Anyone who has not felt romantic over the moon at some period in his life is hopeless and we feel sorry for him. But Mary Praeger finds it romantic and interesting at all times and has written an intensely interesting book about it. You will enjoy a ramble on the moon and will perhaps find out whether it is inhabited or not.

Exploring Your Mind

Albert Wigram A new Wigram book should be all that needs to be said about this book. We know of no author who writes more entertainingly than Mr. Wigram, and you will enjoy exploring your mind with this eminent author. He says an adult of average intelligence should work this problem which is often given on intelligence tests. In five minutes a mother gave her boy a five pint pail and a three pint pail and told him to bring back seven pints of water accurately measured. How did he do it? This is a good one but we won't tell how many minutes it took us to solve it. Get the correct answer at the public library.

Doctor's Love For The Out-of-Doors Proves Blessing to Vast Territory

GREENVILLE, Mo. (AP)—One man's love for the out-of-doors has been a blessing to the lonely dwellers in the vast territory around Moosehead Lake.

Dr. Fred J. Pritcham has been called the Grenfell of the Moosehead Lake region. When he was graduated from the old Bowdoin Medical College 22 years ago, he passed up the lure of city life to establish the most unusual practice in Maine.

A small, wiry man in his early fifties, perhaps, Dr. Pritcham is unconventional as to attire and opinions. In summer he may be found clad in flannel shirt, knickers, woolen stockings and moccasins. Capless, his graying hair is tousled by the breezes from Moosehead, Maine's greatest inland sea.

Believes in Duty The consciousness of duty is strong upon him. He believes it his duty to keep in prime physical condition. He uses no liquor, tobacco, tea or coffee. The great out-of-doors is his heaven. No place is too remote if word comes that a fellow being is suffering and needs his services.

Tough as a lumberjack, he knows the wilderness around Moosehead as well as a professional guide. In summer he goes as far as roads will take him. Then he walks. In winter he plods along forest roads and trails by snowmobile, on horseback and on snowshoes.

From the opening of navigation until Moosehead freezes, Dr. Pritcham uses his 35-foot cabin motor boat extensively in his practice.

Had 300 Cases During the epidemic of 1918 he treated more than 300 cases of influenza and 10 of black pneumonia. He lost one case of pneumonia when a patient, overrating his strength, arose too soon. He permitted himself no rest except such naps as he could snatch on his and unusual things. Teachers should enjoy this book particularly. Meet General Grant W. E. Woodward A splendid new biography which should be widely read. One of The Book-a-Month Club selections. Historic Ring Displayed A ring presented by Robert Burns to Mary Campbell, the Highland Mary of his poems, was recently displayed by Alexander Baird, the owner, of Dumont, Scotland. The ring, which is now rather thin, is of gold, and resembles a "keeper," being carved on the inside. The initials "M. C." can be distinctly seen. Mary Campbell was born at Auchincroft, near Dumont.

Kills Sick wife And Then Suicides BOULDER, Colo., Jan. 23 (AP)—Commissioner for his sick wife, the loss of his position as deputy district attorney, on-coming worries and financial crises led James E. Kirchels to shoot and kill his wife as she slept and then commit suicide. The bodies were discovered yesterday in the Kfirchels home, frozen. The tragedy occurred Sunday.
