SHORT TALK BY A THOUGHTFUL MOTHER

A Tennessee mother talks, Mrs. J. G. C. of Knoxville. "Another thing, everyone who has children should keep Foley's Honey and Tar Compound always on hand, for the children's cough or baby's croup. It certainly exceeds all other cough medicines in healing qualities, and in giving quick and satisfactory results. It is made under absolutely sanitary conditions and contains no opiates—points of especial interest to mothers who want to know what they are giving their children. Our druggist also recommends it highly." Ask for it. Sold everywhere. —Adv.

Marriage
We'll say marriage is coedation.—Atelison Globe.

Patent: "By gosh, doctor, that's an awful bill for that treatment."
Doc: "My dear friend, if you know how interesting your case was and how strongly I was tempted to let it go to a just meritorious, you would not kick at the price."

A REMINDER
"The storm broke so suddenly and so violently that in an instant the house was demolished and scattered to the four winds," related the skit. "How we escaped being tumbled to pieces I do not understand."
"Good gracious!" interrupted one of his audience, jumping to his feet and diving for his hat. "That reminds me that I had forgotten to mail this letter for my wife."

"Round steak, madam?"
"The ahms doesn't interest me so long as it's tender."

The Wedding Guest—I notice you cut out the practice of throwing old shoes after the bridal party. Silly custom, wasn't it?
The Bride's Father—And wasteful. After paying the wedding expenses my family will be wearing those old shoes for a year or so.

Helped by Interruption
Sleep, riches and health are only enjoyed after they have been interrupted.—Richter.

AT THE THEATERS

Rex Bell, Liked By Scouts, Is Featured at Star

Boy Scouts all over the country have taken Rex Bell, Fox Film new Western Ace, straight to their hearts. Nor is this to be wondered at since Bell typifies all that the Scouts stand for. He is clean living and wholesome in his viewpoint as illustrated by the high type of productions he has chosen to appear in.

Bell comes to the Star theater today in "The Cowboy Kid," in which he follows a band of desperate bank robbers who have started a run on the local bank in hopes of intercepting reserve funds sent to stop the run.

Bell also wins the hand of the banker's daughter, played in a charming manner by Mary J. Temple, an attractive newcomer. Others in the cast include Joe DeGrasse, Brooks Benedict, Alice DeGher, Sid Crossley and Harry Blotcher. The story is by Harry Sinclair Drago and Seton I. Miller, and was skillfully directed by Clyde Garruth.

"Shopworn Angel" Now Showing At the Arcade

production which the Arcade theater is now showing, is laid in a dramatic period, a few months after the United States' entry into the World War. It is a period of excitement and movement, a time which every man and woman remembers keenly.

The story, from the pen of Dana Burzet, concerns the meeting of a little Broadway butterfly of the period, whose life is closely intertwined with that of a wealthy playboy. She meets a boy, their love is mutual but the girl finds that riding herself of her past is a difficult assignment. The synchronized music score, built around the theme song "That Precious Little Thing Called Love" will linger with you for some time, a real "contagious melody" of love and a talking and singing climax that you will talk about.

"Moon of Israel" Showing At Colonial

"Moon of Israel," one of the mightiest pictures in motion picture history, will be shown at the Colonial theater, beginning today. The film has some of the most tremendous scenes that have ever been screened and the sets alone cost more than half a million dollars. All the tricks of camera and lighting, together with more than thirty thousand extras, a thousand metal chariots, and almost three thousand horsemen, make the film a thrilling spectacle, and one that will linger in the minds of audiences for a long while.

The film is taken from the famous novel by Sir H. Rider Haggard and was directed by Michael Curtiz under the supervision of the author. The novel is one of the best known of Sir Rider Haggard's works, and the picture more than does justice to the story. The theme of the picture is the romance between an Israelite slave-girl and the Prince of Egypt. A romance that begins beneath the burning suns of the Egyptian desert and carries the little slave girl to the throne of the greatest kingdom in the world.

The cast includes Maria Corda, Arlette Marchal, Adelphi Millar, Ferdinand Ouzna and Henry Mar. The story was adapted for the screen by Tadblaus Vajda, the great Hungarian playwright, and the titles are by the author himself.

Skin Disease Old

According to archeologists, our great-grandfathers of thousands of years ago suffered severely from diseases of the skin, possibly caused by unsanitary surroundings and improperly prepared foods.

CHICAGO'S OPERA'S 40-YEAR HOME PASSES

The Chicago Civic Opera company soon will close its activities at its home of 40 years. (Interior, upper left) and move next fall to its new 42-story building (lower right). Adeline Patil (upper right) appeared in "Romeo and Juliet" when the old auditorium opened in 1889. The same Shakespearean drama will close the old building.

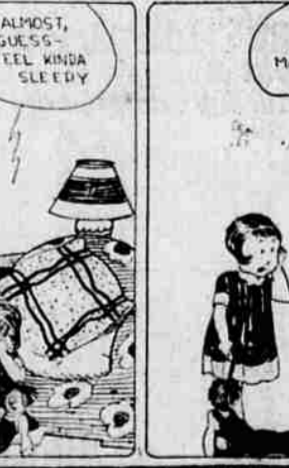

CHICAGO (AP)—Forty years of opera in the Auditorium theater ends soon with the Chicago Civic Opera company's last performance in the old building.

Next fall the opera company will play in the huge new 42-story Opera building, towering above the murky Chicago river. "Romeo and Juliet" was the first opera sung in the Auditorium. Adeline Patil's touching tones gave life to the ill-fated Juliet that night of Dec. 16, 1889. For the final opera in the brown-tinted vestment of the theater, Edith Mason will be the Juliet and Charles Hackett Romeo. The Auditorium building, of which the theater was a part, was completed in 1887. Louis H. Sullivan designed it to combine hotel, opera, ballroom with convention hall, office quarters and tower. In the years that followed the introduction of opera the Auditorium and Fine Arts buildings became "Song Bird Alley." Through its narrow confines passed the singers to and from their quarters in the theater. The Auditorium is at Congress, Wabash and Michigan. The new opera is across the loop at Washington, Madison and Wacker drive, across the river from the new Chicago Daily News building.

Not Procrastinators

"Mamma" is not, says the Brooklyn Eagle, such a bad word as it's sometimes cracked up to be, and one gathers that the quick-witted modern Chicanos, who are proud of being called the Yankees of the South, have kept enough of the "mamma" spirit to put off unnecessary years' ill inasmuch, though they do essential tasks today.
