KENTUCKY RELICS NOT SO ANCIENT?

Three Mountaineers Suspected of Manufacturing "Prized" Finds

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Mar. 8 (AP)—Kentucky mountaineers, in a manner, always have interested scientists. Their pure Anglo-Saxon blood, their ideals and ideas really make them an interesting people. But an idea evolved in recent years which resulted in many celebrated northern and eastern museums displaying "rare" Indian relics purchased at good prices now engages the profound study of the scientist who soon will be called upon to testify in a federal court in Louisville as to their authenticity and whether or not famous museums have been duped by just a plain Kentucky mountaineer's idea. Federal investigators say they have and here's the story what they found:

Cumberland City is tucked away in the Cumberland mountains of Kentucky. Near it live Mark Hanna Gaffey, W. M. "Wade" Bell and E. V. "Vet" Jones.

Vast Wealth of Relics

Cumberland City came to the attention of Indian relic collectors, antique hunters and scientists upon discovery that the surrounding country abounded in vast wealth of prehistoric objects of great value. Many of the relics were of a strange variety and unknown to science.

From time of discovery until Uncle Sam took a hand there was a steady flow of rare pottery, objects of age-old Indian art and decorations into hands of collectors, according to United States District Attorney Thomas J. Sparks, of Louisville.

Certain relic collectors and experts began to lose faith in their purchases and their source and complained to the government. An investigation started.

Strange Work Shop

Agents of the government uncovered Indian relics in the hills of Clinton county until they came upon a strange work shop—then was when attention was directed at Gaffey, Bell and Jones.

The work shop was crude with but an old Ford car as chief implement and power plant. It, however, turned out wares so genuine in appearance that, just as federal agents say, they found places among the best and most authentic collections, with approval of many eminent gentlemen of science.

Charge Fraud

Gaffey, Bell and Jones have been cited to come down to the city from their mountain workshop on charges of using the mails to defraud and to tell just what they can do with an old Ford car and a few Kentucky mountain limestone rocks.

The mountaineer will contend he has a right to do what he "damned wants to" with his mountain rocks just like he has always contended he has the right to raise his corn and make moonshine whiskey out of it instead of corned peas—if he wants to.

Uncle Sam will decide the former soon, just as he did the latter conviction long ago.

FLIES TO JUNGLE

VERA CRUZ, Mar. 8 (AP)—General Jesus M. Aguirre has reached the jungle region on the Isthmus of Tehuantepec. The train in which he fled this city after the collapse of his revolt was found at Tierra Blanca, where he had abandoned it. Federal forces continued to follow him up but pursuit in most difficult in the tangled wilds in which he has sought refuge.

The city awoke today to find life almost normal after a week of excitement and battle.

Dr. N. A. Upchurch of Jacksonville, Fla., has given away his dog and bought a canary. "Canaries don't bite and spread rabies," he contends.

Frank Harrigan of Arkansas City, Kas., operated his radio at "unreasonable hours," charged H. M. Strickler, a hotel owner. Strickler sought an injunction against the radio fan.

A course of lectures on Latin-American commerce has been inaugurated by the Royal Institute for Economic and Commercial Sciences at Rome.

Gossiping or loafing on the beat is forbidden police of Winchester, Va., by new regulations.

ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

PORTLAND, Ore., Mar. 8 (AP)—His throat terribly slashed, C. S. Wallace, believed to be from Outlook, Wash., was in a hospital here today in a serious condition. Police said he attempted to end his life by slashing at his throat with a razor.

A concrete feeding floor for hogs passes less grain than any other kind. A rise of two inches around the outside will prevent the grain from being pushed off. Slope the platform slightly to facilitate washing and draining, and make the concrete somewhat rough to prevent the hogs from slipping.

It is possible to increase the protein content of winter wheat one-third or even more by the application of sodium nitrate at time of heading. An application in early spring increases the yield of grain.
