Library Chats

By MABEL E. DOTY, Librarian.

In spite of the fact that the spring-like weather has a tendency to lure people out of doors and away from books, the library continues to have excellent circulation. Several requests have recently come in from Wallawa county for books. How we wish that the library might spread itself as a county library over one or two counties. Several books of interest have been put into circulation just lately. "The Magic Island," by Sealbrook promises to be as popular as the Ludwig books. Katharine Maye's "Mother India" has perhaps been the book most in demand for some months but others are now beginning to take its place. Here are a few readable non-fiction titles:

Youth in Conflict. Marian Van Waters.

One of the library's patrons is very enthusiastic about this book and says of it, "It is a book that every adult who deals with children should read. Marian Van Waters has an uncanny insight into the workings of the child mind and lays the causes of delinquency at the door of the grown-up."

Dog-Puncher on the Yukon. A. T. Walden.

Men will like this book. Mr. Walden has put into an interesting narrative his exciting, strange and sometimes harrowing experiences both before and after the Klondike gold strike, when he was a trader and driver of dog teams on the trail.

Romance of the Sun. Mary Proctor.

There is the Sun beaming down on us every day but how many of us ever give it a thought? Mrs. Proctor tells us of some wonderful revelations concerning it discovered by means of photography and the spectroscope.

Slaves of the Sun. Ferdinand Ossendowski.

"Ossendowski has penetrated into the mysterious heart of the black continent and has shown us the collective soul of the teeming millions of struggling slaves of the Sun."

Book of Green Vegetables. Mollie Gold.

Green vegetables—fresh, delectable, inexpensive, the most healthful element of the diet—yet how often they are prepared with a too appalling sameness. Housewives whose daily slogan must be, "The Battle Cry of Food 'Em," will find in this book 200 different ways of serving thirty nine varieties of green vegetables. Why not surprise the family with a new and appetizing dish?

DOGS PAY HIM VISIT

uses a cup of SUGAR in boiling ham

A famous cook gives his recipe

A MAN, famous among his friends for his fine cooking, was asked the secret of his delicious boiled ham. He gave this simple recipe: Put a cupful of sugar in the water that boils an average size ham. Also one-half cup of vinegar. Try this and see how much it improves the taste and flavor of the ham.

Every good cook knows that there is no substitute for sugar in improving the enjoyment of other foods. Whether in preparing fresh vegetables, fruits or meats, sugar is the secret of successful cookery.

Sweetness is nature's perfect flavor. It is also the cheapest nutrient that you can buy.

Health comes from eating good foods, flavored to please the taste. Beware of extreme reducing diets. They are dangerous. Eminent medical authorities warn us that permanent injury often results from starvation diets.

Be sure that you and your children are properly nourished. Eat enough of varied foods, sweetened for enjoyment. The Sugar Institute.

"DULL" CHILDREN FOUND NORMAL MENTALLY BY CORRECTION OF PHYSICAL HANDICAPS

By Leon Hanov, M. D. City and County Health Officer, Charleston, S. C.

We have not yet forgotten the joy that the American public received when the results of the physical examinations of the draft in the World War were first made known. The popular growth of the school medical inspection movement was but the natural consequence of a practical people when confronted by the fact that their youth of being a strong and healthy nation had been exploded.

While the early school medical inspections were aimed primarily toward the prompt recognition of the acute contagious diseases of childhood, the greatest good has been accomplished in an entirely different direction—in the discovery and correction of those slight and chronic ailments that tend to devalue the child at an early age, when he needs every ounce of energy for growth and the carrying on of his school work.

These examinations have uncovered numerous instances of children having been considered dull and mentally backward by their teachers when the real causes of their inability to keep up with their class room work lay in the fact that they were suffering with either defective vision or defective hearing, or some other physical handicap that when removed or corrected allowed the child to improve physically as well as mentally.

In the periodic examinations of the school child, the physician often discovers physical defects unsuspected by the parents of the children and in a great many instances unknown even to the school child himself. The correction of these defects has invariably made for healthier, stronger bodies with clearer and more alert minds. The most common defects found among school children are defective teeth, diseased tonsils, defective vision and malnutrition. Oc-asionally, however, more serious conditions are discovered, to the surprise of the child and his parents. A great many such conditions have been discovered in their infancy, with the result that the little school child was enabled to receive suitable treatment to arrest the progress of the disease and to cure the damage already done.

Tuberculosis, heart trouble, and diseases of the kidneys are only a few of the conditions found among school children that if allowed to go on untreated would mean invalidism or early death for the youngster. The early discovery of such conditions and the prompt treatment of them have been known to check the disease and restore the child to a life of health and usefulness. An incalculable amount of good can be accomplished by the periodic physical examination of the school child; if the parent will follow up the results of these examinations with a view to an early correction of all physical defects discovered. If this were done in every instance, it would mean the involvement of a healthier, happier people, because only by improving the health of your future citizens can we hope to improve

Allows "Reserve for Depreciation"

In modern business the question of depreciation plays an important part. Furniture, fixtures, machinery, stocks of goods, office equipment, motor equipment, etc., all depreciate in value.

Your constant loss through depreciation is recognized by the federal government—but too frequently it is not recognized by the way a man runs his business.

Fixtures, machinery, and other things wear out—become obsolete. There comes a time when they have to be replaced with new things.

That's what the "reserve for depreciation" is for—permitting a gradual, month-by-month accumulation of a reserve fund so that the replacements can be made without embarrassing or handicapping the business.

You can make your reserve fund an investment as well as a protection by using our 4% Certificates of Deposit. We'll be glad to discuss the matter if you are interested in establishing such a reserve.
