FILE PETITIONS AGAINST TAX LAW

Protests Reach Salem A Week After Legislators Approve Bill

SALLEM, Ore., Mar. 12 (AP)—Just a week after adjournment of the legislative session that enacted the new income tax law in Oregon two preliminary petitions for referendum were filed against the measure. These were received at the office of the secretary of state late Monday afternoon. The first was filed by A. V. Hemming, general manager of the Oregon Industrial council and the other by J. B. Smith, attorney for the Greater Oregon association and member of the property tax relief commission that sponsored most of the tax measures introduced at the recent session.

There is a possibility that the Hemming petition may be found defective, it was said at the office of the secretary of state. That probably will be decided by the attorney general today. Anyways, the two movements doubtless will be merged. It was stated officially that should both be legal and the petitions of both completed, only one referendum measure would appear on the ballot, and that this would omit the names of the sponsors.

Although the measure cannot be voted on before the election of November, 1930, the completed petitions must be filed with the secretary of state on or before June 3, this year, and they must contain 272 names. Both the Hemming and the Smith petitions were referred to the attorney general for checking and for preparation of ballot title.

The income tax bill was one of the three major revenue measures coming out of the 1929 legislature. The other two were the excise tax bill and the intangibles tax bill. Smith says the income tax bill was not in accord with the program of the property tax relief commission. The other two bills were sponsored by it.

Legislators Report

Proceeding this Representative Weatherston, Senator Fred E. Riddle and Senator Colon B. Eberhard spoke briefly of the accomplishments of the state legislature and also of their part in the state house activities. All were of the opinion that they had accomplished all that was possible for this session, and they all declared that the legislature as a whole had done more in passing constructive laws for Oregon than any other legislature in the last 20 years.

Murder Trial On In Federal Court

PORTLAND, Mar. 12 (AP)—Huron Baker, Klamath Indian, went on trial in federal court here today charged with second-degree murder in connection with the death of Edward Riddle. Baker is alleged to have killed Riddle on Nov. 28 by battering his skull with a hammer. The killing was the climax of a drunken party, the government contends, and is alleged to have resulted from a dispute over a gallon of whiskey.

sky from the north. "Around threshold time in North Dakota and Minnesota, I have read a newspaper at 12 o'clock at night by the light of the aurora borealis," says H. T. Holmosen, of Spokane, a visitor in La Grande. "The northern lights are never the same. They are impossible to describe, as they are so astounding. I have seen them climb upward clear over the apex of the sky. They show best when nights are cold and the atmosphere clear, from Fargo, N. D., north."

JUDGE LINDSEY, RECTOR DEBATE

mitted that companionate marriage, as Judge Lindsey defined it, exists today. "I admit that companionate marriages exist," he said, "but, we are debating whether they should be legalized."

He defined companionate marriage as a state of matrimony in which the two persons have few joint responsibilities, are not required to contribute to each other's support and may obtain a "divorce" by mutual consent.

Dr. Riley emphasized the point that companionate marriage does not exist with the birth of a child to the couple and therefore, he confined his arguments to a "trial marriage" in which children do not figure.

marriage, he asserted.

He regarded companionate marriage in his arguments as of a lower moral level than the present plan and therefore, unworthy of adoption. Morality doesn't depend on legal enactment at all, he said.

As a clincher, he pointed out that companionate marriage is "not in accord with the dictates of the Delty."

In his rebuttal Judge Lindsey stated that he, too, is opposed to trial marriage, but he endeavored to show that his plan of companionate marriage has nothing to do with trial marriage.

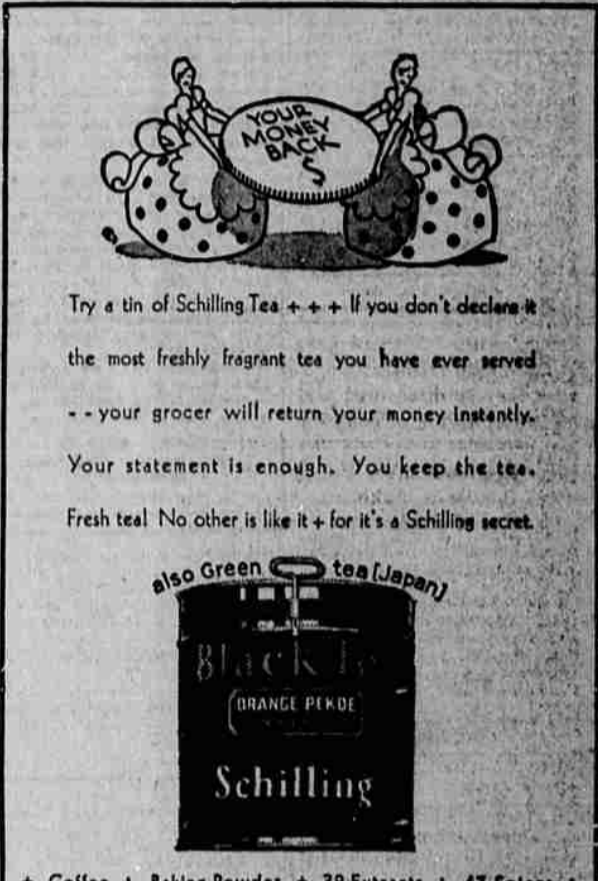

Love All Important One of the leading points brought out by Dr. Riley in his ## closing talk was that marriage, not based on love, is not perfect, not real.

Judge Lindsey emphasized again that he is a strong supporter of procreative marriages and a strong believer in family life but that as he sees it his plan would tend to bring present customs out of darkness into a scientifically supervised, legalized light.

Both men were applauded frequently as they brought out salient points in their arguments and both, as on occasion their remarks touched on a lighter, witty vein, caused ripples of amusement with humorous banter directed at the arguments put forth.

Hugh E. Brady, Justice of the peace and prominent in legion affairs, presided at the debate. Members of the local post served as ushers.
