AT THE THEATERS

"Street Of Illusion" At Arcade Tomorrow

Hollywood's famous Music Box Theater was turned into a Broadway playhouse for sequences in Columbia's "The Street of Illusion," the picture coming to the Arcade theater on Sunday. The Music Box is the home of elaborate revues and a favorite playhouse of movie celebrities.

For "The Street of Illusion," a drama was enacted on the stage in which Virginia Vall appeared as heroine; Kenneth Thomson as hero; Ian Keith as a butler and understudy for the star; Harry Myers as stage director and Vaillin L'Esneff as an actor. Each of these movie favorites has won an enviable reputation upon the spoken stage and it was like old times for them to get into the theater again. The play in the picture is called "The Avenger." The action shows the manner in which a Broadway production is cast, the rehearsals, the setting of the stage, the opening performance and other points of interest in the staging of a drama.

Special settings were designed in the Columbia studios that the production might ring true to Broadway. Among the number were the interior of a Fifth Avenue mansion; an apartment in the "Roaring Forties," a pressing shop and the room behind it on Fifth Avenue, the interior of a well known players club where actors congregate to discuss shop, and the office of a well known producer. These sets were all constructed according to specifications and plans and from photographs of the places.

Mary Garden is quoted as saying talking pictures spell the doom of grand opera and the legitimate theater. Well, well, Mary, so you're going into the movies!

Herr Eckstein, the dean of Berlin claqueurs, has celebrated his twenty-fifth anniversary as a paid applauder.

"The Red Mark" Feature At Star Sunday

Will "The Red Mark" upset movie traditions and evolve an entirely new type of screen play? James Cruze, pioneer in many daring film innovations—the first man to spend $600,000 on a "Western" with "The Covered Wagon" and the first man to make an intimate object the point of interest in a photoplay as he did the ship in "Old Ironsides"—is again blazing a new trail with "The Red Mark," which will be on view at the Star theater on Sunday.

In this feature, adapted by Walter Woods from John Russell's story, Cruze has followed the original tale exactly. "The Red Mark" is laid in a surrounding never before dared by producers—a penal island, inhabited by criminals and their keepers. With one exception, every important character of the story is a convict. The exception is Nena Quartaro, lovely Cruze find, who plays the part of the daughter of convicted parents.

Others featured in the cast besides Miss Quartaro are Gaston Glass, Gustav von Seyffertitz and Rose Blum, Luke Cosgrave, Eugene Pallette, Jack Roper and Charles Darrow play important parts.

Smith: "Nobody will steal my snow shovel this winter."
Jones: "That so?"
Smith: "Yes, I've just discovered it's under 10 tons of coal in the cellar."
