Rod La Rocque Here In "Captain Swagger"

Rod La Rocque takes to the air in his newest Pathé comedy romance, "Captain Swagger," now at the Star theater and in which Sue Carol is featured as leading woman.

In the earlier sequences of this story, the handsome and popular star is seen to excellent advantage as an expert in tallpines and nose dives, who does his part to make the world safe for Democracy as a flyer with the Lafayette Escadrille. He believes airplanes will be common as automobiles in the near future.

So interesting did Rod find his excursion into the air during the making of the picture that he has continued the practice since that time. He purposes to purchase a plane as soon as his picture contracts give him time to indulge in this sport to a greater extent.

Sue Carol plays opposite La Rocque in this exciting story, which brings in the war zone of France and reaches a dramatic climax in the night clubs of New York. As Rod's war-time mechanical and peace-time valet, Victor Porel provides some rare comedy scenes, while Ulrich Haupt and Richard Tucker have other important roles.

E. H. Griffith, who guided Rod La Rocque in two previous Pathé successes, "Hold 'Em Yale" and "Love Over Night," directed "Captain Swagger" and Hector Turnbull produced it.

Belle Bennett In Picture Coming Here

Belle Bennett, one of the most popular character actresses in the United States, is admirably cast for the maternal part in "Mother Machree," Fox films' version of Rida Johnson Young's song and story of mother-love, which begins a three day run at the Arcade theater Thursday. John Ford, creator of "The Iron Horse," "3 Bad Men" and other screen masterpieces, directed the picture.

Miss Bennett, who won international fame by her unforgettable performance in "Stella Dallas," brings to this sweetest of Irish stories a broad human sympathy and a full complement of mother-love drawn from the recesses of her own soul. Studio critics have pronounced her present characterization one of the most touching roles she has ever attempted. Humor and pathos are adroitly blended in a swiftly-moving plot which reaches a smashing climax when Miss Bennett is confronted by the necessity of eloping or rejecting her own son.

The Irish scenes and sequences are faithfully reproduced, as many of the backgrounds were filmed in Galway. The cast includes such outstanding stars of the screen as Ethel Clayton, Victor McLaglen, the Captain Flag of "What Price Glory," Ted McNamara, Eulalia Jensen and Constance Howard, while Philippe Le Langue, one of the most beautiful and remarkable child actors is cast in the role of Brian the son of Mother Machree.

THE GARDEN

TEACH CHILDREN ABOUT PLANTS
Even as a child delights To visit day by day the favorite plant

His hand has sown, to mark its gradual growth. And watch all-anxious for the promised flower.

One thing of which we are sure all children love—their love to be told stories. The child's mind is one of imagination. Touch that imagination and you will get their interest and response.

There is a wealth of legend and story about flowers told in the manner the child loves. These stories will appeal to all children and stimulate their interest in flowers.

Many children seem to notice flowers and have a natural affection for them, but you can develop this interest for flowers by making flowers accessories to the child's play. The youngsters are proud of their table. They feel independent and their chief delight is to emulate the customs and manners of their elders. As you plan to decorate your table with flowers, remember that a bouquet will delight the youngsters.

The children enjoy flowers even more than do the grown-ups. That, in itself, justifies the bouquet for the children's table.

Of course you, too, must be interested in flowers and have many of them, inside of the house and out if you expect the children to be interested in them. Just the presence of many flowers, even if little is said about them, will establish a pleasant association and a love for beauty in the child's mind.

Give the children their own garden. Let them make it their own way, plant it, cultivate it and watch it grow. The earth is a veritable storehouse of pleasure for children when they can work in it and plant seeds and plants for their very own.

A few children's garden tools for equipment, a little time on your own part in making garden will start the child in this world of adventure.

Children who grow up amid trees, shrubs and flowers are habitually happy in spirit, discriminating and imaginative. This environment fosters their precious instinct to surround themselves with simple beauty.

The marriage had just been performed. The high-powered young business man turned to the preacher. "Well, what do I owe you?" "Anything whatever you think it's worth."

"Good enough and a fair proposition. I'll give you 15 per cent of her earnings for the next year, less her cost to me."

"My father," Smith bragged, "occupied a high position when he died." Jones said, "One often does, by heck. Who has a rope around his neck?"

Mrs. Marmont says: "It's a shame sign of spring when the Scotchman throws out his Christmas tree."

Little Johnny who had been praying for some months for God to send him a baby, brother, finally became discouraged. "I don't believe God has any more little boys to send," he said to his mother, "and I am going to stop asking for one."

Early one morning, not long after this, he was taken into his mother's room to three boys, triplets, that had arrived during the night. Johnny regarded them thoughtfully for a few minutes. "Goody!" he remarked finally. "It's a good thing I stopped praying when I did."

Two small boys returning to their schoolroom after recess showed evidence of having been crying. Teacher: "Percy, why are you crying?" Percy: "Harold kicked me in the stomach."

Teacher: "Harold, did you mean to kick Percy in the stomach?" Harold: "Now, I didn't, but he turned around just as I kicked."
