WILL ARBITRATE U.S.-CANADA ROW

I'm Alone Dispute to Be Submitted to Two Nominees Shortly

WASHINGTON, Apr. 26 (AP)—The dispute between the United States and Canada over the sinking of the run runner I'm Alone by the coast guard patrol boat Dexter 200 miles off the Louisiana coast is to be submitted to arbitration. This action, suggested by Secretary Stimson in his exchange of notes with the Canadian government through its minister, Vincent Massey, will be taken under a clause of the 1924 rubber treaty between the United States and Great Britain. This clause provides that a dispute under the treaty shall be submitted first to two arbitrators, one nominated by each government, and that if they fail to agree, it shall be referred, under the claims commission agreement of 1910, to three arbitrators, including one neutral.

The correspondence on the I'm Alone case, published this morning, disclosed that the Canadian government conceded that the schooner, which was of Canadian registry, had unquestionably been engaged for a number of years, under various owners, in endeavoring to smuggle liquor into the United States, but raised three points under the 1924 treaty. The I'm Alone, it held, was not within the search and seizure limit of "one hour's sailing distance" from the American coast when halted nor at any time during the pursuit which ended with her sinking. That essential elements of the international doctrine of "hot pursuit" were lacking in the case, and that the sinking of the vessel was too severe a measure to effect American rights under the treaty.

The American position, set forth by Secretary Stimson, was that the I'm Alone was within one hour's sailing distance of the shore when halted; that continuous and hot pursuit took place, and that the sinking was justified.

Two Important Announcements Made At Geneva

GENEVA, Apr. 26—(AP)—Two important announcements were made at today's session of the preparatory disarmament commission, one being that the United States was willing to withdraw its reservation to the exclusion of trained reserves from any limitation of armaments and the second being a Spanish proposal for the creation of an international force of peace aviators.

The American position on trained reserves hitherto had been that they should be subjected to limitation just as standing armies should be. Hugh S. Gibson, the American delegate to the commission, today made it clear that the United States still believed his but was willing to withdraw its reservation on the matter as a gesture of conciliation. France and Japan, both of which countries are most affected, welcomed Mr. Gibson's announcement warmly and said they were convinced it would hasten an accord on a reduction in armaments.
