Few girls are as bad as they are painted—or as beautiful.

Before long the world will be getting itself told by the college graduates.

"WHAT'LL I DO?"

"Drive me to Buckingham Palace," said H. H. H. Prince George, youngest son of the King-Empress, to a taxi chauffeur.

Prudent, the fellow drove to a police station, where he called cheerily, "What! This bloke inside me cab wants to go to Buckingham Palace. What'll I do with him?"

Nothing was done to the taxi driver.

Students in psychology at a Colorado college have found that each class shortens life three minutes. But what would 10 centuries of life amount to without classes?

Mother—Now, Willie, I want you to go in and get acquainted with the new nurse and kiss her nice.

Willie—Yes! and get my nice slapped, like papa did.

Take care that the face which looks out from your mirror in the mornings is a pleasant face. You may not see it all day but others will.

AT THE THEATERS

Strong Cast In "Trail of '98" Coming to Star

A picture of powerful appeal, great magnitude, brilliant acting, flawless direction.

"That is a terse description of "The Trail of '98," the big Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film epic which will open at the Star theater Wednesday.

Ralph Forbes, Dolores Del Rio, Harry Carey, Karl Dane, Tully Marshall, George Cooper! All stand out in the gigantic cast of fifty which was assembled to portray the characters in this great film story.

If you liked Forbes in "Beau Geste," "Mr. Wu" or "The Enemy" you will like him still better in "The Trail of '98."

If you think Dolores Del Rio reached the pinnacle in "What Price Glory," "Resurrection," "Carmen" or "Loloma" you are mistaken, and you have yet to see her in "The Trail of '98."

Picture-goers have loved Harry Carey from the days of western stardom down to the more recent pictures, such as "Slide, Kelly, Slide" and other Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer productions. But Harry Carey has never been at his best until he appeared in the film adaptation of Robert W. Service's "The Trail of '98."

Remember Karl Dane as "Slim" in "The Big Parade," as the headliner in "The Scarlet Letter," as the janitor in "La Boheme," as the reformer in "Burdelys the Magnificent" and as the hardboiled pie sergeant in "Roogie"? Well, you have to learn by seeing "The Trail of '98" just what Dane can do with a good role.

Everybody remembers Tully Marshall in "The Merry Widow," "The Covered Wagon" and other screen masterpieces, but his role as the sanctimonious card sharp in "The Trail of '98" will forever stand as the high-water mark of his career.

Clarence Brown, who directed "Fish and the Devil," "The Goose Woman," and a dozen other film masterpieces, proves he is an ace director by his marvelous direction of "The Trail of '98." A pen can't any more describe this picture than a pen can describe the Klondike gold rush. You will have to see it yourself—and then see it again!

Variety of entertainment has always been a feature of the moving pictures in which Douglas MacLean is the star, and so it is not surprising to find Doug outline something else new in his latest picture, "The Carnation Kid," which is the feature production at the Arcade theater Wednesday for three days.

During the last few years Doug has appeared in pictures of a great variety; one time he is a mountain climber, then he's on a lion hunt in Africa; perhaps in a farce comedy of thrills thrown in for good measure. This time he appears in a picture that is a real story which includes some very dramatic situations mixed up with love and politics, some amusing comedy as well. Doug goes in for a melodramatic story based on underworld life in a big city is something new but this is what the plot is in "The Carnation Kid." The title comes from the name of a famous gunman who gets mixed up with Clarence, an innocent enough typewriter salesman.

Douglas MacLean is the latter, and it is in the mix-up that the entertaining situations develop. Appearing with MacLean in this Paramount-Christie production are Frances Lee, Lorraine Eddy, William B. Davidson, Francis McJonathan, Charles Malles and others.
