AT THE THEATERS

Vivid Action In Talkie With Douglas MacLean

The screen fare at the Arcade theater opening today, presents Douglas MacLean in "The Carnation Kid," a fast-moving dramatic story of love, politics, elections, underworld machinations and many other elements of life in a busy city, with 70% dialogue and music.

Seen with MacLean are quite a number of well known motion picture players including Frances Lee, Lorraine Eddy, William H. Davidson, Charles Hill Mailes, Francis McDonald, Maurice Black and a host of types portraying the politicians and the gangsters and others.

This Paramount-Christie-MacLean production goes through a wide range of fast moving scenes beginning on a train where a typewriter salesman gets mixed up with "The Carnation Kid," a famous gangster from a city where gangsters flourish. There's a romance on the train as well as a chase of the police and the well armed underworld characters; election campaigns with their torchlight parades, a vamping stenographer who falls for "The Carnation Kid," stories of his exploits, and a typewriter salesman in considerable hot water all the way through.

Night Stampede Impressive In "Trail of '98"

Of the dozens of lavish scenes filmed during the making of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Trail of '98," now being shown at the Star theater, one stands out as probably the most novel and spectacular incident ever transplanted to celluloid.

Hundreds of flaming torches, casting their almost ghastly light upon the snow, which reflects it back and illuminates hundreds of maddened men and hurrying dogs, rushing over mountain trails, dipping into the gulches, fading into the night only to reappear again at some more distant point, has furnished one of the strangest effects ever flashed upon the American screen.

The sequence depicts a mad stampede in the dead of night to the locale of a new and rich gold strike along the banks of one of the many creeks tributary to the Yukon.

This scene is one of the almost numberless thrills of the great northern film epic which Clarence Brown directed for M-G-M. It follows a gambling hall scene where a drunken Swede is prevailed upon to disclose the location of his very rich strike.

Practically all of the five hundred miners gathered in the hall, a number of the dancing girls, gamblers and bartenders, join the stampede to file claims near the Swede's. In the dead of night they rush from the brilliantly lighted hall into the darkness.

Hundreds of flaming torches light their way in the mad race for the new gold fields.

This is but one of the great spectacular touches which Brown has injected into the film version of Robert W. Service's famous novel of the Klondike gold rush.

More than fifty well-known players are in the cast of "The Trail of '98," the leading roles being taken by Ralph Forbes, Dolores Del Rio, and Harry Carey. Others who have prominent parts are Karl Dane, George Cooper, Tenen Holtz, Johnny Downs, William Orland, Edward Coxen and Emily Fitzroy. More than fifteen hundred extras appear in the mob scenes.

HEALTH

"DOCTOR, SHOULD I WORRY?"

By J. Victor Greenbaum, M. D., Cincinnati, Ohio

At a recent meeting of the American Medical Association, a group of child specialists from all parts of the United States were informally discussing the problem of telephone questions from anxious mothers. It appeared that all the doctors present were similarly afflicted. An informal straw ballot of the question most often asked resulted in "Doctor, Should I Worry?" receiving the highest vote.

The telephone is undoubtedly one of man's greatest boons, but on the other hand its use is also much abused. Let us list a few of the most frequent daily queries:

"Johnny has fever and a rash. Is that anything to worry about?" "Mary had a pain in her stomach and I have her castor oil without relief. Did I do right?"

"Paul cried last night so we gave him paregoric and he is still sleeping. Do you think you ought to see him?"

"Billy has an earache, which is worse since we put oil in the ear. What more should we do?"

"Susie has had a cough all week and made a funny noise after the last spell. What do you think she has?"

"Baby vomited its milk this ing doctor for neglecting the child if conditions later on became serious.

No detailed telephonic description of a child's illness is as scientifically accurate as a careful physical examination by the doctor. Telephone questions and reports in general after visits of the doctor are proper and reliable.

The expense of a timely visit may be cheaper in the end, and also may prevent much needless suffering and heartache.
