Local News In Brief

Mr. Peare in Portland—
Atmospheric pressure interferes with the timepieces carried by railroad men on the O. W. R. & N. railroad between Umatilla and Huntington. "Ours is the most difficult railroad division in the United States on which to keep the watches regulated, and yet the timepieces carried by the enginemen and other trainmen vary only four or five seconds," said J. H. Peare, of La Grande, at the Imperial yesterday. Mr. Peare has been a watch inspector for the Union Pacific for years. "There are three distinct climates in eastern Oregon between Umatilla and Huntington," he said. The trains climb from an altitude of 250 feet at Umatilla to 3400 feet at Baker, and then drop to an altitude of 2000 feet at Huntington. The watchmakers have learned how to overcome heat and cold, but they can't make a timepiece that is impervious to the altitude."—Oregonian.

ror, More's hard hit fly was caught by Hargett, and then Myers walked McKennon. With two men on bases Sylvester struck out and Knight hit a grounder to the pitcher.

Moore Shines in Field

The outstanding fielding, however, was contributed by Moore, of La Grande, who was a perfect wall, making one beautiful running catch, and cutting down extra-base hits to singles with his accurate throw-ins.

Part of the game was played in a dust storm, which failed to add to La Grande's cheer.

Next Sunday Enterprise will play in La Grande, their initial appearance here as a member of the Blue Mountain league.

several non-stop flights, including a 12-hour trip last summer from Spokane to St. Paul.

Flying Since 1915

He is one of the few remaining pilots in the country who started flying before the war. Mamer, since 1915, has been in the air more or less continuously, never missing a 30-day period in that time without handling the stick. He has flown about 8,000 hours and 4,000 have been with some 16,000 passengers and he has never injured or even frightened any of the passengers. He is vice president and general manager of the Mamer company, the oldest aviation firm in continuous business in the northwest. He enlisted in the aviation branch of the army at the time of the world war and flew as a lieutenant until after the armistice. Today he is a lieutenant in the 41st division air service unit, Washington national guard, spending two weeks each year in active military flying. He has also spent many hundreds of hours flying forest patrol planes over the timbered areas of Washington, Idaho and Montana.

PROGRAM GIVEN AT HOSPITAL BY LOCAL ARTISTS

stands one new piece of machinery which is very interesting—a nitrous oxide and oxygen combination machine. This is used to give the gas preceding the general anaesthetic and one of its prominent features is the fact that the period of time required to put the patient under, has been lessened from about 15 minutes to 5 minutes. The surgery also came in for its share of refinishing and general improvement.

Plans for the public reception yesterday were made by Chapter I. P. E. O., as a part of this society's annual program. Mrs. Hal Bohnenkamp served as chairman of the committee in charge and was assisted by Mrs. Robert Eakin, Mrs. C. H. Bidwell, Mrs. George H. Currey and Mrs. A. L. Richardson. Included in their planning, the guests calling between one and five after inspecting the building were entertained with a musical program, to which local people contributed. Vocal soloists included Mrs. A. L. Richardson, Mrs. Bohnenkamp, Miss Ruth Gelbel, Mrs. Ray Fuller, Miss Daisy Robbs, Ray Williams, Mrs. S. B. Morgan, numbers by the Triad choir, piano selections by Mrs. Ralph Clark.

During the earlier part of the afternoon Mrs. F. A. Epling and Mrs. Harry Wagoner served and during the latter part, Mrs. Clyde Seltz and Mrs. Marjorie Francis. These ladies were also assisted by members of the committee and Miss Wandas, superintendent of the hospital.

The beautiful apple blossoms, cherry blossoms, tulips and profusions of wild flowers were used all over the building yesterday.

charges of some of the students involving Dr. T. T. Shields, 61, Toronto, president, and Miss Edith H. Redhman, 40, secretary of the board. In the background also were reports of a fundamentalist-modernist controversy and contentions that board had imported Canadian students to spy upon members of the faculty.

Egg Bombardment

Students bombarded the administration building, in which the trustees met, with eggs and other missiles. Police were called to disperse the rioters and Dr. Shields and Miss Redman were escorted to the railroad station under police guard to return to their homes.

The order suspending all classes was issued. Max Schimpf, a New York trustee, said:

"Until such time as the board receives some indication that the student body has experienced a change of mind from their rotten egg and broken window state of mind, there would not seem to be any profit in continuing efforts to cultivate their minds to the end of issuing diplomas and conferring degrees."
