AT THE THEATERS

Warner Brothers To Present "The Terror" Here

The Arcade theater is pleased to announce Sunday as the opening date for "The Terror," Warner Bros.' latest and greatest mystery film, which is claimed to be the creepiest and at the same time the most absorbingly amusing picture of its kind ever filmed.

"The Terror" is based on Edgar Wallace's celebrated stage thriller which has held London spellbound for more than three years. It is the composite of all spook plays rolled into one. With the unearthing of Poe it has the sardonic humor of Swift. Harvey Gates in his screen adaptation has not only kept all the original eeriness but has added to it immeasurably.

Roy Del Ruth wins new laurels, too, for his masterly direction. He has left no dramatic opportunity unexplored. The ancient and dilapidated English manor house built under his direction and possessing the atmosphere of centuries of use and disuse, furnishes the locale. Here is the ghostly and fiendish torture den of "The Terror" itself; the convulsed organ that wailed fingers touch; the wind-swept galleries, blown funeral corteges, and rain-beaten roof; the swelling wall-eyed toad; the outboard; the vast freight room where the game-stricken "guests" of Dr. Redmayne hold spiritualistic seances; the sliding panels, the secret passages—in short, everything that can augment the melodrama and enhance the acting of the stars.

The cast is headed by May McAvoy, Louise Fazenda and Edward Everett Horton, with Alec B. Francis, Holmes Herbert, Matthew Betz, John Miljan, Otto Hoffman, Joseph W. Girard and Frank Austin.

"Hit of the Show" Coming To Star Sunday

Squeezing tears from stoned eyes compared to getting actors to react emotionally to good acting. But this miracle was accomplished by Joe E. Brown, world famous stage comedian, who appears in the featured role of "The Hit of the Show," the FRO picture of back-stage life which is now playing at the Arcade.

Which is proof of the contention of many dramatic critics that the truest pathos on the stage or screen is usually achieved by real comedians.

On the stage of the Vine Street theater in Hollywood, where the stage scenes of the picture were taken, Brown was portraying the role of a song and dance man who, after struggling for fifteen years to reach Broadway, at last secures a fat part in a big New York show. He went through the scene where his part is cut down to practically nothing at a dress rehearsal and the trouper pitifully sees his dream of fame fade. As the camera stopped grinding, and the musical accompaniment died away two little chorus girls from the company of "Hit the Deck" appearing in the picture—hard-boiled professionals—were found to be crying their eyes out, unashamed. At the sincerity and realism of Brown's poignant acting.

The scene and the performance struck home, even in the shooting.

Brown is surrounded by a stellar group of seasoned players which includes Gertrude Olmstead, Lee Stumway, Gertrude Astor, Ole M. Ness, William Norton Bailey, Jane Holmes, William F. Dugan, Letty Mason, Frank Mills, Daphne Pollard and Cosmo Kyle Bellows.

"The little girl was a very timid little soul, and her father was trying to reason her out of her fears. He tried to tell her that there was nothing to fear in mice or frogs or bugs."

"Papa," she asked, "ain't you 'fraid of lugs?'"

"No, dear."

"Ain't you 'fraid of snakes?'"

"No, dear."

"Papa, ain't you 'fraid of nothing else in the whole world but just mama?'"

The trouble most of us have been having with call money is that it refuses to answer.

"Has your husband any hobbies?" asked the neighbor who was calling.

"No," said Mrs. Neulich, "he has rheumatism a good deal, and lives now and then, but he ain't never had no hobbies."

"It's so good of you, doctor, to have come this far to see my husband."
