MURDER SUSPECT MAKES ESCAPE

articles of apparel, a razor, shaving brush and lotion were in the suitcase. Police said the shaving implements had yielded sharp specimens of fingerprints.

Chief of Detectives Terman Cline declared that the brown suit had been described by Mrs. Dora Scott, mother of the dead woman, as belonging to Tallman. She was well acquainted with Tallman, police said.

The lines of police investigation reached into many sections of the country as they rounded up newspaper details in the life of Mrs. Patty.

Mrs. Scott, the mother, now living with a brother of the slain girl, Irving Scott, in Julesburg, Colo., is en route to Los Angeles to give what aid she can to the police.

Frank D. Patty, the husband, was graduated from the University of Nebraska in 1922. He had lived formerly at Fonda, Iowa, with his father, a druggist there.

William Tallman was born in Rock Island, Ill., reports to the police here advised he had received technical radio training in Berkeley and had been employed at various times in Oakland and San Francisco, either was still hiding aboard the steamship Admiral Benson or had been killed in an attempt to escape, was expressed by police today.

The police conducted an all-night search for Tallman, who was missing from his guarded stateroom when the steamship docked here last night.

That the suspect still was hiding in the ship's holds was the opinion of police who had failed, however, to find the man. A police boat last night searched San Francisco bay for Tallman in the belief that he had jumped overboard.

Had he done so it was thought he might likely have been caught by the Admiral Benson's propeller and killed.

A thorough search of the Admiral Benson failed to disclose a trace of Tallman. The stateroom he occupied showed that he had unscrewed the lock with a piece of iron taken from a radiator.

Tallman was a former radio operator aboard the Admiral Benson and it was during a trip several months ago that he met Mrs. Patty, whom he is alleged to have beaten to death in a Los Angeles apartment during a fit of jealousy believed to have been inspired by the fact that Mrs. Patty was about to return to her husband, Frank Patty, a broker of Portland, Ore.

Denies Crime

Tallman vigirously denied knowledge of the crime and radioed to San Francisco asking a lawyer and members of his family to meet him.

Police today continued their search for Tallman abgard the Admiral Benson, which was to sail at 5 o'clock for Astoria and Portland.

FINAL ONE OF 4 CLINICS HELD AT RIVERIA SCHOOL

tist, a medical doctor and an orthopedic doctor, the parent is given a record of the results of the examination.

The workers were pleased that a number of "dads" brought their children and were so interested in the pre-school clinics.

This is the second year of the clinics or summer roundup. Last year, when the county nurse examined the children in school, she found that almost without exception advice given at the pre-school clinics had been followed and that the children were greatly helped in their school work as a result.

DEDICATION DAY CLOSES WITH DINNER

school as is Eastern Oregon. He devoted a part of his talk to President Inlow, recalling that his election had been unanimous. "I think we have selected a wonderful president and I look to see a very fine product to go out from this school to teach in Oregon," he said.

The closing talk was by C. A. Howard, superintendent of public instruction, who represented Mr. Inlow. He brought Mr. Inlow's regrets that he was unable to attend and conveyed his thanks to the various organizations of La Grande for their part in the dedication ceremonies, as well as to other individuals and organizations.

Counties Pledge Support

Henry McKinney, representing Baker, was the first speaker and he said that Baker is proud of the Eastern Oregon Normal school in La Grande. H. E. Coolidge, of La Grande, spoke for Judge Biggs, of Prineville, who pledged the support of Crook county to the new school. S. E. Notson represented Morrow county and during his remarks, he said that the schools of America are the first, second and last line of defense of the nation, "The schools are our salvation," he emphasized.

Judge Schannep, of Umatilla county, assured the gathering that his district would give its complete support to the school. George Hortman, of Pendleton, praised Bennes and Herzog, who designed the building, stating that they were artists as well as architects. He also, pledged the support of Pendleton and Umatilla county to the institution.

Bruce Dennis Speaks

Bruce Dennis, formerly of La Grande but now of Klamath Falls, said that he brought the greetings and support of 30,000 people of the Klamath basin. "We rejoice with you in this splendid institution," he said. Turning to the question of the responsibility the school brings to La Grande, he said, pointing his remarks to the visitors: "Have no fear of La Grande meeting its responsibility. This community has the finest citizenship, has always maintained a high ideal, and it is a better town."

E. E. Bragg, regent and state accident commissioner, La Grande resident for 39 years spoke briefly, and was given a great welcome by the assembly.

Greetings From Ashland School

Greetings from the Southern Oregon Normal school at Ashland were tendered by J. H. Fuller, regent, who spoke of La Grande's skyline—the scenic skyline, the material skyline and prosperous skyline, and now the educational and cultural skyline. He said that the Ashland school, in the third year of its existence, had 752 students enrolled.

Frank Miller, Albany regent, spoke of the loyalty of former Governor Pierce and of A. T. Hill, president of the city commission, in securing the normal school, and expressed his thanks to this community for its loyal support. Mr. Miller has been chairman of the board of trustees at Albany college for 23 years.

W. C. Bryant, of Moro, regent, said that he believed La Grande would give unstinted support to the institution and he, too, pointed out that it was not an Eastern Oregon school, but belonged to all of Oregon.

Thank Regents

Following Mr. Bryant, Mr. Nelson conveyed the thanks of La Grande to the entire board of regents for their splendid work.

Hal E. Hoss, secretary of state spoke of the fine spirit of cooperation shown by all of Eastern Oregon, and E. F. Carleton, secretary of the Oregon State Teachers association, declared that he was impressed at the emphasis placed on the spiritual element of education here. He said that Mr. Inlow has selected a faculty, composed of people who will build character as well as teach, and he also said that the beauty of the school and its surroundings will have a wholesome effect on the students.

Mrs. Schannep, vice president of the Oregon State Parent-Teacher association, conveyed the greetings of the state present and 20,000 parent-teacher members of the state.

O. S. C. and U. of O. Represented

Dean Sheldon, representing President A. R. Hall of the University of Oregon, and Dean Jewell, representing President Kerr, of Oregon State college, spoke briefly.

Following this, Senator Fred E. Kiddle introduced the members of the state legislature who were present: Senator Mann, of Umatilla; Representative Scott, of Umatilla; Representative Weatherspoon and Senator Eberhard, of Union county, and also Roy Ritner, of Pendleton, a former member of the legislature. Representative Swift, of Baker, and Representative Egbert, of Wasco, who attended the afternoon program, were unable to be present at the banquet.

Dean of Women Introduced

Miss Helen Moore, dean of women and executive secretary to President Inlow, Mrs. Inlow and her daughter, Miss Hope Inlow, were introduced to the gathering, as were: Mrs. Romig, Baker county superintendent of schools; E. A. Sayre, Union county superintendent of schools; Austin Landreth, who succeeds Mr. Inlow as superintendent of Pendleton schools; Mr. Arant and Mr. Mainwaring, publishers of the Baker Democrat-Herald; Mrs. I. L. Patterson, wife of the governor; Budget Director Sam Kozer; Bishop W. P. Remington; John V. Bennes and H. A. Herzog, architects; Hubert Giet, superintendent of construction; Mr. Olsen, contractor; Mrs. Walter Pierce, formerly state librarian; Mr. Linn, general contractor, and Mr. Nusbaum, music directer of La Grande High school and the Eastern Oregon Normal school. Mr. Landreth spoke briefly, bringing the greetings of the Pendlefon commercial club and pledging unqualified support to the school.

Song Closes Meeting

The meeting was closed with the singing of "God Be With You Till We Meet Again."

H. E. Brady was chairman of the chamber of commerce normal school committee, and Albert Hunter, executive secretary, spent the greater part of three days working constantly on preparations for yesterday's program.

GOVERNOR OF STATE STOCK SHOW GUEST

night had stopped at 9 o'clock this morning and retarded things only a short time while the grounds were being put in good condition. Just how much the rain, which fell quite generally over the valley, limited the crowd in attendance, can only be conjectured, but the crowd early this afternoon was very satisfactory.

Tomorrow "Wallowa Day"

Tomorrow will be the final day and the program shows it to be a full day. It will be known as "Wallowa county" day and a caravan of boosters from that section headed by the Enterprise band will have all their arrangements made to attend. They will have their representatives in the arena sports which guarantees some additional interest there. The racing program is good, the parade of livestock will come off shortly after noon and Homer Holcomb will keep the crowd interested all the time.

Yesterday is reported by officials of the association as having been the largest "first day" the show has had in years. It was free day for the youngsters, and they took advantage of the fact and attended in droves. It was also Baker day and Baker sent up several carloads of citizens and business men to lend their support to the eastern Oregon enterprise.

The parade of the livestock exhibited was such as to draw very enthusiastic comments and commendation from the on-lookers. The exact number of head in line was not learned, but when the parade moved into the arena and was lined up before the grandstand and bleachers, there were three completed lines extending from the north to the south ends of the arena. It was a remarkable display. Guernseys, Jerseys, Holsteins, Swiss, Ayrshires, Herefords, Shorthorns, purebred and grades—quite an eye-opener for those who were not aware what kind of stock Eastern Oregon produces and quite a bit of satisfaction to those who know what is being done, or who are in the game themselves. It has been a matter of comment ever since the show opened, by those who believe in the show, that this year, more than ever before perhaps, the show is living up to its name, and is primarily a "livestock show" with other events being pushed to a secondary place.

New Entertainment

This year there is an innovation—the equestrian sports in the arena, supplanting the bucking contests which have to a large extent "gone to seed" here. The novelty of it all was something of a handicap yesterday, as it took some time to get an understanding of what was wanted, to get horses and riders alike accustomed to the mode of procedure. However there was a good response, many entries for each event, keen interest from the sidelines, good sportsmanship everywhere, and some good prize money won by young people and older people from this part of the state and not carried away by nation or state-wide professionals, as has been the case in preceding years. It seemed to be the concensus, that the introduction of these sports in place of the buckers was a wise stroke on the part of stock show officials. With the years, interest will increase as riders are educated up to the program. After witnessing the afternoon's program yesterday, O. M. Plummer, of Portland, secretary of the Pacific International of Portland said, "You have a really wonderful show in Eastern Oregon. It is the biggest little show I have ever seen and you are on the right track on introducing the equestrian sports. It's a great move."

There are some good steppers on the track this year, the purses totalling $2000 having attracted owners of race horses. Tom Johnson presides at the announcer's stand and with the assistance of the loud speaker provided this year has no difficulty in making himself heard — probably from North Powder to Hot Lake. The results of the races yesterday were as follows:

Three-eighths mile, 16 entries. Winners in order:
Kitt's Bell, Wapata owner, rider, Kindred.
Dark Alley, Hileman owner, rider, Reynolds.
Miss Sprague, Roach owner, rider, Webb.
