Like Western Conference

The report suggested that a committee of two faculty representatives and three graduate managers be appointed to submit a candidate for the approval of the conference, each university to have one vote in the selection.
The graduate managers announced that the body be appointed within the next few days. It would begin immediately to search for a suitable man to fill the office.
The committee which drew up the report was composed of W. W. Monahan, chairman of the University of California, Earl Campbell of Washington, Carl Laddell of Oregon State and S. W. Cunningham of the University of California at Los Angeles.

AID MEASURE WILL GO TO PRESIDENT

measure plan leaves this bill in no sense different from any legislation that might have been enacted at any time during the long contest for farm relief.

"The advocates of the debenture plan have not delayed this legislation longer than to secure a fair consideration. They have performed a duty by insisting that the house vote on the debenture plan," Robinson said passage of the bill would end the long struggle for farm relief as "no further farm legislation can be expected until the measure has been fully tried out."

"We are now ending the struggle," Robinson added, "with action which many sincerely believe is inadequate and ineffective."
"The action is not on its face a redemption of the republican pledge to put agriculture on an equality with other industries."

asked to comment on his instructions.
Mrs. Dawes and the general's nephew, Henry Dawes, who is acting as his secretary, accompanied the ambassador, Ray Atherton, American charge d'affaires, was present to greet his new chief.

In a prepared statement, Ambassador Dawes referred to his responsible position, saying "I will endeavor in every way to perform the duties it involves."
"It is with happiness that I look forward to meeting once more my dear English friends whom in war and reparations work I came so to admire and trust," the statement said.
"I do not feel a stranger here—no one could with such associations—and I hope I am not regarded as such."
"I have never been a diplomat. I have many faults. But somehow I am sure you will put up with them as have my own people."

If Let's Wife Had Driven

The preacher in our church last Sunday told us how Let's wife looked back and turned into a pillar of salt. I couldn't help thinking that whenever my wife looks back she turns into a telegraph pole or a lamp post or something.—Detroit Motor News.

AGED BOX ELDERS GIVE WAY TO SAW

doors to quaff a glass of beer; and they knew the days when skirts swept the wooden sidewalks as their owners promenaded along the avenue. They saw people crowding into the first moving picture house; and they sensed the first radio messages that darted through the air about them.

But in recent years, with the coming of the automobiles in hundreds and thousands, they have had a tough time. Their trunks are quarried and the bark has been knocked from large spaces, where motor vehicles parked against them. The horse of yesterday may have browsed on a few leaves but the powerful motor car hit where it hurt.

Their leaves obscured business fronts from passing cars and there was always the chance that broken limbs in a storm would crash windows. They partly hid the new Green Parrot sign, Dai Hudspeath said today.

So they had to go—and many mourned at their passing but with a realization that they were lucky to have lived so long.

Climate Varies Little

The island of Bermuda has an equable climate. Frosts are unknown and the ocean winds are tempered by the Gulf stream. Bermuda is principally a winter resort sought by those who wish to avoid severe winters.

But Would It?

The stenographer had powdered her nose for the twelfth time in an hour. "It would simplify things," remarked the caustic boss, "if you found a job in a flour mill."

the central executive of the kaumintang governing Chinese party, had been convened hurriedly to consider the situation.

Russian outposts were understood to have been established at Khatlar, northwestern Manchuria, east of Manchouli. Manchurian provincial troops were under arms at Alzun or Heilunkiang, on the river Amur, near Blagoveschensk, northeastern Manchuria, with others available at Kirin and Fengtien. Khatlar is on the railroad across Manchuria to Mukden and Dairen.

The Express dispatch concluded that outer Mongolia—that is, that vague section of northern China contiguous to Siberia—might be considered an ally of Russia, whose next move is given for recent raids on soviet consulates is received and the ownership of the Chinese Eastern railway settled.

The Nanking government was said to have been notified by its consuls in Russia that the consulates were surrounded by Russian troops.

ADD TO MILITARY FORCE
SHANGHAI, June 14 (AP)—A Chinese press dispatch from Harbin quoting unusually well informed sources said soviet authorities had increased their military force on the Siberian border opposite Manchouli to 15,000 men. The force included 5000 cavalry.

Reports to the Metal Exchange said dispatches received from Harbin stated Russian troops were moving down the Chinese Eastern railway from Manchouli toward Tzitsihar, on the Nooni river, 350 miles within Manchuria.
The reports were doubted here.
