Wallowa Crops In Fine Shape, Eggleston Says

(ADDITIONAL VALLEY NEWS)

J. A. Eggleston, one of the prominent men of Wallowa county, spent yesterday in Union county and La Grande, on business of lands and visiting among friends on this side of the mountains. Mr. Eggleston, who lives on the ranch which attracts the attention of all passers by between Enterprise and Joseph, has perhaps the largest band of registered sheep in Wallowa county, if not in Eastern Oregon. He has the Hampshire, and his band of purchased animals numbers between 300 and 400. Mr. Eggleston also has fine cattle on his place, being partial to Herefords. These are not registered, but are fine grade animals. Mr. Eggleston says crop conditions in his part of the country are excellent. The recent rains have worked wonders. "Fall wheat is made right now, it is all headed out," says Mr. Eggleston, "and looks fine. I see the same thing is true in your county, too. Prospects for the season are extremely good." Mr. Eggleston confessed that not much of his time is spent on the ranch any more as other business interests claim a great share of his time, while his farming interests are in other good hands. Incidentally he is president of the Enterprise State bank. "We are having a real celebration at Enterprise this Fourth," was his parting word, "and we want all La Grande and Union county people to come and celebrate with us."

loved ones, but from the church circle, the ministerial association and the city. It is the prayer of his fellow pastors, that the Lord of all will breathe a sweet spirit of resignation into the hearts of all who sorrow with the immediate family.

Elks Purple and White Car Stops En Route West

A welcoming committee composed of officials and members of the Elks lodge in La Grande and M. J. Goss, local Studebaker dealer, today greeted one of the four cars of the Elks Purple and White fleet en route from New York to Los Angeles on a nation wide good will tour being made in advance of the Elks Grand Lodge convention in California July 8-12. The tour was officially started in New York May 13, when Mayor "Jimmy" Walker sent the cars away bearing greetings to be presented to the Hon. Murray Hulbert, grand exalted ruler of the Elks, at the opening of the Los Angeles convention.

The four pilots, each driving a Studebaker President eight roadster finished in the purple and white colors of the order, separated on leaving New York, each starting westward on one of the four major transcontinental motor routes. Car Number 2 and its pilot, George Alpers, who arrived here today, are heading straight west. Of the three other cars, one is following a course laid up the Hudson river from New York to Albany, west through the lake cities to Chicago, then northwest to Seattle via the Yellowstone Park route.

Another is following a more southerly route leading through Cincinnati, St. Louis and Kansas City to Colorado Springs, Albuquerque and Los Angeles. The fourth car is swinging down through the Atlantic coast states before turning west through New Orleans, whence it will continue through the southwest via Dallas, El Paso, Phoenix and San Diego.

The tour is the most ambitious demonstration of the regularity and certainty to be attained in cross country motoring ever attempted. In collaboration with the American Automobile association and the Automobile Club of South California a detailed schedule has been worked out which will bring the four cars together on the same day in Los Angeles. The wide divergence of their routes, the distances the cars must cover, and the varying conditions they will encounter on their way west mark the tour as an outstanding project which has aroused wide interest.
