Luncheon Party Held Wednesday At Sting Home

An interesting event of the week was a luncheon at which six members of the Lucky Dozen club were hostesses Wednesday at the home of Mrs. C. E. Stingo on 1 avenue.

Entertaining club members with Mrs. Stingo were Mrs. H. E. Richey, Mrs. Fred Smith, Mrs. Herbert Speckhart, Mrs. E. C. Gray and Mrs. Fred Cross.

A four-course luncheon was served at one o'clock at tables in the dining room where a color scheme of blue was effectively carried out with summer garden flowers. A social afternoon followed the luncheon.

A guest of the afternoon was Mrs. Donna Smith Nichols, who is soon to leave La Grande. This was the only July meeting of the Lucky Dozen club. Their August hostess will be Mrs. H. E. Richey.

Mrs. Pattison Is Hostess to Club

Mrs. Robert Pattison was a hostess Wednesday when she entertained members of the Thursday Bridge club at luncheon at the Suedgawa Inn. Covers were placed for eight and two tables of bridge were at play for the afternoon.

Former Residents Visit La Grande

Occasioning delightful two weeks of life for many La Grander have been the visits of an unusually large number of interesting former residents of this city.

Of a former La Grande high school group, representing classes between about 1919 and 1924 so many have been here for summer visits that the past week might almost have been called a "homecoming." It has at least provided happy hours of re-living girlhood days and a number of afternoons of informal visiting and pleasuring.

Last Saturday a picnic at Riverside park was arranged, bringing together a large group of the former La Grande high school students, together with their mothers and children. Twenty-five potential "future La Grande high school students" were with their mothers, during the pleasant afternoon. Out-of-town visitors who enjoyed the event included Mrs. G. L. Dutton (Nita Hunter), of Portland; Miss Mae Neil, who is teaching in Hawaii; Mrs. Roy Farlow, (Heleen Currey), of McMinnville; Mrs. E. G. Brown, (Inez Knowles) of Portland; Mrs. Ernest Velus, (Ethel Wright) of Oakland, Cal.; Mrs. Alfred Harding (Sarah Smith), of New York; and Mrs. Lillian McDonald Vaughn, of Portland.

Party Compliments Mrs. Alfred Harding

For the pleasure of Mrs. Alfred Harding (Sarah Smith), of New York, Mrs. Donald M. Fague entertained a few of their friends informally at luncheon Wednesday noon at the Suedgawa Inn. Covers were placed for eight. An hour of visiting followed on the mezzanine.

Mrs. Harding who formerly made her home here, is an important summer visitor in this city. She and her two small sons are the guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Smith, on First street. They will make an extended visit.

Picnic Party Is Held At Pine Cone

To compliment Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Ford, of Reedsport who are guests here, Mr. and Mrs. Lot Suedgrass entertained at a delightful picnic party at Pine Cone Wednesday evening. The occasion was also the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Suedgrass.

Early in the evening swimming was enjoyed with a picnic supper served at tables in the park, following.

CATCH 17-POUND TROUT

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., July 5 (AP)—Pellon Bay, home of the large rainbow trout, has yielded another levitation.

Happy Anchovy, San Francisco sportsman, hooked and landed a 17-pound trout after a strenuous fight yesterday. The fish and man battled for fully a half hour.

THIS CHIC Spanish sailor, designed by Agnes, is of coarsely woven black straw with orange and red silk pompoms posed above and underneath the stiff little brim on each side.

MENUS

By Sister Mary
Or all the cakes to serve with fruit or ice cream during the summer months, sponge cake is the most popular. It can be given to children since it contains no butter to make it too rich for small persons. Its lightness and tenderness make it suitable for hot weather when heavy, rich cakes fail.

A true sponge cake contains no leavening. Eggs alone are depended upon for lightening.

A milk acid in the form of cream of tartar or vinegar is added for the purpose of stiffening the albumen of the egg whites and to help to keep the mixture firm.

If eggs are scarce, their number may be decreased and baking powder added for leavening. Although a cake made in this fashion is not a true sponge, there is little difference in the texture of the finished cakes.

Choice of ingredients, manner of mixing, temperature of baking are important.

Sugar Is Important
Fine granulated sugar does much to produce a fine grained cake. Pastry flour sifted once before measuring and then sifted five or six times before mixing always should be used. Eggs 24 hours old will beat better than fresher ones. If the eggs are well chilled before beating, they will become stiffer. The heat of the air in the kitchen has more effect on the chilled eggs than it would if the eggs were the same temperature.

This same principle of heat expanding the air beaten into the eggs extends to the baking of the cake. A slow oven permits the cake to rise or the air to expand before the batter begins to bake, so a temperature of not more than 320 degrees F. is most satisfactory.

In mixing the cake, care must be taken that some of the air which has been beaten into the eggs is lost. The ingredients must be thoroughly mixed, but the mixing must be done with a folding movement. Rough handling when the whites are folded into the batter will make a soggy cake of little volume.

Sponge Cake
Six eggs; 1 cup flour; 1 cup granulated sugar; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 3/4 teaspoon cream of tartar; 3 tablespoons boiling water; 1/2 teaspoon vanilla.

Separate yolks from whites of eggs. Put yolks into mixing bowl and beat with a rotary beater until thick and lemon colored. Gradually beat in sugar. Add boiling water, one tablespoon at a time, beating with egg beater continuously. Beat hard and stir in flour which has been sifted five or six times. Mix and sift cream of tartar and salt and sprinkle over whites of eggs. Beat whites of eggs with a wire whisk until they are stiff enough to hold their shape but are not dry. Fold into egg yolk mixture, using the wire whisk of a spatula. Turn into an ungreased tube cake pan and bake one hour in a slow oven. 320 degrees F. is an excellent average temperature. Turn cake upside down to cool in the pan. Invert on a rack to make an air space between the cake and the table top.

Pretty Polka Dot

Chiffon is one of the prettiest polka dotted media this summer. A navy blue and white outfit used the blue and white dotted fabric for the little princess frock and the loose jacket, both with pleated ruffles of plain blue edging them. A collar and cuffs of white linen were embroidered in double blue dots and the hat, purse and shoes were navy blue also.
