Wheat Nervous At Close In Chicago

CHICAGO, July 20 (AP)—Heavy rains in some sections of the Canadian drought regions gave an irregular downward trend at times to early wheat prices here today. Latest crop estimates from Canada, however, were far from reassuring, and with reports from Argentina and Australia continuing pessimistic the market moved quick. Opening at 1¼ setback to ¼ advance, wheat values underwent a material drop all around before recovering. Corn and oats were likewise easier, corn starting unchanged to ⅜c off and subsequently keeping near the initial figures. Provisions inclined upward.

Wheat closed nervous, 1⅛ @ 2 under yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1⅛ to 1⅜ down, oats ⅜ @ 1⅜ off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 7c.

Egg Prices In Portland Jump 2 Cents Today

PORTLAND, Ore., July 20 (AP)—Portland egg prices were advanced all along the line today in keeping with the advance in other markets. Extras and standards rose two cents each, while medium firsts and medium extras went up one cent each. This made extras 34 and 34 cents, respectively, to wholesalers, and medium extras and medium firsts 24 and 21, respectively. The price was two cents less to retailers. Prices fixed by the market master on the Yamhill street public market were 41 cents for extras and 26 cents for mediums. These stalls may charge less, but not more.

Butter, poultry and fresh meats were unchanged.

With buyers outnumbering sellers, prices for many products advanced at the East Side market of the Gardeners' and Producers' association. There seemed to be a scarcity of the goods most in demand. Yellow bantam corn in particular went sky high. A box of six dozen ears sold for $5, or more than 60 cents a dozen ears. Raspberries, ... up to $2.25 to $2.50, blackcaps $2 to $1.25 and loganberries $1.50. At one time, with strawberries real scarce, a crate sold as high as $2 and $2.25. Currants were little in evidence at $2. Other prices were:

Church Page To Be Published On Friday Hereafter

Because of many, many requests that have been received from out-of-town Observer readers, the church announcement section will be published hereafter on Friday instead of Saturday.

Readers of The Observer outside of the city limits, who get their papers by mail on rural routes, etc., often do not receive their Saturday paper in time to learn what services are to be held, and in that way receive practically no benefit from the church announcements.

In order to provide for the page on Friday, it will be necessary to have church announcements in the hands of the church editor not later than 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon, and ministers of the city have been asked to co-operate in this respect.

WOOL MARKET

BOSTON, July 20 (AP) — The outstanding development during the week has been the display of a strong feeling of optimism by dealers and manufacturers. Trading was distributed quite generally over the grades of domestic wools. Finer grades, including 64s or above and 58-60s leading the demand. The lower grades were the stronger, however, and strictly marked the volume of business on 56s, 47s, and 50s, grades.
