CHICAGO WHEAT

CHICAGO, July 22 (AP) — Uh. looked for brisk upturns in Liverpool quotations and absence of any important rainfalls in Canada sent wheat prices soaring here in today's early dealings. Opening at 2¾@3¾ cents higher, Chicago wheat scored decided further gains, but reacts sharply. Corn, oats and provisions were also firmer, with corn starting ¾ to 1¾ up and subsequently continuing to climb.

PRICES REMAIN FIRM AT MARTS IN PORTLAND

PORTLAND, Ore., July 22 (AP) —Produce was plentiful, but prices held firm at the East Side market of the Gardeners' and Ranchers' association today. Raspberries, blackcaps and loganberries were standing up like Gibraltar without any sign of recession. Raspberries and loganberries have both passed their peak without weakening, and with the blackcaps getting more abundant every day, quotations persist in sticking around the same figures which marked the opening of the season. Failure of the strawberry crop in some localities and shortage in the cherry output are believed to have created a larger cannery demand for other fruits. Cannery prices have held up remarkably well with the demand still active.

Following prices were quoted at the East Side market:

Peas 4@5; beans 9; corn 60; white corn 50; carrots, beets and onions 25; turnips 45; radishes 20; lettuce $1@$1.25; celery 90@$1; asparagus $1.50; squash 50; cucumbers 75; bings 10; royal anns 5; pie cherries 9; potatoes 3@3½; tomatoes $2.50; cabbage $1; strawberries $3; raspberries $2.25; blackcaps $2; loganberries $1.50; currants $2; peaches $1.25; apricots $1.25.

Ghost's Problem

The ghost-writing industry is growing by leaps and bounds. Some of the most successful ghost writers have so much work to do that they are hiring other ghosts to write for them, and you can easily see what that will lead to.—Spokane Spokesman-Review.

Written Centuries Ago

"Though the mills of God grind slowly, yet they grind exceeding small; Though with patience, He stands waiting, with exactness grinds he all," was written by Friedrich von Logau, who lived from 1604 to 1655. He was one of the most highly esteemed epigrammatists and satirists of his day.

Abandon Tomahawks for Plows

Out on the Ouray Uinta reservation in Utah, war-waging Indians of yesteryear have laid aside their war togs and have settled down to dry land farming. On this reservation there are about 1200 Indians who cultivate more than 25,000 acres of fertile land. John Duncan, Ute chieftain shown above on his white steed, is one of these progressive farmers. Unca Sam, shown in inset, is a prosperous rancher.

Farm Pointers

By U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Most cows need a rest of from four to six weeks between lactation periods. High-producing cows need eight weeks.

Cucumbers for market should not be cleaned with a cloth or brush, as this destroys the small spines and the "frosty" finish of fresh cucumbers. The best way to wash off dirt is to put the cucumbers in clean cold water and stir them slightly.

Special care should be taken at this time of year with milk and cream that is shipped from the farm. Milk stands at the roadside should be shaded, and cans of milk hauled in trucks or wagons should be covered with canvas. Heavy jackets for milk cans aid considerably in keeping milk cold.

The summer silo usually is the best means of supplementing short, dried-up pastures in July and August. For a herd of 12 to 20 cows a silo from 10 to 12 feet in diameter is well suited, as the silage can be fed fast enough to prevent spoiling. Silage will keep for several years and it can be carried over from one season to another.

During the summer the dipping method may be used effectively against the more than 40 species of lice that infest various domestic fowls. The fowls are dipped into a tub full of tepid water containing sodium fluoride in the proportions of three-fourths of one ounce of commercial sodium fluoride to each gallon of water.

Fields of hay consisting mostly of weeds can be put in the silo, since plants that aren't eaten in the green state or as hay usually are eaten as silage. Too, weedy hay can be stacked in the pasture before it has cured well. It will make a brown hay that will be eaten readily and will supply a valuable supplement to short pasture.

The safest manner of disposing of carcasses of animals on the farm is to burn them to ashes; the next safest way is to cover them with lime and bury them deeply. If a carcass is left on the ground, birds, dogs, and other animals may feed on it and spread disease and parasites.

"Plane Sailing"

An easy task is "plain sailing," a phrase which has been corrupted from the navigational "plane sailing," the simplest sort of course plotting, where the surface of the globe is considered flat. It can be used only in coastwise navigation, when many landmarks may be easily referred to as a check on the calculations.
