Scout Camping Period Success, Scott Delares

Commenting on the recent boy scout camp on Catherine creek east of Union, E. Russell Scott, Eastern Oregon executive, declared today that he believed the camp the most successful so far.

As evidence of the interest displayed, not only by the boys but by their parents and friends, he pointed out that there were more than 400 visitors at Camp Phyr during July. Three courts of honor were held with many awards being made, and these attracted quite a number of visitors.

While in camp, the boys found little of the drudgery that is often associated with such periods of field training, and on the other hand found much in the out-of-doors to thrill them. Swimming classes, nature study, handicraft activities, etc., were a part of the scout's duties.

At present a number of camp fire girls are at the camp.
