GROVE GOES 17 INNINGS TO WIN

Athletics Have 13½ Game Lead Due to Downfall of Yankee Tribe.

By William J. Chipman
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

A moist afternoon along the major league trail, where three of the nine scheduled skirmishes were postponed, was hardly enough for the Yankees but just about right for the Athletics. The leaders turned the day to account by wrestling a 3 to 2 decision from the Indians in seventeen innings behind Mose Grove as the Tigers outpunched the Yanks by 17 to 13, and the Philadelphia lead increased to thirteen and one half games.

This margin is the greatest the A's have had at any time this season and is the exact distance by which the Yankees led for two days or so when the 1928 race was at its loosest stage around the fourth of July.

Foxx's Homer Wins

Jimmy Foxx's twenty-eighth homer which gave him second place in the American league, decided the long battle in favor of the Marks, but the leaders cashed in another run of Willis Hudlin before the end of the inning just to remove the last doubt.

The loss said about the licking of the Yankees in Detroit the kinder it will be to both teams. Between them the teams scored sixteen runs in the first three innings. From that point to the finish Owen Carroll held the Yanks to the comparatively safe quota of nine hits and six runs while the various Yankee tossers continued their queer capers with the result that the Bengals won rather handsomely.

Waite Hoyt Falls

After the failure of George Pipgras, Waite Hoyt made his first appearance on the mound since his recent attack of blood poisoning. It was brief and disastrous, three hits and one pass helping the Tigers to seven runs. The Bengals broke a 12 to 12 tie with Wiley Moore by [illegible] out five runs in the eighth.

The Red Sox defeated St. Louis by 4 to 1 and the Senators slammed the White Sox by 11 to 3 in remaining American league games.

In the New York metropolitan district National league proceedings were limited to Boston and Philadelphia. Jess Petty turned in a five-hit game at Braves field to defeat the home team by 1 to 0 and the Pirates reduced the margin of the Cubs half a game in eight contests.

At Philadelphia the home team shaded the Reds by 2 to 1 in the first game of a double header cut short at the end of the seventh by rain. The second game, of course, was postponed.

baseball as a business. When the game is over they forget it until the next day, just as a clever business man does. In my time we thought so much about the game that we'd fight with our wives and children after a bad day."

Tinker was shortstop on the Cub teams of 1906, '08 and '07 which won three pennants and two world championships. Johnny Evers now with the Boston Braves was at second and Frank Chance at first. Chance is dead. They set a record for double plays that stood until last year when Cincinnati broke it.

"Cincinnati broke it by standing back on the grass. When we were hustling the ball around, we had to play in closer. If they had shunned the ball then as they do now, we'd have made many more double killings."

Farm Co-operatives Evincing Strength As U. S. Offers Aid

By FRANK I. WELLER
(Associated Press Farm Editor)

WASHINGTON (AP) — While passage of the agricultural marketing act guaranteed the economic safety of agricultural cooperation, the movement has not wavered from the line drawn in 1921 — the peak year of development.

A. W. McKay, acting chief of the division of cooperative marketing, says farm cooperatives are either increasing their membership and business or holding their own as the federal farm board begins strengthening the fabric of collective bargaining. The success that [illegible] or less in waves until 1923 has been stable for the last six years.

There are known to be 11,400 cooperatives in the United States, doing an annual business of $2,[illegible] for approximately 3,[illegible] members. The grain trade leads the field. It has 3,455 cooperatives, [illegible] members, and an annual business of $[illegible].

The number of cooperatives, membership and annual business of other industries follow:

Cotton and corn products, 124, [illegible]; $[illegible].

Dairy products, 2,478; [illegible]; $[illegible].

Forage crops, [illegible]; $1,[illegible].

Fruit and vegetables, 1,245; 213,[illegible]; $[illegible].

Livestock, 2,012; [illegible]; $[illegible].

Nuts, 46; 15,000; $14,000.

Poultry and poultry products, [illegible]; $[illegible].

Tobacco, 16; 15,000; $[illegible].

Wool and mohair, 96; 25,000; $7,000,000.

Miscellaneous selling organizations, 191; [illegible].

Miscellaneous buying organizations, 1,205; 204,000; $[illegible].

McKay estimates that about 90 per cent of the cooperatives in the entire country report to the department of agriculture and that while his figures show 11,400, there possibly are 12,000 or more.

The cooperative movement, which has come to its present stage through years of struggle and misapprehension, started about 1810. A number of cooperatives functioned before and during the civil war, the sole survivor of which is the Chaudauta Cheese factory at Foods, N. Y., founded in 1862. From New York farmers and dairymen the cooperative idea spread to Wisconsin, gradually reaching every state of agricultural importance.

Of late years the trend has been toward large-scale associations, but since the federal farm board has thrown a protecting mantle over the cooperative movement, there has been evidence of a desire to increase the number of small cooperatives. Some of the activities are [illegible], authorities say, and lean toward the promotion or speculation type. They frankly discourage such attempts.

Rhinelander Files Suit For Divorce

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Aug. 15 (AP) —Charging that his youth and inexperience had been "taken advantage of" by his wife who induced him to forsake family and friends to marry her, Leonard Kip Rhinelander, scion of a socially prominent New York family, today had filed a suit for divorce against Alice Jones Rhinelander, daughter of a New Rochelle, N. Y., coachman.

In his complaint, Rhinelander further charged that the defendant "by her artifices and wiles so dominated him" that he was led into the marriage ceremony. He claimed that she caused him to be estranged from his family and friends, causing him "great humiliation."

Court Decision Hits Grain Deals

CHICAGO (AP) — Board of trade deals are "gambling debts," an Illinois circuit court has ruled in a case now before the appellate court—a decision which may be of great importance in the financial world.

It concerns the legality of contracts between customers and members of the Chicago board of trade for purchase and sale of grain and provision futures, ideas and offers, consequently resulting in speculation.

William McCabe, a farmer, was sued by James K. Jordan, a member of the board, to foreclose a mortgage and recover on the notes for a total of $31,000, given in settlement of losses the alleged speculation on the board.

McCabe held that the notes were given to satisfy gambling debts and asked for their cancellation.

Decision of the lower court, should it be affirmed, places on board of trade firms the duty of investigating the need of each customer for the grain and provisions he orders, his financial ability to accept and pay for all contracts, and his intention to make delivery or to receive shipment and not to close out before expiration of the option or maturing of the future contract.

Counsel for McCabe contends that it is just as easy to gamble on the board of trade contracts as to do a legitimate business. He held that the volume of transactions by McCabe in the three years before he withdrew from the market, involving more than 27,000,000 bushels of grain, should have convinced the board that he was not engaged in legitimate business. Gambling debts are unrecognized by law.

Sport Slants

by ALAN J. GOULD

Three years ago, Big Bill Tilden was abruptly checked by the surging rush of youthful Frenchmen ... capturing the United States ... championship six times in a row. Over the period of 1920 to 1925, Bill was supreme. The record of seven championships, first set by Dick Sears back in the eighties and equalled later by William Larned, appeared well within the grasp of Tilden until he ran into Cochet in 1926 and then Lacoste in 1927. Cochet turned back Frank Hunter for the singles crown in 1928, Tilden being in official disfavor as an aftermath of his player writer row and was ruled out of action.

Now, the lanky American is back home after his last big campaign abroad with no more Frenchmen in sight for the rest of the season. As a consequence, Big Bill has a royal chance to wade through the field at Forest Hills, starting September 7, to re-capture the national title and equal the Sears-Larned mark. Should he do so, Tilden automatically would clinch the No. 1 ranking position on the national list for the tenth time in a row. Despite his ups and downs of recent years, he has never relinquished that dominating position at home, although he was re-instated just in time to be put at the head of the class last February for the ninth year.

In the ten national singles championships he has tried for since 1918, Tilden has been champion six times, runner-up three times to R. Lindley Murray, Little Bill Johnston and Rene Lacoste, and quarter finalist once, when he bowed to Henri Cochet.

Little Bill was Big Bill's victim five times in the national finals and once in the semi-finals in 1927, when Tilden's conquest of Wallace Johnson in the finals represented [illegible].

When Babe Herman first broke in with the Brooklyn Robins, his awkwardness in the field frequently made it doubtful whether he would block fly balls with his glove or his head. The Babe is still [illegible] short of the Tris Speaker standard of outfielding but his heavy hitting has offset anything his critics may say about his fielding ability. Herman has been batting consistently around .400, threatening to give Brooklyn its first champion batsman since the palmy days of Jake Daubert and Zack Wheat.

Herman is only one of the big slashers this year in the National league's big batting campaign. Chuck Klein and Lefty Frank O'Doul of the Phillies also have been sensational. O'Doul led the league earlier in the campaign. Klein is well on the way to beating Rogers Hornsby's league record of 42 homers for a single season.

Ten years ago Babe Ruth, after hitting 29 home runs for the Boston Red Sox and setting a record, was sensational enough to be purchased for $135,000 by the Yankees and signed to a $20,000 contract. Klein, well beyond the 30-mark in August, in his first full year as a big leaguer, is understood to be working on a $3,500 contract for 1929.

Ducks Finally Reach .500 Pct. Mark In League

(By The Associated Press)

Heavy bombardment of pitchers in yesterday's Pacific Coast league warfare resulted in a large total of home runs, and gave the San Francisco Seals the league lead by half a game.

The Seals, defeated at the top by the Hollywood Stars the day before, downed the southern crew in the tenth inning by a score of 3 to 4. In the final inning, Smead Jolley won for the San Franciscans by cracking out his second homer of the game over the right field fence at Recreation park.

Sacramento Victories

Oakland did its utmost to beat the Senators at Sacramento, but the home boys nosed out the bay team, 5 to 3. Caryle, Vergez, and Lombardi drove the ball out of the lot. But fortunately for the home-towners, the bases were empty each time. McLaughlin contributed a homer for the Solons.

Los Angeles pulled the Mission club down to equal footing in the standings by making it two straight over the Reds with a 4 to 3 victory in the southern town. A two run rally in the final half of the ninth enabled the Angeles to win, Fuzzy Hoff having cracked out a homer in the Mission half to break a 4 to 4 tie. Earl Webb, Angel outfielder, helped toward victory by clouting a brace of homers in the early innings.

Portland Wins

In the Portland-Seattle contest on the Indians' lot, Walters had a slight advantage in a pitchers' battle with Cox. The Ducks defeated the Tribesmen 2 to 1. The Seattle club used four pinch hitters in the eighth and ninth innings in a vain attempt to tame the visitors.

Tinker to Return To Baseball; Picks Cubs As Winners

By Paul Mickelson
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

CHICAGO (AP)— The single spell of the diamond is too much for Joe Tinker, shortstop of Chicago's last pennant-winning Cub team. Joe is coming back to the game.

One for [illegible] years, a third of the famous "Tinker to Evers to Chance" combination is dickering with several minor league clubs and expects to manage one of them this season. He last managed Cincinnati.

"Baseball is in my blood and the game has got me for life," Tinker, now 49, said. "During the eight years I have been peddling Florida real estate the urge to return has been growing. I don't know of anything that is a better business proposition."

After watching the pennant contending Cubs of today, Tinker thought they would win the National league bunting.

"They have pitchers and hitters and such a combination is not to be found in any other club. Whether they can down the Athletics in the world series is something else again. I believe I would lay my money on the A's."

Tinker, unlike most of the old timers, thinks the ball player of today is faster than those of his time.

"Sure I'm proud of my record and of the fellows who played with me, yet I think they were not quite on a par with the lads of today," said Joe. "The boys today take
