THE REVELATION—Whom say ye that I am? And Simon Peter answered, and said, Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God. And Jesus answered and said unto him, Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-Jona; for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven.—Matt. 16:15, 16, 17.

The Great Sorrow Of A Little Boy

Because one small boy twitted another about having a sweetheart, when the truth was he didn't have one and he didn't want one, the first little boy is dead. There was a rifle loaded and ready to hand, and the boy who was being twitted pointed it at his friend, just to frighten him. And there was a rather minor sort of report, such as a squirrel rifle makes when you shoot at a squirrel—and the first little boy laid down to sleep from which he couldn't ever be wakened. And then came tears, and heart-ache, and a story sobbed out to the grown-ups. 'Couldn't they understand that he never meant to do it? Just couldn't they understand? A little boy in blue overalls, tearfully huddled down in a big chair. Surely one's pity goes out to all of them. To the folks of the two little boys—and to the boy who can't stop crying. But you cannot say "There there" to any of them. There aren't any words for it.

You see a small boy brooding under the apple trees of home, or stubbing his foot thoughtfully, sadly, along the pavement, and you think to yourself, "He doesn't know how fortunate he is to be a boy, and to find pleasure in boyish stipple-dills. He is sad now, but it will pass like a cloud. He is only grieving for some minor sorrow or hurt. It will pass." And, of course, in all likelihood, it will pass as the clouds do. But can't you comprehend how cruelly it must hurt before ever it is gone? Can't you realize that since boys have their kind of sorrow, just about them and go down to flaming ruin, with never a heart-ache such as his? That Romeo never sighed so deeply or with such woe-filled spirit? That men have lost fortune and good name without that anguish which is momentary by him? For a boy hasn't any philosophy to sustain him, and he hasn't any of the miseries of this world, and, when all's said and done, it was but yesterday that he put on the garments of boyhood. There is something in him that urges him to be manly and brave, but he doesn't quite know how. And there is a whimper in him that tells the boy it would be best to give up to tears. And the boy has the spirit of the boy in under the hat, and sometimes the hat leaves a scar.

We are always forgetting, more or less, that once we were children. And it is so truly important that we should remember. How otherwise may we reach deep down into childish hearts, finding the sorrows and hints that are hidden there, and somehow contrive to get them? The children say to themselves, often enough, that we do not care. For if we cared, we would understand. And we do care, but will not understand, because in our ways we are more wifed than children. When you see a boy walking with head bent, and rebellion or sorrow in his eyes, there walks a shadow that you were before—the true epitome of tragedy. It will pass, you say? More often so than otherwise. But sometimes it does not pass.

its pungent, golden twang, to be sampled.

SLIM FIGURE NOW UNFASHIONABLE

Women and Girls Can Now Be Healthy as Well as Stylish

That excessive and unnatural slenderness that ruined the health of thousands of women and young girls is no longer fashionable. Paris couturiers are developing clothes for the rounded figure. Musical comedy producers are searching for healthy, normal figures for the stage. All the world is getting health-wise where the human figure is concerned.

This means that women and girls will be encouraged to eat enough solid foods at regular meals to supply the requirements of health. It means that iron, calcium, and other dangerous results of undernourishment may be more easily averted. And to the eyes of discerning men and beauty experts, it means that women will be more natural and more beautiful.

Eat cereals, milk, fruits, vegetables and meats daily. Do not gorge or overeat, but eat variety. Remember that flavor is the one important factor in causing people to eat varieties of foods, and that sugar is nature's supreme condiment for developing the flavors of nearly every healthful food.

The necessity of a dash of sugar for making cereals, fruits and milk desserts delicious is well known. Women cooking experts recently discovered that a dash of sugar in vegetables while they are cooking revolutionizes their freshness and natural vegetable flavors. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

to move slowly towards the mooring mast carried by the American marines and blue jackets.

Crowd Awed

The assembled multitude was awed into silence by the impressive spectacle of the great silver craft majestically going through the operations of landing and mooring.

The nose of the newest trans-Pacific liner touched the mooring mast at 5:15 a. m.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the great zeppelin, who was seriously ill for two days of the trip from Tokyo, was rushed by motor to a downtown hotel. Arrangements had been made to issue a statement, but a written statement he had prepared last night was lost as the wind tore it from his hand as he leaned from the control room gondola north of Santa Barbara.

He was highly enthusiastic over the success of the trip and commented that it is far from demonstrated the commercial feasibility of lighter than air transport in ocean commerce, it was indicated by those with whom he talked during the last hours of the trip.

The Zeppelin nosed into California above San Francisco before sundown last night. The nose of the silver cloudlet pointed through the Golden Gate shortly after six o'clock, greeted by aerial well-wishers and circled San Francisco for half an hour before moving out of the Golden Gate again and heading southward.

Sir Hubert Wilkins said "it was pleasant to take this trip for pleasure, and be free from responsibility. However, the globe tour has proved to us the value of meteorological forecast. Before air lines can be operated successfully we must have greater cooperation among weather experts, and reports from many more fields. I congratulate Dr. Hugo Eckener on the success of his flight. We have seen many interesting points of the globe from an unusual point of view. The uncultivated steppes of Siberia, the rain drenched fields of the orient and the cloud banked Pacific, were among the most interesting sights I have ever seen."

Lady Drummond Hay said "this trip was interesting, but it did not carry the thrill of that remarkable record-breaking flight from New York to Friedrichshafen. However, the two most remarkable sights I have ever seen were San Francisco, last night against a colorful sunset, and Los Angeles this morning in a beautiful clear sunrise."

Lieut. Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, hero of the Shenandoah disaster, said "this was the finest flight I ever had. I enjoyed every minute of it. We took advantage of every wind we could find which is the reason we changed our course. That and the resultant remarkable speed was one of the chief things which made the flight such an unusual one."
