AT THE THEATERS

"Wolf Song" To Be Attraction At Star Today

The stars of "Wolf Song," now at the Star theater are three of the best known individuals in film today. They are Gary Cooper, Lila Lee, and Louis Wolheim. This is the first time that Gary has played the lover opposite Lila.

The director is Victor Fleming, the genius who made "The Way of All Flesh," and "The Rough Riders."

The cast is a splendid one. Expert care was taken to have the right actors for the right parts and everyone in the support is cast in roles for which he has proved himself particularly fitted by past experience.

The settings are, through most of the film, nature's own—and probably nature's best—the high Sierra mountains of California, where the Paramount company of players spent many weeks perfecting the gorgeous love-thriller that is "Wolf Song."

"Speakeasy" Opens Run At The Arcade

"Speakeasy," the most convincing dialogue picture yet to reach the screen, is on view at the Arcade theater today. It is a story of New York, filmed in New York, acted by a cast of thoroughly competent stage players and is a realistic one leaves the theater with the thought of having just returned from a journey to the great metropolis.

Aside from this brilliant performance given by the players, and each one is effective in their respective roles, this all-dialogue Fox Movietone picture is filled with numerous inspiring "shots."

which keep the onlooker in a prolonged grasp of astonishment.

The players, all newcomers recruited from the legitimate stage, cover themselves with glory. Paul Page, Lila Lee, and Louis Wolheim, Helen Ware, and others are excellent in their characterizations.

The story is based on the stage play of the same name by Edward Knoblock and George Truett. The production was directed by Victor Fleming.

Student: Lamp, too.

Her: "I love you as no one ever loved before."

She: "I can't see much difference."

She: "Hugs" eyes must be getting in terrible condition."

Student: "How so?"

She: "All I read about now, shows is blind pigs."

Student: "How so?"

She: "All I read about now, shows is blind pigs."

Student: "How so?"

She: "All I read about now, shows is blind pigs."

Student: "How so?"

She thought herself awfully smart as a shop assistant.

"Do you keep fountain pens?" The timid-looking man inquired anxiously.

"No," she snapped, "we sell them."

"Anyway," he said as he strolled toward the door, "you'll keep the one you were going to sell me, won't you?"

Sustained to hardware dealer in Chicago: "I want a sledge hammer. Some of the gang down the street asked me to settle a little difference for them."

The boarding house mistress glanced critically down the table as she announced: "We have a delicious rabbit pie for dinner."

The boarders nodded resignedly—all but one.

He glanced nervously downward, shifting his feet. One foot struck something soft, something that said "bump."

He came his head. A relieved smile crossed his face as he gasped: "Thank goodness."

Plenty of people have a good aim in life but a lot of them don't pull the trigger.

In ascendancy's the star of September and the oyster. Gently glowing over the "T."

Now emerges from his closet.

Son: "Say, Dad, that apple I ate had a worm in it, and I ate that too."

Parent: "What? Here drink this water and wash it down."

But Junior shook his head. "Aw, let 'im walk down."

Frankness in advertising is developed to a high degree in that road sign on a New Jersey highway which calls attention to a recent commission of "new antiquities."
