there?" asked Chairman Shortridge.

"I didn't."

"But your company did."

"Yes."

"Aren't you president?"

"Yes, I thought I was but I didn't know about Shearer."

Grace said he never met Shearer. He said he learned first of his employment in December, 1927, several months after the Geneva party.

He testified he had been asked by a newspaperman about the Shearer arrangement and had denied it. But later he said that he heard the rumor again and then questioned Wakeman about Shearer's employment at Geneva.

Asked by Senator Shortridge whether he had rebuked Wakeman, Grace replied:

"I told him it was rather unwise and a thing I couldn't approve of. I told him it was contrary to the policies of our company."

Grace explained that he understood Mr. Wakeman felt Shearer could give some technical information and "ascertain what was transpiring and report it." He added that Wakeman expected to get more information of this nature "than would be reported by the press," and denied that it was expected Shearer would delve into the activities of the conference.

Recalled to the stand, Schwab said he had no recollection of ever meeting Shearer. He added he had been told by his secretary that Shearer had sought interviews but had been denied them by the secretary.

NO PROSPECT OF GENERAL OREGON RAIN

announced that the proclamation will remain in force "until we have had a general soaking rain to remove the fire hazard over the state."

Elliott said the light rains reported from some parts of the state were not sufficient to justify lifting the ban upon hunting.

In La Grande, the weather has been exceptionally warm for September, with several days during the last two weeks with the mercury over 90 degrees. Official records show no freezing weather here since last spring.

SOME SHOWERS IN WEST—SALISBURY, Ore., Sept. 21—(AP)—Although rain was falling today in the Willamette valley there was no hope for an immediate respite of the governor's order against the opening of the hunting season. P. A. Elliott, state forester, said he had a telephone message from Klamath Falls that there had been no rainfall in that district.

"There will be no lifting of the ban on hunting until there is a general rain," Elliott said, "and there has been no general rain yet."

Elliott said that the resending proclamation has been prepared by the governor, but will not be made effective until the forester gives the governor the word.

AIDS FIRE FIGHTERS—TOLLEDO, Ore., Sept. 21—(AP)—Eor and rain joined forces with forest fire fighters in Lincoln county today and drenched the fires which were spreading toward many valuable stands of timber. Fires have caused a loss of $60,000 in Lincoln county and several thousand acres have been burned over.

SITUATION STILL BAD—PORTLAND, Sept. 21—(AP)—C. M. Granger, district forester, today issued a statement declaring the fire situation in national forests of Oregon and Washington was such that it is impossible at this time to rescind the order closing the national forests in the two states.

Granger said the situation is still hazardous and that thousands of men remained in the fire lines in both states. A general heavy rain must come before the closure will be revoked, he said.
