conference and that T. T. Pale, vice president of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co., acquiesced. Asked about Clinton H. Bardo, Shearer said Wakeman and Pale said he would "trail along."

"What reason did they give?" inquired Robinson.

"They considered that the so-called socialist influence in the United States had become so great," the witness said, "and that 25 Broadway was so near—you know J. D. Rockefeller in a way is affiliated with the Bethlehem interests. Ivy Lee is the press agent of the Rockefellers and also of the Bethlehem crowd and I believe of the British government. The shipbuilders had paid him $150,000 and I suppose they didn't want to puncture his vanity."

Objects to Nickname—At one juncture a committee member objected to Shearer referring to former Secretary of State

Frank B. Kellogg, as "Nervous Nellie" but the witness insisted that is the way he spoke of him in the conversation he was relating. He added he did not call Mr. Kellogg that in public. Robinson then continued his questioning about the campaign. Shearer said that Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, had "jumped on the navy views of Herbert Hoover as expressed in his acceptance address and I wrote an open letter in reply."

Archer and "others" he added had liked the letter, explaining that this had prompted his participation in the campaign in Massachusetts.

Article Used by Speakers—"My article 'Sea Power,' he testified, "was used by the speakers and I really was getting the British interested."

"That's why you were sent then?" asked Robinson.

"Yes, sir," he answered. "In Washington Shearer near the end 'Was getting the Irish interested.'"

Sings For South

Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Kruger and baby are expected to arrive tomorrow to spend the day with her brother, H. L. Hull.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)

Carol Morton, 18-year-old Birmingham entertainer, sings the "blues" over Station WIRC to thousands of eager southern listeners. They proclaimed her a favorite immediately after her first crooning program was broadcast. She is booked for the season.

Knotty Boards for Boxes

Experiments have shown that knotty boards absorb shocks much better than clear boards, because of their flexibility. Their use in box making is therefore increasing.

No Positive Deader

No material substance is known that is an absolute nonconductor of sound.

$500,000 'Rube'

These baggy trousers, and rumpled vest, with disarrayed tie and floppy-looking cap—yes, a veritable "rube" from the sticks—doesn't seem to fit the picture of a man who tricked six New York banks into giving him $500,000 credit on faked telegraph orders, but such is the case. Above is C. D. Waggoner, president of the Telluride, Colo., bank, who bilked New York banks out of half million.

THE USE of felt and soleil is a prominent combination for fall hats. Modernistic insets of dark brown soleil are effectively used on this beige felt cloche.

NECKLINE elaboration for fall stresses the jabot full of lace. Here is beige lace on an African brown crepe frock.
