The Son of God—Now when the centurion, and they that were with him, watching Jesus saw the earthquake, and those things that were done, they feared greatly, saying, Truly this was the Son of God.—Matthew 27:54.

Now the baseball fans can settle down to business for six months.

So far no manufacturer has come out with a line of automatic pistols for household use, in the popular lacquer colors.

The big Barnes Circus elephant was executed as is befitting murderers. Unlike the human killer he didn't know that he was committing a crime or that he was being punished.

Loss of several lives in a Seattle hotel fire follows too closely on the observation of Fire Prevention Week throughout the country. Carelessness was responsible for most fires. No one can be too particular about the elimination of fire hazards.

Never before in the history of La Grande have so many people been brought into places of business as during the Merchants' Pirate Party. Participants have seen the variety and excellence of stocks in various stores, with which many of them were unfamiliar. The event is serving to convince Union and Wallowa county people anew of the superior advantages of shopping in La Grande stores.

WE STILL NEED RELIGION

The new "humanist church," established in New York the other day by a group of advanced thinkers, seems to be a radical affair, to say the least. Its sponsors announce that prayer will have no place in its service. There will be no talk of "sin," "redemption" or "salvation"; these notions, say the doughty humanists, are out of date.

Most of us, no doubt, will simply conclude that this place is not a church at all, no matter what it is called; and the added conclusion that humanism, whatever else it may be, is not a religion, follows inescapably. Of course, if there are people to whom this kind of "worship" appeals, they are at liberty to engage in it; but they must be differently constituted from most of us.

For it is precisely in this matter of prayer, sin and salvation that the average man feels the need of religion the most.

If we were all perfectly sure of ourselves; if we were all quite certain that we understood this world, the next one and our place in both so well that there were no longer any mystery about it; if we all felt that we would know exactly what to do, and would be strong enough to do it, no matter what puzzling situation life might throw in our paths; if we all were able to look back on our past lives and feel that we had made proper expiation for all the misdeeds we might find there—

Then, in that case, this humanist church might suffice for all of us. But we haven't reached that situation yet. We are pitifully unsure of our selves, tragically in doubt about the mystery of life, pathetically conscious that we have not atoned for many of our errors.

So it is that we need something more meaty in the way of a religion than the humanists offer. We need prayer, we need redemption, we need salvation; and no church that fails to offer them will ever attract the majority of modern people.

Health Talks

The illumination is of great importance. Long-continued study of natural lighting has shown certain definite fundamental requirements. Unilateral lighting is considered to be the best system. This means that the windows should be on one side of the room children. A width of more than 22 feet is not desirable, because the row of seats farthest from the window will not receive proper illumination. child should be able to see some sky when seated at his desk. It should always be remembered that the best light enters through the upper third of the window. The ideal plan is to provide the best light and to avoid glare. The walls of the room should, therefore, be covered with a flat paint. A light buff or cream is desirable. The ceiling should be flat white. Blackboards should be limited to the front of the room and right side.

The classroom furniture is a very important feature of school hygiene. The movable desk and seat is preferable as regards the cleaning of the floors, etc. The adjustable type is to be preferred. The ventilation of the school room is very important for the health of the child. The simple window ventilation with gravity exhaust is considered best for the ordinary classroom. Auditoriums and assembly halls need special mechanical devices, but the classroom does not need these. The window board ventilator for each window and an outlet on the opposite wall near the ceiling, or in the ceiling, which leads to a roof ventilator, is the most economical and healthful method available today. Of course each room should have a thermometer which should receive the careful attention of the teacher. During the colder weather a room temperature of 65 to 70 degrees Fahrenheit is best.

Each classroom should have its own cloakroom. For the older children, individual steel lockers are best. The cloak rooms should have heating facilities and outside illumination and ventilation. The janitor service is important for cleanliness, heating and ventilation. Sweeping should always be done after school hours, and the vacuum system or the use of sweeping compound is necessary. To sum up school hygiene, every effort of parent and teacher should be made to provide school surroundings equivalent to those of a modern, well-conducted home.

for in regard to your one month's work in Washington?" "His idea, I think, was that three or four weeks ought to be sufficient time to prepare data for Senator Bingham," explained Eyanson.

Accomplish Results
Quoting father, Walsh said: "Undoubtedly the results which you have accomplished are far-reaching and will bear fruits for time to come."

"What did he mean?" asked the witness. "He knew nothing," the witness said. "You will have to ask him about that." "Isn't the plain meaning of this that Mr. Hubbard had information about rates the Connecticut manufacturers were going to get, and those were the results he was talking about?" persisted Senator Walsh.

"I don't suppose Mr. Hubbard knew anything at that time about the tariff rates," replied Eyanson.

Has Never Seen Such A Medicine

"I want my friends and everybody else to know that I think Sargen is a blessing to humanity! Although I'm 52 years old, I was healthy and vigorous until about two years ago when I began to lose my old strength and energy. My bladder and kidneys bothered me a lot and this broke into my sleep and weakened me. I didn't have much appetite and I was tired and fagged out nearly all the time, so I decided to take this new Sargen treatment. I had been hearing so much about it.

"Well, sir, before I realized it, I was eating right along and my food was tasting fine. I never saw such medicine for building strength! I sleep good now because my bladder and kidneys don't worry me like they did. I have already gained five pounds and I feel so strong and energetic that I honestly believe I'm going to live to be 100 years old. Sargen pills beat anything I ever saw for straightening out the liver. They certainly did the worlds of good." Martin Paup, 2909 4th Ave. S., Seattle. Red Cross Drug Store, agents. Adv.

HYSTERICAL GIRL IDENTIFIES BODY

Dramatic Questioning Beside Open Grave Opens Way for Grand Jury.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 15 (AP)—Before an open grave on the shores of the Mississippi, lone Orel, sophisticated city girl, wept, swooned and finally admitted yesterday that a bullet torn body was that of Jack Kraft, New York newspaperman and adventurer, with whom she had started out to see the world.

A small mitre of an Indian head on the forearm furnished the identification along with a seat on a knee, which George Kraft, older brother of Jack, who had come from New York, said established the identity beyond any doubt.

The girl swooned a half dozen times and attempted to fight her way free once.

The scene was on the banks of the Mississippi 55 miles below New Orleans and one mile below the spot where her traveling companion's body went hurtling from the Creole, New York-New Orleans boat.

Girl Questioned
Revised by the sprinkling of river water on her head she was subjected to questioning as natives peeping from the underbrush chattered in queer old French.

She said neither she nor Sam Epstein, ship's steward, had shot Kraft, but would not swear that John McGouldrick, second officer, had not shot him. She declared she did not know who had shot him.

Slipper Startles Her
Suddenly and silently a detective laid a bedroom slipper on her lap. With a shriek she buried the slipper across the room, jumped up and fought the doors and walls in an effort to escape.

It was a slipper worn by Jack Kraft and washed ashore with his body. Then the investigators drove back to New Orleans stating they were convinced the girl knows more than she has told about the tragedy.

The case will be laid before the grand jury tomorrow.

SIGNATURE IS TORN OFF OF FALL'S NOTE

had told her to keep the signature carefully so it would be available when time came to present the note for payment.

She added she has taken the signature from New York to Los Angeles and put it in a safe-deposit box.

Produce Signature
Today Mrs. Doheny produced the signature in court. She already had identified the note Frank Hagan, chief defense counsel, put them together and presented the complete note to the jury, which examined it carefully.

She was on the stand only a short while before her husband was called. Regarded as the most important witness for the defense, Doheny said the $100,000 was a loan to an old friend in need and not a bribe as charged by the prosecution.

Doheny said he first met Fall in Kingston in 1886 when Fall was a miner at the Graystone mine. Under rapid examination the witness covered a span of years during which he achieved success in business and Fall rose high in political life.

Doheny said he had nothing to do with President Harding's transfer of the naval oil reserves to the jurisdiction of the interior department but told of receiving a letter from Fall in 1921 in which the latter asked him to get the Pan-American company to relinquish rights to part of Elk Hills. He said he replied his company would be glad to do anything to help the government.

Fall later told him, the oil man said, of his desire to purchase an addition to his ranch property and spoke of trying to borrow $100,000 from Edward B. McLean, Washington publisher. Doheny said he offered to let Fall have the money but the cabinet member did not immediately accept the offer but asserted if he did he would give Doheny a mortgage on the ranch property.

Asked For Loan in 1922
On November 29, 1922, Fall telephoned him asking for the loan. Fall, he said, explained the difficulty of handling checks in New Mexico and asked for cash, which Doheny sent the next day by his son.

When the son returned he gave
