MENUS

By SISTER MARY
In cooking—as in clothes—"between seasons" present the most difficult problem. Menus cannot be planned long in advance, for a sudden change in the weather may influence the produce market as well as appetites.

"The time for spicy steamed puddings is during snowy months."

Tender succulent vegetables are seldom to be had, and the hearty root vegetables need severe frosts to sweeten them.

Meats are the simplest problem, for game is added to the list of poultry and meat.

Until a "killing" frost comes, egg plant, cauliflower, sweet peppers, late spinach and lima beans are at their best. Curly endive and celery will be good after the first hard frosts. "Tomatoes lose their flavor, for they do not like changeable weather."

Use curly endive often. Raw or cooked, it's a wholesome green vegetable. Later in the winter lettuce will necessarily be our standby, but now curly endive can take its place.

Vegetable cocktails are ideal for between season dinners. They whet the appetite without cooling or heating the body temperature. Crisp cauliflower cocktail, tomato juice cocktail, egg and beet cocktail and any number of celery combinations are particularly good. Desserts are perplexing. One hesitates to open canned fruit so early in the fall, pumpkin pie cannot always be baked, and fresh fruit becomes monotonous if used continually. Simple baked puddings, tapioca puddings and cakes supply the needed sweet for the between season dinner or luncheon.

BREAKFAST—Grape juice, cereal, cream, codfish hash, corn bread, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Eggplant with cheese on toast, celery hearts, apple tapioca pudding, milk, tea.

DINNER—Ham baked in sweet cider, potatoes au gratin, buttered cauliflower, curly endive with one for acquittal.

"The one remaining vote for acquittal came over for conviction today."

On the first ballot yesterday, it was said two of the women jurors were for acquittal and two did not vote, while on the fourth ballot last night, two of the women jurors voted for conviction and two to free Fall.

Thompson recovered and was led from the courtroom by two character witnesses for Fall.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 (AP)—Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, who led the senate investigation into the naval oil leases, said today on hearing of Fall's conviction: "Every right minded person out to be gratified that this large measure of justice has been done."

Mark J. Hogan, chief of the defense, said Fall was "robbed of his right for trial by justice."

"He was robbed of his constitutional rights by the judge's charge," the lawyer said.

Doherty burst out: "It's that damn court," he shouted as he shook his fist.

The verdict is regarded by government prosecutors as meaning that Doherty will be placed on trial.

Mark D. Thompson, Fall's personal attorney collapsed in court a few minutes after the verdict was rendered. He has suffered from heart trouble for some time.

Ten minutes after Thompson collapsed he was still lying on the floor and Fall's personal physician, Dr. H. H. Safford, left Fall and hurried to Thompson's side to try to revive him.

Standing above Thompson's body Hogan turned to those surrounding him and denounced the jury's action as "a rape on the constitution."

Meanwhile Mr. and Mrs. Fall made their way out of the court and were taken to their car to return to their hotel. He had nothing to say regarding the verdict.

The daughters, who still were weeping hysterically, became separated in the crowd.

FOUR BALLOTS
The foreman of the jury said that four ballots had been taken last night.

"I first showed seven for acquittal, three for conviction and two undecided and not voting," he said.

"When the fourth ballot was taken at one a. m., it showed seven for conviction and five for acquittal."

"On the first ballot this morning the vote was 11 to conviction and
